BRITAIN, FRANCE BUILD DEFENSE AGAINST ITALY

War Chiefs of Both Nations Meet.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Great Britain pushed on today to tighten all loopholes in the Mediterranean against the danger of an Italian attack as young Capt. Anthony Eden formally took up the duties of foreign secretary.

A policy of preparedness was enunciated in authoritative quarters, after King George formally entrusted to Eden the formidable task of extricating Britain from its most critical international problems since the world war.

Delayed by a heavy fog, Eden arrived half an hour late at Sandringham house for an audience with King George and a meeting of the privy council. He then formally took up his duties, after kissing the monarch's hand.

Delay Further Sanctions.

Talk of further sanctions against Italy was suppressed for the time being, but the government proceeded with defense measures.

With the disclosure that the British and French general military and naval staf have concluded "satisfactory" conversations, it was learned similar contacts are being made in other important capitals. British staf officers returned from Paris. It was revealed they will continue their contacts with the French officers.

Further information on the readiness of various countries to act is being sought through the military and naval attachés in various countries of Europe.

Eden to Move Cautiously.

The 38 year old Eden, whose charm and persuasiveness are combined with a strong belief in the league, is expected to move cautiously for the next month or so in order to avoid throwing the situation into new turmoil.

No definite action for further sanctions, therefore, is expected at least until well into January. By that time, there is a growing feeling in responsible quarters, Premier Mussolini will be forced to act by the pressure of sanctions and the approaching rainy season. Whether these acts will be for peace or war, the British have shown that they expect to be prepared.

The appointment by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of Eden to succeed Sir Samuel Hoare, who resigned because of bitterness here toward the British-French peace plan, was a popular one generally with the British public.

Seeks to Fortify Dardanelles.

(Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 23.—Turkey was represented in informed Parisian quarters tonight to be seeking France's consent to the fortification of the strategic Dardanelles in preparation for a mutual assistance pact against any Italian attack.

Today's visit to Premier Pierre Laval by Tevfik Rustu Aras, Turkish foreign minister, was considered highly important by diplomatic onlookers. Officials said, however, as far as they knew, the question of fortifications was not raised.

Fernand de Brinon, friend of Laval, wrote, in the newspaper l'Information, that Turkey's "price for complete coöperation is not only the abolition of the freedom of the straits under the treaty of Lausanne but eventually the return of Rhodes to Turkey or a special régime for that island."

Italy Holds Rhodes.

Rhodes, De Brinon added, "is important for control of the Ottoman coast." The island has been under Italian sovereignty since 1923.

The Dardanelles, famous since Xerxes' army crossed on a bridge of boats to enter Europe in 480 B. C., with the more easterly Bosporus straits provided the first gateway between Europe and Asia. About 40 miles long and from 1 to 4 miles wide, the narrow Dardanelles passage unites the Sea of Marmora and the Ægean sea. Rhodes lies in the latter.

Under the treaty of Lausanne the Dardanelles and Bosporus regions were demilitarized. Prior to the world war, under a treaty with the great powers, Turkey could bar the passage to any non-Turkish ship.

WORKS PROJECT RESULT PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT

Declares Goal Is 99⅞ Per Cent Achieved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Looking back over 1935, which saw his four billion dollar works relief program off to a late start after many months of delay, President Roosevelt today professed himself satisfied with the progress made by his two spenders in chief, Harry L. Hopkins and Harold L. Ickes.

In an informal summary of administration attempts to solve the unemployment problem, the President said that the Works Progress administration had come within 20,000 of reaching its goal of 3,500,000 men at work, and that 77 per cent of public works projects were under way. By Jan. 15, he predicted, PWA will be functioning 100 per cent.

Washes Hands of Rest.

Mr. Roosevelt repeated that the government assumed no responsibility for those not hired under the program. He had asked congress for four billions last January, he said, based upon an estimate that there were 3,500,000 needy men who could work. He got the four billions and the 3,500,000 have been put to work, he said. The remaining unemployed must be cared for by "states, municipalities, counties, and private charity," he added.

There was a trace of irritation in the President's voice as he commented that the situation was clear and simple and he could not understand why the government should be expected to put more than 3,500,000 men to work when it had promised to do no more. Because there were thousands still unemployed was no reason for criticism of the government, he declared.

Skims Over Internal Strife.

In his summation the President made no mention of the war between Ickes and Hopkins over how to spend the four billions, nor of the repeated setting back of the deadline for reaching the employment goal until Dec. 1 finally was fixed upon. He admitted that the quota had not yet been reached, but pointed out that it was "ninety-nine and seven-eighths per cent" complete.

The President became almost wrathful when he referred to criticism of the mounting public debt. Some newspaper stories referring to the debt amount to a downright deception of the American people, he charged. A man who borrowed $10,000 and then put it in the bank was not thereby $10,000 in debt, and was neither wealthier nor poorer than before, he remarked, arguing that the government merely was investing money upon which it would get a return.

Claims Big Success.

He read a long list of statistics on the success of Ickes' PWA program. He declared that of 4,231 approved projects, contracts had been awarded to 2,922 and the remaining contracts would be awarded by Jan. 15.

He ended with the assertion that department of labor reports showed five million persons had been employed over the number employed in the spring of 1933. He said that no one could estimate how many persons still were unemployed because "unemployment" was such a difficult term to define. He ended up his remarks in high good humor and boomed a "Merry Christmas" at reporters.

Puts NRA to Death.

Earlier in the day, the President issued an executive order terminating the National Recovery administration, the organization which was the pet of the New Deal but which died a sudden death upon decision of the Supreme court that it was unconstitutional. Various agencies of the NRA were transferred to the departments of commerce and labor.

The divisions of review and of business coöperation and the advisory council, together with their officers and employés and records, were shifted to the department of commerce. The consumers' division was transferred to the department of labor. Employés transferred to the commerce department will hold their jobs until April 1, when the divisions for which they work legally expire. The consumers' division will last until June 30 because it was set up under the emergency appropriation act.

NEW COLD WAVE TO HOLD SNOW FOR CHRISTMAS

Forecaster A. W. Cook warned last night that a second cold wave was approaching from the northwest and would probably hit Chicago early this morning, sending temperatures down near zero. The new icy spell will continue through tomorrow, according to Mr. Cook, keeping the light snow of the last two days intact for a cold, white Christmas and adding to the holiday blanket with additional flurries today.

The snowfall in Chicago was light yesterday, but last night Bloomington and central Illinois were digging out from under 9 inches of snow which fell during the day and the night before. All highways were reported passable, but the snow and heavy holiday trafic slowed all railroad lines downstate. Light snowfall was general in the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, announced yesterday that ice skating on the Des Plaines river was officially opened. Skating will be permitted wherever the river passes through the forest preserves. Toboggan slides have also been opened at Palos hills and the Dan Ryan woods in the preserves.

SidneyGorham Dies Suddenly; Noted Lawyer

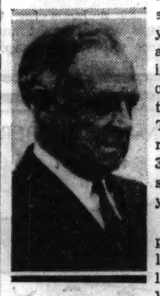
Sidney S. Gorham, prominent attorney and expert on municipal corporation law, died of a heart attack yesterday while attending a meeting of the board of directors of the John R. Thompson restaurant company at 350 North Clark street. He was 61 years old.



SIDNEY S. GORHAM.

Mr. Gorham, a partner in the law firm of Miller, Gorham, Wales & Adams, 1 North La Salle street, was presiding as chairman of the board of the restaurant company when he suddenly collapsed in his chair and slumped to the floor. John R. Thompson and the six other directors rushed to his side and summoned doctors, but he died shortly after the arrival of medical aid.

Author of Vehicle Act.

During his 40 years of law practice in Chicago Mr. Gorham was often called in by city officials to aid in drafting municipal legislation and several times was appointed a special assistant corporation counsel. His advice was particularly sought in the planning of transit, trafic, and telephone ordinances and he was the author of the present Illinois state motor vehicle act. Since the passage of the act in 1919 he had been given state automobile license No. 1 each year.

Mr. Gorham was president of the Chicago Bar association in 1928 and 1929 and was on the board of managers at the time of his death.

Mr. Gorham was born in Rutland county, Vermont, on Nov. 6, 1874. He acquired his early education in the Rutland public schools, was graduated from the Chicago College of Law in 1894, and was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1895. Shortly afterward he became a partner in the firm of Mills, Gorham & Mills, of which the present firm is the successor.

Headed Fair Trafic Group.

During A Century of Progress in 1933 Mr. Gorham was head of the Exposition's trafic control committee.

Mr. Gorham's home was at 436 South Stone avenue, La Grange. In addition to his membership in the Chicago Bar association, he was a member of the American and Illinois Bar associations and of the Chicago Law club. He also belonged to the Chicago Athletic association and the Mid-Day, Forty, Glen View, and the La Grange Country clubs.

Mr. Gorham is survived by the widow, Myrtle, and two sons, Sidney S. Gorham Jr., 656 Ardsley street, Winnetka, and Willett N. Gorham of Wagner road, Glenview.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Thursday afternoon in Emmanuel church at La Grange, with cremation at Oak Woods cemetery.

AIR BOMBING PLANNED TO TURN LAVA AWAY FROM HAWAIIAN CITY

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 23.—(AP)—An army bomber was fueled today for possible bombing of the lava flow from the Mauna Loa volcano. The threat to Hilo's water supply offered by the mile-wide red hot lava caused officials to consider the plan. It was feared the lava might dam the Wailuku river and divert upper streams into new channels.

Two officers, one an expert on bombing, the other an authority on water flows, took off in an observation plane for the Island of Hawaii, 200 miles away, to cruise over Mauna Loa to determine the feasibility of bombing. The main lava stream has spread in two forks. One is headed toward Keaumoku, the other toward Hilo. The branch traveling toward Hilo was moving at an unusual rate of speed.

The gigantic strip of fire has spread into an area two miles square, where it encountered the base of Mauna Kea, adjacent to Mauna Loa. This lake of lava is at least ten feet deep. The present flow is said to be the greatest of modern times. Hilo, a city of 20,000, is about 40 miles from the volcano.

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Stephen S. Wise, wife of the rabbi, who says she is "well nigh seventy," went on the picket line today to protest the sale of German made toys at a windy corner. She became the leader of a dozen pickets parading in front of the toy shop of B. Shackman & Co. The picketing is directed by the American Jewish congress.

Court Guards Child Heir in Custody Fight

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday placed a deputy sheriff as guard over William Crawford Barry III., 18 month old great-grandson of the late B. A. Eckhart, Chicago capitalist, pending settlement of a dispute between the child's divorced parents for his custody.

The action was taken after the father, William C. Barry Jr., a Hollywood film technician, filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus seeking custody of his son. The baby is now living with his grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Eckhart Williams, at 1325 Astor street.

The child's mother is Mrs. Katherine Williams Barry, daughter of Mrs. Williams and granddaughter of Mr. Eckhart. She divorced Barry in Los Angeles last Aug. 16.

Guard Asked by Father.

Judge Feinberg directed that until a full hearing on the writ next Monday the child shall remain in the home of his grandmother under the eye of Deputy Sherif Otto Janousek. This order was at the instance of Attorney William Waugh, representing the father, who asserted that an attempt might be made to take the child out of the state and away from the jurisdiction of the court.

Barry, son of a Rochester, N. Y., banker, arrived in Chicago in the morning and filed his petition through Attorney Waugh. Judge Feinberg issued the writ, which was carried to Mrs. Williams' home by Deputy Sherif Janousek, and was served as the baby was being taken for a walk by his nurse.

Baby Happy in Court.

The preliminary hearing took place in the afternoon before Judge Feinberg. Present besides the child and his nurse were the father and the elder Barry, who joined his son here. The baby, blond and curly haired, was in high spirits, crying "bow wow" and smiling at every one in the courtroom.

In his habeas corpus petition the younger Barry recited that in the original Los Angeles divorce decree his former wife had been awarded custody of the child, but that in a hearing on Dec. 5 the decree was modified to give him custody after the mother had been found unfit by the Los Angeles court to care for the boy.

Charges Flight from California.

In asking that the child be taken from the grandmother and given to the father in accordance with the modified decree, Attorney Waugh charged that the baby had been taken "surreptitiously" from California and brought to Chicago to escape the jurisdiction of the California courts.

This was denied by Attorney John Campbell, counsel for Mrs. Williams. He explained that an appeal had been taken from the modified decree and that it would not go into effect until the appeal was settled. Mrs. Barry, he declared, was not in Chicago.

Says Mother Is Improved.

"Out there everything was against her," Attorney Campbell declared. "We begged delay until she could pull herself together and have some sort of psychological treatment. She is now in shape to take the child."

It was finally agreed that the child should temporarily remain with the grandmother and that the father should be permitted to visit his son until the hearing next Monday.

The grandmother, Mrs. Williams, won a divorce in April, 1934, from the Rev. E. Reginald Williams, pastor of the fashionable St. Mark's Episcopal church in Milwaukee. She was granted custody of a minor child, Bernard, 10 years old.

Threats Impel Move to Live Abroad.

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his wife, and their 3-year-old son, Jon, driven into voluntary exile by kidnap threats against the child, were well on their way tonight to England, where they expect to make their permanent home. They are due in Liverpool on Dec. 30.

Driving against rough seas, their vessel, the tiny American Importer, a combination freighter and passenger ship of the American line, was nearing the "ocean corner," the spot where outbound craft turn toward Europe. Tonight she will be following the "great circle" course—a lane only a little to the south of the one the then unknown flier followed on his famous flight to Paris eight years ago. The Lindberghs are the only passengers.

Termed "National Disgrace."

It was a stunned world, which was reflected in extensive comment, that awoke today to the news that Col. Lindbergh, with his first son kidnaped and murdered and the convicted man not yet executed, had left his own country to seek refuge for his family in a foreign land because of new dangers and threats against which they felt there was no adequate protection at home.

Throughout the country the situation that forced the departure was declared by the press to be "a national disgrace," a "humiliating reflection" on law and order in the United States. One paper blamed "yellow journalism," others "inexcusable meddling" in the Lindberghs' private life, and several held the intervention of Gov. Hoffman into the Hauptmann case to have been "the determining factor" in bringing about the decision.

Most newspapers expressed the hope that the family's action would stir American public opinion into concerted action against crime in general and kidnaping in particular.

Under Scotland Yard Guard.

Even in Britain, it is reported, Col. Lindbergh will receive vigilant protection. It is reported Scotland Yard, famed English crime fighting organization, will guard him. Dispatches from London said plans to that end have been laid already.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, chief executive of New Jersey, the state in which the famous flyer had come to believe his son was not safe, merely remarked that he "presumed the Lindberghs had good reason for their decision."

He had no comment to make on his activities in the case of Bruno Hauptmann, who is under sentence to die on Jan. 13 for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Col. Mark O. Kimberling, warden of the state penitentiary, an appointee of Gov. Hoffman's, who permitted the governor to make a secret call on Hauptmann last October, was asked if the condemned man had been informed of the departure of the Lindberghs.

He shook his head. "I don't think that I will tell him," he said. "I shall leave that in the hands of the defense attorneys."

The governor was not visibly perturbed by implications that his midnight visit to Hauptmann in the death chamber and his public intimations of doubt that Hauptmann alone was guilty had a major part in the decision of the Lindberghs to flee their own country.

Officials Silent on Move.

Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, commanding the New Jersey state police, which Col. Lindbergh had praised on the witness stand at Flemington, and David T. Wilentz, attorney general, both said, "No comment."

In Washington J. Edgar Hoover, head of the investigating division of the department of justice, was equally reticent.

Friends were inclined to believe that the Lindberghs will go to the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's brother-in-law, Aubrey Neil Morgan, in Cardiff,

South Wales. Mr. Morgan, whose late wife was the former Miss Elizabeth Morrow, sister of Mrs. Lindbergh, has spent much time at the Morrow home in Englewood, and recently he was elected president of the little school there, which was founded by Mrs. Morgan.

Mrs. Lindbergh had visited England a number of times, and Col. Lindbergh has visited the British Isles twice—after his flight to Paris and again in 1933, when he flew with Mrs. Lindbergh across the North Atlantic by way of Greenland and Iceland.

Until "Hauptmann Thing" Dies.

Miss Alice Morrow, an aunt of Mrs. Lindbergh, said she believed Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh would remain in England "for at least a year, or longer if necessary. At any rate, until this Hauptmann thing has died down and they can come back and lead a normal life."

She added: "Isn't it terrible that this action is necessary and that they have to flee their own country?"

Another aunt of Mrs. Lindbergh, Mrs. Edwin L. McIlvaine of Tenafly, N. J., said she knew Col. Lindbergh had been very upset since the revival of the Hauptmann case and that both the flyer and his wife were dreading the night when the condemned man would be executed, believing there was a chance that he would be pardoned.

In Detroit Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the aviator's mother, and an uncle, John C. Lodge, said they had not been informed of his sailing.

Photographers Fuse Plans.

Brig. Gen. Jay G. Morrow, brother of the late Senator Morrow, and Mrs. Sheldon Yates, a sister of the elder Mrs. Morrow, said the state of mind of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had reached the point where the family believed it advisable for them to seek refuge in a foreign country.

With the plan for flight already formulated, it was easily put into effect when a recent incident made the colonel and his wife more keenly alive than ever to the menace hanging over Jon. As Jon was being driven home by automobile from school, a big car containing several men drew up alongside and forced the machine in which Jon was riding to halt.

Men with cameras sprang down from the big car and quickly took snapshots of Jon in the arms of his frightened teacher. Then they drove rapidly away, but Jon did not go back to school that day.

There has not been the slightest change in the conviction held by the Lindberghs and members of their family that Hauptmann is guilty. It was admitted, however, that he might have had accomplices and that reprisals by them are a source of fear.

Schwarzkopf's Fate Stirs Colonel.

It was revealed that one of the final items in a series of distressing incidents that drove Col. Lindbergh to make a decision repugnant to him was the report that politics had entered the Hauptmann case.

Another report that disturbed Col. Lindbergh was one that the governor was looking to a reorganization of the state police, with the replacement of Col Schwarzkopf by Maj. Kimberling, now warden of the state prison and formerly a state police officer under Schwarzkopf.

The news was received in England with a surprise that was tinged with joy. Before the rest of the country had heard the news the law enforcement agencies had already gone into action. On the receipt of a cable from Police Commissioner Valentine of New York, asking that the best protection be afforded the Lindberghs, Scotland Yard officials laid their plans, and almost before the American Importer was out of sight of land orders had been issued. Detectives received photographs of Col. Lindbergh, and local policemen and constables were instructed to be especially vigilant.

Flee Silently to Pier.

Meantime more details of the flight of the Lindberghs became public.

It was nearly 11 o'clock Saturday night when the colonel put his wife and small son into a taxicab at Englewood, N. J., and started for the pier in New York City.

The cab swung into the trafic down Riverside drive and in a few minutes rolled into the silent pier shed at West 20th street, alongside which lay the American Importer, almost ready to sail. It was nearly midnight when the Lindberghs went aboard, quietly and unnoticed.

Even then there was delay because of a threatened strike of the radio operators and it was almost three hours later when the blunt little vessel, its siren blowing hoarsely, was edged out into the river by tugs and started down the bay.

Preparations of the voyage had been made directly by Col. Lindbergh with Basil Harris, vice president of the United States Lines.

Pay $280 for Passage.

The Lindberghs, it was explained, paid the regular tarif rate for a family group of three, a total of $280 plus the United States tax of $13. Nothing was said about a return passage and, so far as could be learned, that matter was not discussed at all.

While the American Importer makes a stop at Cobh, Ireland, it is not believed that Col. Lindbergh will disembark there. He plans to go straight to Liverpool, and perhaps stay that night in a Liverpool hotel.

In Englewood, N. J., a feeling of regret and sympathy pervaded the community where the Lindberghs had made their home since the birth of their second son, Jon.

Grief Tempered by Relief.

Sorrow over the circumstances that forced the Lindberghs to leave America was tempered by a sense of relief that they had decided to take such extreme measures to safeguard the welfare of their second child. Close friends and relatives in Englewood reiterated that the entire family had been fearful of the child's safety for months.

Mayor Irving S. Reeve issued a statement on behalf of the community's residents. He expressed regret that the famous flyer, his wife, and son had seen fit to move to England, and added the hope that conditions in the United States would soon be such that they would feel safe to return.

The Lindbergh baby had been attending kindergarten near the home of his grandmother in Maine and when it closed for the Christmas vacation last week-end the playmates of little Jon Morrow Lindbergh had no inkling that he would not return for the winter term.

It was because of the Lindberghs' impending departure for England that Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and her youngest daughter, Constance, suddenly terminated their visit to Cuernavaca, Mexico, where they had reopened the home they occupied when Mr. Morrow was ambassador.

Threats and crank letters had poured in on the Lindberghs in recent weeks, the volume increasing steadily with the approach of the date for the electrocution of Hauptmann.

One such note, the family revealed, warned the colonel that he "had better come to the defense of Hauptmann before it is too late." It carried an implication of danger to the second son if Hauptmann went to his death.

Receives Many Threats.

Col. Lindbergh sat in the Flemington courtroom at every session of the Hauptmann trial and was a major witness against the Bronx carpenter, whose voice he identified as that of the man who got the $50,000 ransom. One phase of the appeal from Hauptmann's conviction was based on that fact, defense counsel contending that the famous flyer's presence in court was prejudicial to Hauptmann's interests.

Never since Col. Lindbergh made his famous solo flight from Roosevelt field to Paris on May 20, 1927, has he been wholly free of the threat of harm either to himself or, subsequently, to his family.

Friends of his family and police officials recalled that when he came back from his flight to Paris he was met by a steadily increasing number of threats and attempts at extortion.

Finally, when a flood of letters kept pouring in from cranks and criminals, his friends insisted that he have a bodyguard. This he refused, but he did begin to carry a pistol. When he had completed his tour of America and when, as months passed, the excitement over his achievement was beginning to abate, the threats came more rarely until only a few straggled in from week to week.

His engagement to Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, was the signal for a recurrence of the daily allotment of threatening letters. They were married on May 27, 1929.

Although the police were able to discount most of the letters as the work of cranks or definitly insane persons, the menace they contained became very real to the Lindberghs and put them under a constant strain of watchfulness.

Buys Hopewell House.

In the winter of 1932, when their son, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was nearing his second birthday, Col. Lindbergh apparently decided to remove his family to a place where they would be comparatively safe from kidnapers or other criminals.

Col. Breckinridge bought for him the estate near Hopewell, N. J., in a wooded section remote from heavily traveled highways. Again they dropped from the public eye and again the threats came at longer intervals.

That there was a basis for the Lindberghs' fears was brought home with tragic force with the kidnaping and murder of the son.

Editorial Comment on Lindberghs' Flight

Editorial comment yesterday on the departure of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with his wife and son to take up permanent residence in England included the following:

Baltimore Sun—They must have arrived at their conclusion painfully and slowly. And shocking as it may be to Americans who are proud of their country, the sincerity as well as drastic nature of that decision of the Lindberghs challenges and compels us all to think deeply about a condition of national life that literally drives a famous man to exile himself from his homeland.

Boston Herald—The approaching execution of Hauptmann, and, worst of all, the brazenly publicized doubts of New Jersey's unseeing, unperceiving governor regarding the condemned man's guilt, threatened another outburst of mass hysteria. It seemed wiser to the persecuted Lindberghs to retreat rather than to withstand a new bombardment from sensation-seekers, self-appointed defenders, psychopathic assailants and an erratic governor.

Chattanooga Times—If anything can stir public opinion in the United States to the point of an heroic concerted effort to stamp out lawlessness and to mete out prompt justice to convicted criminals, it will be the departure from their native land of the Lindberghs and their child on the eve of Christmas to seek a permanent home in England because "the English have greater regard for law and order in their own land than the people of any other nation."

Cleveland Plain Dealer—Secret departure of the Lindberghs with their 3 year old son, Jon, to take up residence in England is the direct result of annoyance from cranks and morbid persons filled with good advice, whose communications have overwhelmed the flier's family. This inexcusable meddling in the private life of the bereaved couple has been intensified since the date approaches for the execution of Bruno Hauptmann.

Dallas News—Bad as is the crime situation, fully as deplorable is yellow journalism, held equally responsible for the "flight." It caters to crime and is even partly responsible for it. Colonel Lindbergh is news where his official movements are concerned. The newspapers whose peeping tom tactics have made his private life hideous have no place in self-respecting communities.

Hartford Courant—Who, in like circumstances, believing that security and freedom from molestation could be found elsewhere, would not do what the Lindberghs have done? If it constitutes a humiliating reflection on conditions with respect to law and order in the United States, it will perhaps be a further stimulus to the activities against crime in general, and the monstrous crime of kidnaping in particular.

Kansas City Star—It is nothing short of a national disgrace that Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh virtually should be driven from America and forced to seek residence and refuge in a foreign country because of kidnaping threats against their living child and because of harassment in connection with attempts to save the man convicted of the kidnaping and murder of another child.

Los Angeles Times—The departure for England of Col. Lindbergh, his wife, and son, perhaps to make their home there permanently, is an unfortunate but natural result of a great tragedy. There is not a shred of evidence that Hauptmann had accomplices and little likelihood that, if he had, these now would be threatening the Lindberghs. If they contemplated revenge they would strike without warning. Yet it is difficult for any man to be logical when those dearest to him are threatened.

Newark Evening News—For the part that Gov. Hoffman played in forcing the Lindberghs to seek English sanctuary, we bow our heads in humiliation. Words cannot describe adequately the mischief this man has wrought by his appalling meddling. That the Lindberghs no longer feel safe in their own home is only part of the very real damage done by the heedless governor of this sovereign state. Col. Lindbergh will have genuine understanding in his feeling that he can stand against the crooks and cranks; he cannot cope with the dangerous situation created by Hoffman's premature interference.

New York Daily News—Hauptmann was convicted at a trial held as openly as could be imagined; his appeal went to the Supreme court. Then Governor Hoffman of New Jersey saw fit to reopen the case. Hoffman now admits he made a mistake. We will admit he did, too. On the other hand, Colonel Lindbergh always has invited publicity by shunning it, after the manner of Greta Garbo. We do think he would have been pestered less if he had acted more as a popular hero is supposed to act, and been less embarrassed in the public gaze.

New York Herald-Tribune—Nations have exiled their heroes before; they have broken them in misunderstanding or persecuted them with meanness. But when has a nation made life unbearable to one of its most distinguished men through a sheer inability to protect him from its criminals and lunatics and the vast vulgarity of its sensationalists, publicity-seekers, petty politicians, and yellow newspapers? It seems as incredible as it is shocking. Yet every one knows that this is exactly what has happened.

Philadelphia Inquirer—It is deeply to be regretted that this little family is forced to seek sanctuary abroad while the man who was convicted as long ago as last February of kidnaping and killing their child still lives to inspire maudlin sympathy; and while Governor Hoffman scatters doubt concerning the processes of the law.

Portland Oregonian—The Lindberghs shrink from drinking the cup of grief and terror another time. We confront our American shame more directly than ever and have full benefit of its accusing countenance. That the colonel, his tragic experience considered, has good reason to seek security in flight and self-imposed exile, scarcely can be denied.

St. Paul Pioneer Press—The last straw must have been added when Gov. Hoffman of New Jersey began to play politics with the convicted kidnaper and murderer of their child. The Lindberghs might make themselves secure from actual violence by employment of sufficient number of guards. But that is not real security. It is torture.

Trenton [N. J.] State Gazette—It is easy to believe that Gov. Hoffman's strange interest in the welfare of Hauptmann was the determining factor that influenced their decision. What reason would they have for confidence in security when the chief executive of the state manifests such extraordinary concern in the welfare of a felon convicted of the most heinous of crimes?

BRUNO APPEALS TO PARDON BODY FOR CLEMENCY

Board May Act on Case This Week.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's petition for clemency was filed with the Court of Pardons today.

The papers were sent to Albert Herman, clerk of the court, by Col. Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper of the state prison. A prison guard acted as the messenger.

Six copies of the petition were delivered. The court regulations prohibit publication of petitions, but it was understood that Hauptmann's plea mentioned new evidence. The papers also contained his answers to thirty-four specific questions which the court always asks of clemency seekers.

Governor to Set Date.

The next step is for Gov. Harold Hoffman to set a date for a meeting of the court. He has indicated the petition will be considered this week. The members of the court may confer informally the day after Christmas to decide on procedure.

There are eight members of the Court of Pardons, but it was learned today that one of them—Judge George Van Bushkirk of Hackensack—will not participate in the deliberations on Hauptmann's petition. Judge Van Bushkirk is now in Neurological hospital, New York, undergoing treatment for a nervous disorder and, although he is expected to be discharged some time this week, his physicians said he would not be in condition to take part in the Hauptmann hearing.

Governor's Special Powers.

The governor, Chancellor Luther Campbell, and the six lay judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals compose the court. A majority is required to grant any leniency and the governor must be one of those voting with the majority. Alone, he can block clemency even if all the other seven want to grant it.

Court officials explained that Van Bushkirk's absence would make no difference in the votes Hauptmann must get for leniency; that is, he still must obtain five votes including the governor.

The court may elect to hear any one it desires. It may allow the condemned man to make a personal appearance, or, as Gov. Hoffman has suggested in this case, it may go to the prison and interview him.

Execution Date Set.

Hauptmann is under sentence to die the week of Jan. 13. It has been the custom at the state prison to hold electrocutions on Tuesdays at 8 p. m., which means that Hauptmann, unless clemency or reprieve is granted, will die Jan. 14.

The governor's power of reprieve is limited to a total of ninety days from date of sentence. Sentence in Hauptmann's case was imposed Dec. 13 by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, trial judge, after the United States Supreme court had denied Hauptmann's appeal for a review.

RETIRED JEWELER IS KIDNAPED, ROBBED AS GANG FIGHTS POLICE

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Swinging a small black bag as he walked along Walnut street near McCarter highway, Newark, ten years ago, William Keer, a diamond merchant, was halted by two men, forced into a car and robbed of $75,000 in jewels which the bag contained. Today, carrying a similar bag, he was stopped at almost the same spot, only this time his abductors were interrupted by three detectives, and the bag contained only a loaf of bread and a dozen crullers.

The detectives appeared while Mr. Keer, now 70 years old and retired, was being forced into the rear seat of an automobile by two men. As they wheeled their police car and approached the two men opened fire and then fled, taking Keer with them.

Keer was found later on the floor of an abandoned car, bound hand and foot with wire and with a gag in his mouth. He said he had been robbed of his watch and chain and $35, but that the contents of the small black bag he habitually carries contained no such prize as that other bag of a decade ago.

LONDON PAPER SUGGESTS U. S. UPROOT CRIME

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 23.—"If decent Americans deplore the flight of Col. Lindbergh and his family from America as a reflection on their country, they should use their influence to uproot some, at any rate, of the causes which have led to it," the News Chronicle suggests editorially.

"The average American is neither less just nor less humane than the average Englishman, Frenchman, or German. There can be no reason why he should submit indefinitly to conditions in his public life which are capable of forcing one of his most eminent citizens, perfectly innocent of any crime, to fly the country in mere self-defense."

One Year of Married Life Agrees with Attorney, 74

One year of married life has not changed the opinion of Attorney Elmer E. Rogers of 850 East 40th street, who forsook bachelorhood last Christmas eve at the age of 73 years, that his wife, who was also 73, is the best cook in the world. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will celebrate their first wedding anniversary today. Mr. Rogers, who has lost none of his zest for sports despite his years, talked chiefly of his wife's cooking when interviewed yesterday. He is still an ardent swimming and skating fan and acts as umpire in many south side sandlot baseball games.

MILNE TO HAVE FEDERAL ESCORT FOR TIME BEING

U. S. Guards Keep Him Virtual Prisoner.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23. — [Special.]—Caleb Milne IV., who is convalescing from his recent maltreatment at the hands of abductors, will have an escort of federal men wherever he goes "for the time being," it was announced today by Harold Nathan, second in command of the federal bureau of investigation.

The young actor, who said he was held five days by kidnapers who kept him in a semi-coma by narcotic injections, is at his mother's home in Woodstock, N. Y. Nathan's men on guard there have cut him off from all outside contacts.

The government men investigated a report from Philip McMahon, clerk at a Chester, Pa., hotel, that a youth resembling Milne registered there last Tuesday night as Harry McLaughlin of Buffalo, N. Y. That was the night before a motorist found the 24 year old Milne trussed and gagged in a highway ditch near Doyleston, Pa.

The agents refused to comment after conducting an inquiry into the report, but it was said the signature on the hotel register was sent to Washington for comparison with the young actor's handwriting.

LEAKS BLAMED FOR OAK PARK WATER MIXUP

Robert F. Glaesel, chairman of the water committee of the Oak Park village board, reported last night to President James A. Howe that the recently discovered differences in the volume of water received and the amount distributed appeared to be due to leakage and to an increase in public uses. A complete survey of the water system will be made by William Thomas, village engineer, the water committee said.

An investigation was ordered after the purported discovery that Oak Park in two years had paid Chicago $73,000 for water not used by the village. The committee found, however, that the correct amount of water had passed through the meters but was lost somewhere in the village mains.

The committee said that complaints about the alleged water discrepancy had nothing to do with the resignation of Dudley C. Meyers as commissioner of public works.

TWO OTHER FATHERS TOOK CHILDREN TO EUROPE FOR SAFETY

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are not the first prominent Americans to leave this country for greater security against kidnapers.

E. L. Cord, wealthy motor and aviation executive, and Horace E. Dodge, wealthy Detroiter, both took their children abroad last year, indicating that they were perturbed by an increase in threatening letters.

Mr. Dodge was accompanied by a bodyguard when he and his two children, Delphine, 12, and Horace, 10, sailed on the Leviathan in June, 1934.

"I'm taking them where they will be safe," Mr. Dodge said.

Mr. Cord sent his family abroad under constant guard a month earlier. It was reported at the time that the kidnaping of June Robles, among others, had determined him to seek the safety of the English countryside for his four children.

DEMANDS ACTION BY CONGRESS TO DESTROY CRIME

Keyser, W. Va., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Representative Jennings Randolph [Dem., W. Va.], chairman of a special committee for the investigation of crime at the last session of congress, tonight, pointed to the departure of the Lindberghs for foreign soil and called upon "the lawmakers of the republic to declare an open season on crime."

The congressman, here for the holidays, said:

"America must act now to destroy crime.

"The congress to meet soon will fail in its duty to its citizens if it allows the justice department to remain crippled in its power to stop crime.

"This tragic incident of real, honest-to-goodness Americans being forced, by their determination to bring security to their son, to flee to foreign soil, certainly challenges the lawmakers of the republic to declare an open season on crime.

"We must provide the necessary legislation, backed with militant action, that will reassure our distinguished Col. Lindbergh that soon in this nation, again can his son have protection which should be the heritage of every American child, either rich or poor."

St. Paul Council Acts to Ban "Tobacco Road"

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The city council, whose members last night saw a presentation of the play "Tobacco Road" in Minneapolis, voted today to take legal steps if necessary to prevent its showing here. It is scheduled to open Dec. 29.

CROWE'S REFUSAL OF 'PEACE OFFER' TOLD BY LAWYER

Shunned Arbitration with Savage, Master Hears.

Former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe rejected an offer of private arbitration of his financial dispute with his former partner, Attorney Joseph P. Savage, according to the testimony yesterday of Attorney William F. McLaughlin before Master in Chancery Samuel B. Epstein, who is taking evidence in an accounting suit brought by Crowe against Savage.

McLaughlin said he called on Crowe last April as an emissary of Savage after the firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage was dissolved by the death of George E. Gorman, one of the partners, and after Crowe, on March 15, ordered Savage out of the offices and refused to discuss any division of firm assets, according to the testimony.

Tells of Rejected Offer.

"I spoke first with John Mulder, a partner in Crowe's new firm," said McLaughlin who served as an assistant state's attorney under Crowe when Savage was also an assistant and Gorman was first assistant. "He told me Crowe's new firm would take 40 per cent of the fees for winding up the pending cases, and the 60 per cent would be split three ways.

"I tried to get him and Judge Crowe [Crowe was formerly a Circuit judge] to agree on a plan wherein Crowe and Savage would divide the cases then in the office and each would give a third of the fees to the Gorman estate when collected. They would not listen to it.

"I suggested that each of them appoint an arbitrator to settle the question of the division of fees. Crowe said 'Let Savage sue for an accounting and I'll give him the filing fees; I would like to get him on the witness stand and ask questions that will run him out of town.'"

Allows Testimony in Record.

Attorneys for Crowe argued that McLaughlin's testimony was immaterial. Master Epstein ruled that as an offer of compromise the testimony was not admissible but he allowed the testimony to remain in the record because it showed an offer by Savage to continue as attorney in the cases in which the partnership had been retained.

Then James D. Rooney, executive vice president of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association, was called as a witness. He produced a canceled check for $8,000 payable to the firm of Crowe, Gorman and Savage and said it represented payment to the law firm for legal services in behalf of the coal dealers.

The check was indorsed with the law firm's name in ink and underneath was the signature of Joseph P. Savage. It is the contention of Crowe, according to his attorney, Walter Eckert, that Savage did not share the proceeds of that check with his two partners.

The hearing is to be resumed Thursday afternoon.

COUNTY'S AUTO DEATHS DROP 19 PCT. IN YEAR

Murders Decrease 34%, Coroner Reports.

Coroner Frank J. Walsh said yesterday that Cook county would end 1935 with a 19 per cent reduction in the number of automobile fatalities compared with 1934, a 34 per cent reduction in murders, a 26 per cent reduction in the number of all homocides [including murders], and an 11 per cent decrease in the number of suicides.

Making pro rata estimates for December, Coroner Walsh issued data showing the number of deaths of each sort this year, the number last year, the most recent year reporting a lower number, and the record set then. In the following table, homicides include murders:

| Cause of death—1935. | 1934. | Low yr. | Rec. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Automobiles ... 1,013 | 1,250 | 1927 | 900 |
| Murders ..... 204 | 312 | 1921 | 190 |
| Homicides ..... 373 | 509 | 1922 | 321 |
| Suicides ..... 596 | 668 | 1929 | 552 |

The coroner said the total of unnatural deaths reported to his office during 1935 [December estimated] was 3,856, which is 194—or almost 5 per cent—fewer than the 1934 total of 4,050. The total is the lowest since 1931, when 3,846 such deaths occurred.

The coroner's books show fewer automobile deaths in 1935 than in 1934 for every month except February, for which the figure is 76 both years. The record, month by month, follows:

| | 1935. | 1934. |
|---|---|---|
| January | 66 | 122 |
| February | 76 | 76 |
| March | 81 | 106 |
| April | 82 | 98 |
| May | 83 | 97 |
| June | 83 | 92 |
| July | 88 | 104 |
| August | 75 | 109 |
| September | 90 | 98 |
| October | 98 | 133 |
| November | 109 | 123 |
| December | *102 | 106 |
| | 1,013 | 1,250 |

*Estimated.

Coroner Walsh credited Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and their administrations for the reductions in automobile deaths and murders. He called attention especially to the mayor's campaign against automobile accidents, and the coöperation of the traffic courts in the campaign.

Train Hits Truck Loaded with Gifts; Three Killed

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Traffic Toll

GIRL SEES HER FATHER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Henry Van Dongen, 41 years old, 1111 West 107th street, a painter, was crushed to death last night before the eyes of his motherless daughter, Gertrude, 12 years old, as he was tying their Christmas tree to the front of his automobile.

A car driven by Elmer Riley, 21 years old, 11940 Princeton avenue, skidded and crashed into the rear of Van Dongen's auto, crushing him between his own car and a truck parked ahead. The accident occurred in front of 156 West 107th street.

Mrs. Harriet Erwin, 65 years old, 601 South Marshfield avenue, was killed by an automobile last night in front of 1100 North La Salle street. The driver, Claude T. Frazier, 626 Barry avenue, an insurance broker, was held.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 989 persons had been killed in trafic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, the coroner's office reported. In the same period 769 were killed and 17,360 were injured within the Chicago city limits.

FIGHT TO SAVE CRASH VICTIM LOST 15 HOURS

Physicians in St. Joseph's hospital at Joliet battled pneumonia yesterday in their effort to save the life of Fred Lauterbach, farmer of Plainfield township, Will county. Lauterbach's automobile ran off the Draugen road two and a half miles south of Plainfield Saturday night and for 15 hours he lay unconscious with a broken hip and other injuries before he was found by a searching party.

The automobile skidded into a 15 foot ditch and then plunged into a creek, where it was obscured by a bridge. Lauterbach was thrown clear of the car before it reached the creek. Searchers once passed the scene without discovering the car or its owner and did not return for many hours. Lauterbach's hands and feet were frozen when he was found.

BURGLAR TRAP HOLDS INTRUDER IN RADIO NET

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—A foolproof burglar detector which enmeshes an intruder in a network of radio waves from which he cannot move without giving an alarm has been designed by Thomas S. McCaleb, instructor in the Institute of Geographical exploration of Harvard university.

The instrument is so sensitive that once a burglar has entered a protected room every move he makes is registered. Thus the device is an improvement over certain types of alarm systems operated by photo-electric rays, which the intruder may evade if he is aware of their presence.

The apparatus consists of an ultra-short wave transmitter and receiver placed on opposite side of a room.

GOOD FELLOWS BEGIN DELIVERING BASKETS TODAY

There's Still Time for You to Lend a Hand.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Today, the day before Christmas, is Good Fellow's day. From 10 o'clock in the morning until late in the evening Good Fellows will carry baskets of food and toys into homes of the poor, bringing Christmas joy and cheer.

It is not too late to join the ranks of Good Fellows. Call Superior 0100 and ask for the Good Fellow department. You will be given the name of a family whose need has been definitly ascertained by social agencies—a deserving family which has been found to be so poor that the only Christmas they may expect is that to be contributed by some Good Fellow.

Still Time to Be a Good Fellow.

Any time today or even on Christmas day, tomorrow, TRIBUNE readers still may obtain names of families and their addresses from the Good Fellow department of this newspaper. Having obtained the name of a family, the voluntary Santa then goes his own way about supplying that family with what he deems proper materials for a Christmas celebration.

Perhaps some fortunate children who receive more than a stockingful of toys Christmas morning will wish to share them with some children who have received none at all. That there will be many in this group of child unforunates is evidenced by the fact that the Good Fellow department has a long list of names on hand. Each family name means, usually, several children who will not be visited by St. Nicholas and will not have even a good meal on Christmas day unless a Good Fellow makes their Christmas his own responsibility.

Special Aviation Service.

At 10 o'clock this morning TRIBUNE trucks laden with hundreds of Christmas baskets for Good Fellow families will depart from the Tribune Tower. These baskets were paid for by readers who sent in cash donations. They will be taken to the homes of the poor by employes of THE TRIBUNE. Only those families recommended for the gifts by three accredited social agencies will be remembered.

At 11 o'clock the annual Aviation Good Fellow Fund service at the Chicago airport will be held. In a dramatic precede to this moving Christmas affair, 16 pilot members will transport baskets of provisions and toys to the airport by plane from various surrounding airports. After the ceremony 186 baskets — purchased through contributions of more than $500 made by the aviation industry and others interested in aviation—will be distributed to families by the Aviation Good Fellows.

Program at the Airport.

Talks will be made at the airport by John Casey, manager of the airport and chairman of the Aviation Good Fellows; Capt. Benjamin P. Lipsner, general manager of the third annual Aviation Good Fellow fund; Dr. Irene Behnke, chairman of transportation, and Phil Maxwell, Good Fellow editor of THE TRIBUNE.

As they arrive in their planes, the various pilots bringing baskets by air will be announced over a loud speaker. Pilots and the airports they will depart from to the Chicago airport include:

Art Chester and Norman Doerr from Curtiss-Reynolds.
Cliff Condit and Bill Turgeon from Fairbanks.
Henry Juerget from Ravenswood.
Ed Brazelton, Oscar Fedkolsky, Jim Rose and Arnold Anderson from Elmhurst.
Jack Schnaidbalt from Lombard.
Ray Rupprecht from River Road.
Fred Schumacher from Harlem.
Gordon DeWitt from Ashburn.

W. A. McHale, director of the Illinois Pilots' association, Gordon Thomas and others will direct the distribution of the baskets.

Forty baskets were taken to homes where money is scant and children are many by members of the Chicago alumni of Phi Kappa Psi, national fraternity, and active members of the fraternity's chapters at Northwestern university and the University of Chicago yesterday afternoon.

The Original Good Fellow.

Previously the alumni gathered at a memorial luncheon for the late Edward C. Fitch, who was a Phi Psi at the University of Indiana in 1882. Fitch was the original Good Fellow. For years he collected money from fraternity men he knew in Chicago, bought toys, groceries, meat, and candies and took them around to poor families on Christmas eve. In 1909 it occurred to him that the Good Fellow idea might be amplified so that many persons might become givers at Christmas time, and he presented the idea to the editor of THE TRIBUNE. Out of this grew the annual Good Fellow's campaign.

Rotary to Give Baskets.

Twenty-five members of the Rotary club, under the direction of B. O. Jones, chairman of the Sunshine committee of the club for the last 24 years, yesterday packed 300 baskets with foods and candies at 168 West Monroe street. Meat and butter will be added this morning, and members in 50 automobiles will distribute them to poor families selected by club members and to 25 families whose names were provided by the Good Fellow department of THE TRIBUNE. Many members take their children along, Jones said.

Choristers sang Christmas carols in a W-G-N Good Fellow broadcast yesterday as they stood near the lighted Christmas tree between the Tribune Tower and the new W-G-N building. Directors of the choirs were Frank Bennett, Samuel Burkholder, George Carlson, Carl Craven, and David Nyvall Jr.

LEGION IS SANTA TO CHILDREN OF VETS ON RELIEF

Many Parties Cheer Unfortunates.

BY KAY HALL.

Thirty boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 8, members of families on veterans' relief rolls, handled their forks carefully at a Christmas luncheon given for them yesterday in the Hotel Sherman by the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion. Fifty entertainers from the Murray-Brown dancing school gave a program and then the boys and girls filed by Santa Claus and received presents. Outfits of shoes, underwear, sweaters, trousers and skirts were in their packages.

One little girl invited to the party had to be provided with a dress and another with a pair of shoes so they could be present.

"Such parties as these provide joys for little ones that it is impossible for the routine relief to give," said Miss Anne Joyce, director of the veterans' service of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. "Some of these young children have never known anything but life on relief."

Come from Good Families.

Miss Joyce pointed out the meticulous manners and evident good training of many of the youngsters. Thirty members of the Boy Scout troop of Eckhardt park, which is sponsored by the Advertising Men's post, also were given clothing and other gifts at the luncheon.

Seven hundred children from St. Dominic's school were given their annual party at the school hall in the afternoon by the Big Sisters. The Little Sewing Circle club distributed toys at a party for the children of St. Vincent's Orphan asylum.

Distribution of 2,500 Christmas baskets donated by County Assessor John S. Clark and Ald. Edward J. Upton [30th] began yesterday in the Thirtieth ward.

Movie Basket Parties a Success.

The "movie Christmas basket parties" held yesterday morning in 276 community theaters brought sufficient food to fill 29,000 baskets, according to Jack Miller, chairman. He said 300,000 people attended the special shows. Each theater will distribute its baskets today in coöperation with neighborhood organizations, which have selected needy families.

Several hundred children of families on relief will be entertained this afternoon at the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A.

At the Central Y. M. C. A. 100 boys and girls will gather today around a Christmas tree. Guests are selected from families whose Christmas is to be meager. Each child will go home with clothing that fits, food and toys, gifts of members of the Central "Y."

Carols in Six Tongues.

Christmas carols in six languages will be sung at 8 o'clock this evening in front of the home of William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, by 175 students of the Steinmetz High school. Students of the school have distributed 76 baskets of food to families this week.

All county institutions will have special dinners and celebrations tomorrow. Forty-two boys at the Arden Shore camp of Lake Bluff will have Christmas day dinner with officers at the Great Lakes naval training station.

An outdoor community Christmas tree at 47th street and South Park way will be the scene of a songfest by several thousand colored residents of that section on Thursday night after Christmas, according to Samuel E. White, executive secretary of the south central community council. Numerous colored and interracial organizations are sponsoring the program of Christmas music.

MAYOR PARDONS 132 IN BRIDEWELL SO THEY MAY GO HOME TODAY

Christmas pardons, signed by Mayor Kelly, will be issued at 4 p. m. today to 132 prisoners in the house of correction by Edward J. Denemark, superintendent. The fortunate inmates were chosen from a list of minor offenders prepared by Denemark and presented to the mayor for approval. A Christmas dinner will be given each departing prisoner. There are approximately 2,500 prisoners in the institution.

Judge J. M. Braude in the Boys' court freed fifty-six boys serving sentences of ten days to four months in the Bridewell and gave each boy a silver dollar. Police prevented release of a fifty-seventh youth by describing him as the "Jesse James of the Rogers Park district" and asserting his incarceration had reduced petty crime 50 per cent in Rogers Park.

NIGHT PRENATAL CLINIC IS OPENED BY DR. BUNDESEN

Forty-two expectant mothers were examined in the free night prenatal clinic which was opened last night at 6312 Wentworth avenue by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. It is the first free night clinic for expectant mothers in the city and is believed by board of health officials to be the first in the country.

By having access to a night clinic the expectant mothers who are working will attend more frequently, as will the mothers of children who cannot leave them at home unless the fathers are there to look after them, said Dr. Luella Nadelhoffer, who is director of the board of health's prenatal clinics.

Among the expectant mothers was one who buried her baby, youngest of three children, the previous day, and another who put her four children to bed early before coming to the clinic, as they had no coal in the house.

POISONING CALLED SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Beulah Sachs, 32 years old, who swallowed poison last Friday in her apartment at 3909 Sheridan road. Mrs. Sachs died in the county hospital Saturday where her name was given as Mary Rodgers.

HOLIDAY BUYING HERE REPORTED BEST SINCE 1930

Loop Merchants Arrange Carolers' Parade Today.

Christmas spending in Chicago this year exceeds that of any year since 1930, and the volume of transactions approaches the number of sales in 1929 and 1930, according to estimates made yesterday by merchants. Their estimates placed the increase over 1934 variously 5 to 15 per cent for the entire city.

Price levels are lower than they were six years ago, several retailers pointed out; otherwise the dollar outlay of shoppers during the season which closes today would compare favorably with dollar totals of 1929 and 1930.

Parade to Move Out at 10:15.

In appreciation of business improvement, loop merchants have arranged a parade of carolers in horse-drawn vehicles this morning. The singers will start at State street and Wacker drive at 10:15 o'clock and proceed south in State to Congress street, where they are to turn and retrace their path to Wacker.

Carolers from the Little French school, all children of prominent families, will ride in a coach and four. Among the groups in line will be Senn high school's A Capella choir and the Chicago theater's Mastersingers.

The convergence of throngs this winter in the shopping district is evident from records of the Chicago Surface Lines, which reports a 5 per cent increase in holiday trafic this year over last and a 15 per cent gain over 1932.

Necessary Goods Sell Heavily.

In comparing purchases this season with those in prosperous times before the depression, merchants comment that shoppers buy a larger proportion of necessaries, such as wearing apparel, than they once did. The sale of jewelry and other luxury goods, while relatively brisk, is far below the volume of five years ago, but toys are in especial demand. Toy sales are put at 25 to 45 per cent greater than last year's.

According to wholesalers here, Chicago is one of the brightest retail centers in the country. Several other larger markets, including New York, barely will exceed the 1934 volume of retail business.

PLANE CATCHES FIRE; PASSENGER SAVED BY PILOT

KENORA, Ont., Dec. 23.—(AP)—How an airplane caught fire 1,500 feet in the air and an unconscious passenger was dragged to safety after the pilot had "sideslipped" desperately to a landing on a small, frozen lake, was related here tonight.

Pilot Charles Robinson took off from Red Lake, 120 miles north of here, last Saturday with Gus Johnson, a miner, as a passenger. Over a small lake, smoke entered the passenger cabin and Johnson attracted the attention of Robinson, who immediately began to slideslip the plane to safety.

As the machine was coming down flames burst through into the cabin and Johnson pushed the bag containing his clothes into the hole made by the flames. Then the bag caught fire and Johnson was overcome by the smoke. Robinson made a hurried landing and, opening the door of the cabin, found his passenger unconscious. He pulled him to safety and both men made their way here.

ST. PETERSBURG'S ADVERTISING AND TOURISTS TARDY

Chamber Blames One for the Other.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—This winter resort, especially favored by vacationists from the Great Lakes states, is not sharing to its fullest the tourist trade boom that is reckoned to bring 600 million dollars to Florida this season. Arrivals from the north have been heavy during the last few days, but the total since Nov. 1 and the total since Dec. 1 are below comparable figures of last year.

The chamber of commerce here, which studies and nurses the tourist trade as carefully as a private corporation watches purchases and sales, explains the local slack by the community's delinquency in advertising. St. Petersburg was tardy, a chamber executive said, in telling the folks of the north about its sunshine and palm trees and it is tardy in getting its winter travel business.

Sunshine and Business.

These foregoing paragraphs may sound selfishly commercial in a newspaper soliciting resort advertising, but the information is of general interest as an aspect of the commercial development of recreational travel. The sunshine alone doesn't bring tens of thousands from the north to idle on St. Petersburg's sidewalk benches and to play bridge, hearts, horseshoes and shuffleboard under banyan, palm and Australian pine trees.

The chamber of commerce has an army of specialists employed to exploit the climate, the historical lore including 16th century Spanish explorations, the unpretentious recreational facilities and the moderately priced accommodations in 186 hotels, 1,122 apartment buildings and many of the 15,300 private residences. The permanent population of the city is 47,000, and at the peak of the winter season, within a few weeks, it has 150,000 visitors.

Hunt Up Home Towners.

One of these specialties, strange to say, consists of assembling in social clubs folks from the same city or the same state. A middle aged couple from Chicago will spend a large portion of their year's earnings for a vacation in new environment, and as soon as they are here look for fellow-Chicagoans for companionship. Nostalgia, said one of the experts, is a powerful enemy of the resort business.

Chicago, according to the chamber statistics, sends more tourists here than any other city. This same authority reports that 76 per cent of the arrivals are by automobile. It is approximately 1,300 miles here from the loop.

DISCOVER FIRE IN SHIP.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Fire was discovered in hatch No. 6 of the Grace liner Santa Rosa after the vessel docked here today on completion of a trip through the canal. A hose was run down into the hatch to extinguish the blaze.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN WANTS MORE MONEY TO CLEAR AWAY SNOW

Escanaba, Mich., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Faced by the threat of snow blockades this winter unless outside funds are provided, representatives of the road commissions of the forty-nine counties in northern Michigan will go to Lansing Jan. 14 to ask an emergency allotment of $600,000 from the state administrative board.

During the last session of the legislature a bill providing $250,000 for the upper peninsula counties for snow removal failed in the senate by three votes. During the last four years Michigan counties have been taking over township roads, but have found that the reimbursement by the state has been inadequate to finance maintenance, particularly snow removal in the north. Inability of counties to raise funds for highway purposes because of the 15 mill tax limitation amendment also has aggravated the situation.

'NEW ROMANCE' OF THELMA TODD TOLD AT INQUIRY

'Terribly in Love,' Actor's Wife Discloses.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A "marvelous romance" of Thelma Todd and an unnamed San Francisco business man was projected tonight into the investigation of the comely film actress' mysterious death.

District Attorney Buron Fitts announced he had been told of the "romance" by Ida Lupino and Margaret Lindsay, actresses, who also related that Pasquale di Cicco, Miss Todd's divorced husband had two engagements with her in the week before she died.

Miss Lupino, host at a night club party attended by Miss Todd two days before her body was found in her automobile, testified today before the grand jury.

Love Life "Terrible."

"Miss Todd asked me how my love life was coming along," Fitts quoted Miss Lupino. "I told her it was terrible; my hours at the studio were so long I had not been having any leisure time for romance.

"Then I saked her 'how's your love life coming along?'

"'Just wonderful,' she replied. 'I'm having a marvelous romance with a San Francisco business man. He's just the grandest sort of a person.' She didn't give his name."

"I believe Thelma was so gay and so happy at the party that night because she was so terribly in love," Miss Lupino continued. "She said to me: 'You know what gentlemen those San Franciscans are.' She and I had slipped away from the dance for a brief moment for a confidential chat. I just didn't think to ask her for the name of her new love."

Waits to Be Called.

The prosecutor said the actresses gave him the information while waiting to be called before the grand jury which began its investigation today.

At that hearing witnesses testified Miss Todd was seen hours after she supposedly died and that the automobile in which she was found would generate enough monoxide gas to cause death in two minutes.

The actresses told Fitts Di Cicco kept a luncheon "date" the Thursday before Miss Todd died. But he did not join her party, as scheduled, the Saturday night before his former wife's death.

"He asked me why I didn't invite him," Fitts said Miss Lupino related, "and I replied that the party was in Thelma's honor and that I thought they might be embarrassed."

Di Cicco's answer, as the actress recalled, was that he would like to attend. She said she arranged to have him seated next to Miss Todd, but that the chair was vacant all night. Later she saw him at the same café with Margaret Lindsay, actress.

Says He Saw Her.

Another witness declared today that he saw the blonde movie comedienne with an unidentified man on the Sunday morning police believe she died of monoxide poisoning.

The witness, W. F. Persson, cigar store proprietor, said two of his customers also saw the woman that morning and took particular notice of her because of her beauty. One of the customers said he saw the actress sitting on the steps of a church with the man, Persson asserted.

The cigar store proprietor said he was absolutely positive Miss Todd was the woman who came into his place at about 9 a. m. on Sunday, Dec. 15, and asked him to call a telephone number. He said he didn't recognize her at the time as Miss Todd, but told his family, when he saw the actress' pictures in newspapers, that she was the one who had come in.

Says She Appeared Upset.

"She came into the store shortly after I opened up," Persson related after he left the grand jury's closed hearing. "I was struck by her beauty. She seemed very upset and at first I thought she had a hangover or was terribly nervous about something.

"She gave me a nickel and asked me to dial a number for her. I can't remember the exchange, but the numerals were 7771. She took the phone when the bell rang and I paid no more attention to her.

"A moment later a man came in. Then I noticed she had hung up the phone. She said something to him, then asked me if I would get another number for her.

"I said I would, but I was a little embarrassed because she didn't give me another nickel and I didn't like to ask her for it. I went to the phone, but she didn't wait. They went out together."

Persson said the woman was hatless, wore a fur coat, a blue sequined dinner gown and the high heel blue shoes. He said he noticed that the shoes were a bit dirty.

Actress First Witness.

The first witness called before the jury was Miss Lindsay, brunette film actress. She was a dinner companion of Miss Todd's former husband. Miss Todd attended another party in the same restaurant that night a few hours before the time police believe she died.

The brown haired movie star from Dubuque, Ia., who fled to a week's seclusion in Palm Springs when the mystery surrounding Miss Todd's death began to rivet attention on Miss Todd's life, loves, and relations with her ex-husband, talked to Deputy District Attorney George Johnson. She told Johnson Miss Todd came to the table where she and di Cicco were sitting and asked "Pat" why he had not accepted the invitation to Miss Todd's party.

"There was no hint of anger in the conversation," Johnson reports Miss Lindsay as saying. Miss Lindsay informed the prosecutor that she and di Cicco had seen each other every Saturday night for many weeks.

"She denied, however, that they were engaged to marry," Johnson said, "or that there was any feeling between herself and Miss Todd. Miss Lindsay told the prosecutor she and di Cicco had gone to a table in another room of the night club, in order to avoid Miss Todd and her party. She purposely avoided going downstairs to that floor in an effort to spare embarrassment to Miss Todd or Miss Todd's ex-husband," the prosecutor said.

Ex-Husband to Return.

Several days ago Di Cicco assured George Rochester, foreman of the grand jury, that he will return later this week from the east to aid in the investigation.

Eighteen witnesses, including some prominent in the film colony, were subpenaed to appear today and tell their connections with the unusual case which various authorities have in turn theorized was murder, suicide and an accidental death.

Among the witnesses were Mrs. Wallace Ford, wife of the actor, who said Thelma telephoned her Sunday afternoon; Mrs. Alice Todd, mother of the comedienne; Ernest Peters, chauffeur, who drove Thelma home from the Hollywood party, and May Whitehead, colored maid, who found her body Monday morning.

West and Wife Appear.

Others were Roland West, who occupied an apartment adjoining Miss Todd's over the seaside café they owned in partnership, and West's estranged wife, Jewel Carmen, who said she saw Miss Todd in an automobile with a man Sunday evening. Mrs. West was living in the West home, on the grounds where Miss Todd died of carbon monoxide poisoning in Roland West's garage.

Exhaust fumes from Miss Todd's big phaeton nearly suffocated burly Police Lieutenant Joe Whitehead in less than two minutes yesterday in a voluntary experiment conducted in Mrs. West's garage. He said that, although the car engine was only idling, the gas filled the garage almost instantly.

Continuing their experiments, detectives learned that the sound of the running motor was almost inaudible in the sleeping quarters above the garage where Charles Smith, treasurer of the West-Todd sidewalk café, was sleeping when the actress is believed to have died.

While the witnesses were relating their impressions, Detective Captain Bert Wallis of Los Angeles city police late this afternoon said that:

"As far as police investigation is concerned the case is closed. The investigation is ended because we are convinced Miss Todd met her death by accident from carbon monoxide poisoning."

SLAYER OF HUSBAND'S SECRETARY FREED ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Etta Reisman, 35, Queens housewife who was convicted of first degree manslaughter for the slaying of her husband's secretary, was freed today under a suspended sentence of 6 to 12 years.

"I want to take my boy and go far, far away," she said after County Judge Charles S. Colden had expressed the hope that "fate will deal with you more kindly in the future." Mrs. Reisman has a 10 year old son, Elias.

Declaring she would not return to her husband, Mrs. Reisman said:

"I've taken all the punishment I can stand. I think it best that he go his way and I go mine."

IDENTIFY 12 OF 14 DROWNED IN PLUNGE BY BUS

U. S. Takes Hand in Accident Inquiry.

Hopewell, Va., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Twelve of the fourteen victims of a Greyhound bus that plunged into the icy waters of the Appomattox had been identified tonight. It was believed the names of the others would be known by the time an inquest is called Thursday.

The police announced the following list of identified dead: Mrs. Anne Duncan, Pittsboro, N. C.; Mrs. J. W. Massey, Hopewell; Capt. John Belch, Hopewell; Mrs. Ruby Mathews, Richmond; L. G. Alford, Five Points, N. C.; Mrs. Loretta Fairfax, Superior, Wis.; Miss Lillian Fairfax, Superior, Wis.; Elizabeth Fisher, colored, McKenny, Va.; Gertrude Fisher, McKenny, Va.; Martin E. Smith, Richmond; Mrs. Martin E. Smith, Richmond, and Miss Ruth P. Goodwin, Cary, N. C.

It was also believed that the police had identified the body of a woman as that of Alma Parham of New York and a second as that of Miss Laura Davie, address unknown.

A wide investigation, participated in by representatives of the interstate commerce commission, was being pressed to determine the cause of the tragedy, which occurred Sunday. With all those on board the bus drowned, the inquiry necessarily will be slow.

John L. Rogers, director of the commerce commission's motor carrier bureau, said one point which was receiving particular attention was whether the driver of the bus made any attempt to apply the brakes before the vehicle crashed into the river.

A detailed study of tire markings and the condition of brakes on the bus will be made, Rogers said, along with a post mortem examination of the physical condition of the driver.

YOUTH SOUGHT AS SLAYER ARRESTED AS STORE ROBBER

Walter Klosek, 19 years old, 1634 West 44th street, hunted since last August on a murder warant, was arrested last night. He was sought for the fatal beating of Theodore Para, 17 years old, 4418 South Honore street, in an $8 robbery at 44th and Paulina streets.

Klosek and a companion were arrested when Sergt. Joseph Jandecek of the Chicago Lawn police saw their car at 59th street and Campbell avenue and recognized the license number as that of a car used in a recent robbery. Klosek was identified as a youth who recently robbed a tea store and John Javecke, 19 years old, 4512 South Laflin street, his companion, was identified in two such robberies.

He Cries "Wolf" and Gets "Wolf" to the Tune of $20

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—James Jackson saw two boys carrying three gallons of whisky. He yelled, "The police are coming." The boys dropped the jugs and ran. When Jackson picked them up, the police did come. "Twenty dollars and costs," said the judge.

Fernekes 'Fortune' Proves to Be Just a Big Yarn

Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes had two $20 bills and a cheap second hand automobile as tangible assets at the time of his death, Jack Ruben, public administrator, announced yesterday after a two month investigation into the estate of the criminal. Fernekes ended his life by poison in a detective bureau cell when he was seized two months after his escape from Joliet penitentiary. The report of the public administrator indicated that stories of the outlaw's secret bank accounts and hidden wealth were a myth. Ruben said Fernekes' estate wouldn't amount to $2,000, most of which was property he inherited.

Field Museum to Close on Christmas and Jan. 1

Field Museum of Natural History will be closed Christmas and New Year's days. Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum, said past experience had demonstrated so few visited the museum on the two holidays that closing would cause little inconvenience to the public. Heretofore the museum has remained open every day of the year, including all holidays.

Quints Learn Tricks

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets, perhaps looking for Santa Claus, have taken to switching on lights in the middle of the night. First Yvonne stood up in bed and flipped the switch. She was moved, but Cecile learned the trick, maybe from Yvonne. Electricians are moving the switch to stop the midnight parties.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the quintuplets' physician and guardian, first had to introduce unbreakable dishes in their nursery after the girls had broken several other pieces on the floor. Only today workmen completed installation of shatterproof glass, replacing windows broken when the little sisters threw alphabet blocks to break two thinner ones.

Perhaps the girls will be better behaved Christmas day when Oliva and Elzire Dionne, their parents, and the five older Dionne children, join them in a dinner at the Dafoe hospital. It will be strictly a family affair with even Dr. Dafoe absenting himself from the hospital for the day. The little girls will see dozens of new presents, including five big dolls Shirley Temple sent them from Hollywood.

LEPMANS MAKE DEPOSITIONS IN $100,000 BALM SUIT

Depositions were made yesterday by Dr. Horace Lepman, 5555 Everett avenue, and his wife, Maude, in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought against Mrs. Lepman in the federal court by Mrs. Jay Liebmann, wife of a St. Louis physician. The depositions were taken in the offices of the law firm of Bangs, Crane & Slater, Chicago attorneys for Mrs. Liebmann, at 1 North La Salle street.

Dr. Liebmann was present yesterday and indicated that he would help the Lepmans. It was expected that the depositions would also be used in the divorce suit Mrs. Liebmann has filed in St. Louis, naming Mrs. Lepman as co-respondent. Mrs. Lepman is a sister of B. F. Lindheimer, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission.

Frank R. Gardner Seriously Ill at Highland Park Home

Mrs. Esther Gardner said her husband was stricken with a heart attack three weeks ago. Their son, John Hoyt Gardner, who is in business in Bay City, Mich., has been sent for, and their daughter, Dorothy, is now at home. Mr. Gardner is being attended by Dr. W. L. Winters.

SCHOOL BUDGET MILLION UNDER 1935'S OUTLAY

Teachers' Pay As Is; More Money for Buildings.

The tentative 1936 school budget estimates were submitted to the board of education for consideration at a special meeting yesterday. The budget continues the economy régime institute by the new board appointed by Mayor Kelly in 1933. The first public hearing on it is to be held at 10 a. m., Jan. 6.

The appropriations provided for in the tentative budget submitted yesterday total $70,271,118, a figure $1,028,199 below the 1935 appropriations of $71,299,318.

The greatest single saving is to be found in the bond redemption and interest fund, which in 1935 was obliged to cover heavy payments on maturing bonds. This item in the 1936 budget is $6,021,541 smaller than for the previous year, according to James H. McCahey, president of the school board.

More for Construction.

The only major increase in the 1936 budget is in the building department, the building fund showing an increase of $3,504,000.

No provision is made in the tentative budget for restoration of the teachers' pay and hour cuts. Under the present economy program teachers receive monthly salaries 15 per cent lower than formerly, and they teach only nine months instead of ten.

They are expected to voice their demands for old-time salaries at the hearing next month. Several of their organizations, it is said, have contended that the pay slashes should be restored as soon as possible, and that professional thoroughness in instruction requires ten months work a year.

Operate on Present Basis.

"The Budget of 1936 for current expenses of the educational fund is substantially the same as last year when expenditures for operating the schools were kept within the budget," Mr. McCahey said.

"The budget figures for 1936 will allow the schools to continue to operate on the same basis as last year and also provide for the normal expansion and the expansion which will ensue as a result of the construction of new schools and additions during 1936."

Individuals or groups who expect to testify at the hearings may study the tentative budget at the board offices. Five copies have been placed on the available list in the office of the secretary of the board. The budget is due for passage about Jan. 15.

LONELY ISLE ROYALE RESIDENTS HAVE LAST MAINLAND CONTACT

Houghton, Mich., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Residents of lonely Isle Royale, northernmost Michigan island, had their last contact of the winter with the mainland today when the coast guard cutter Crawford left Siskiwit bay after delivering a cargo of supplies and medicine for the colony.

The Crawford yesterday plowed its way through a five inch ice sheet to dock in the harbor. The cutter made the voyage from its base at Two Harbors, Minn.

The cargo consisted of supplies for residents, 75 timber workers wintering on the island, and for state conservation department workers trapping moose there.

At Lansing, Dr. C. D. Barret of the state health department said he had sent a supply of diphtheria, scarlet fever, and tetanus anti-toxins to Dr. Anthony Curreri, in charge of the island hospital. The shipment, he said was a routine procedure each year and no outbreak of illness had been reported.

The cutter Crawford also carried the last mail of the year to the island residents.

AVERS PENSION ACT WILL CLOSE ALL POORHOUSES

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare, said today that a survey of one Illinois congressional district indicated to him that as soon as the old age pension system is in full operation, it will be possible to close permanently nearly all the poorhouses in the state.

The survey was made in the 24th district, which includes the mining county of Saline and the primarily rural counties of Clay, Edwards, Massac, Hamilton, Gallatin, Wayne, Hardin, Johnson, White, and Pope. In these counties, Bowen said, the department found 21 per cent of all relief clients were over 65 years of age.

He said his workers found that in most of the counties the almhouses had only a handful of inmates, some of them less than 15.

"It will, of course," he said, "be far too expensive to continue the almhouse for such a small group, and if the institutions are not closed altogether, it will at least be possible to consolidate several counties' remaining cases in one home."

Courtney Works Hard, but Is Dined on 41st Birthday

Yesterday was the forty-first birthday of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. He conducted the business of his office as usual in his quarters at the Criminal courts building. "I cannot let a birthday interfere with the regular business of the office," he said. He received scores of congratulatory telegrams and many flowers, including a piece from his staf. An informal dinner was given for him yesterday afternoon at the Chicago Athletic club by a group of political friends.

DECISION OF HIGH COURT MAY SAVE CITY 10 MILLIONS

Interest on Condemnation Awards Is Limited.

City officials were notified yesterday that the Illinois Supreme court has handed down an opinion which may save the city $10,000,000.

The opinion held that the city does not have to pay interest on awards granted the owners of property condemned for public purposes until after it takes possession of the property, regardless of the interval of time involved.

Previous Decision Reversed.

By this decision the Supreme court reversed its previous ruling in a case started by Nathan R. Feldman. In 1925 Feldman was awarded $33,000 by the Municipal court as compensation for a strip of property he owned which was condemned in the widening of Clinton street between Harrison street and Roosevelt road.

The $33,000 was paid by the city 18 months after the judgment award. Feldman demanded interest for this period and won a $2,762 judgment in the Municipal court. This was reversed in the Appellate court and Feldman carried the issue to the Supreme court.

City Wins in Rehearing.

The high court found for Feldman but the city asked a rehearing. It was in this rehearing that the court reversed itself, ruling out the interest charge.

The estimate that the new decision means a $10,000,000 saving to the city was made by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, who pointed out that 236 similar suits for interest on condemnation awards are now on file in the Municipal, Circuit, and Superior courts. Hodes remarked, however, that Feldman's attorneys have the right to ask another rehearing and that the case cannot be considered finally terminated until this possible action is concluded.

600 ETHIOPIANS DIE AS ITALIANS CAPTURE VALLEY

Defenders Put to Flight by Aerial Attack.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The death of more than 600 Ethiopians and the wounding of 1,000 more was reported by the Italian high command tonight as a result of yesterday's fighting in the Temblen mountain region which ended with an Ethiopian flight up Tonqua valley.

An official communique said only five white Italian officers were killed and three officers and 100 native troops wounded, although the Italians were pitted against 5,000 enemy warriors entrenched on a mountain ridge behind the town of Mariam Quorar.

Battle Hand to Hand.

The main body of Ethiopians held the ridge back of a Coptic church and a collection of mud huts forming the town. Reinforcements were coming up when the Ethiopians attempted to turn the Italian flank.

Extremely high Ethiopian losses resulted from an "exceptional" Italian aerial bombardment, the communique said. A squadron of planes machine-gunned the ranks of the defenders, returning time after time to the attack.

Meanwhile the Italian troops climbed the precipitous slopes, from bush to bush and rock to rock, to engage the Ethiopians in battle. The tribesmen concentrated their fire on the white officers, the high command said.

Lose Rich Valley.

The battle was considered significant because the Ethiopians were strongly intrenched on a mountain ridge and controled a fertile, 30 mile square plain where much corn and other food is raised.

The Italian high command expected the seizure of this source of supply would hamper the enemy greatly and possibly force them to quit the Tembien mountain region for good. They have put up a desperate fight for this area.

Officers said the Italian artillery achieved its first importance of the campaign, covering the Italian counter attack effectively with a barrage reminiscent of the world war.

Carry Gifts by Plane.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY AT MAKALE, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The Christmas spirit has reached the war zone and hovers over the barbed wire entanglements behind which thousands of Italian troops are massed.

Many boats have arrived from Italy in the last few weeks, jammed with gayly wrapped packages. By degrees these filtered to the front, where many soldiers are spending their first Christmas away from home.

Four airplane flights have been arranged for the transmission of gifts and holiday greetings. Making speedy flights, the planes are leaving Asmara one day and arriving in Rome the next day.

Part of the Italian troops in the lowlands near ports will be able to celebrate Christmas eve in the traditional southern Italian way—by eating eels.

Arrange Field Masses.

The troopers have sent thousands of presents home, chiefly little gold Coptic crosses and other gold-plated ornaments the Ethiopians wear.

Military chaplains have arranged vast field Christmas masses for the soldiers. Field altars will be erected on Christmas eve and the tinkle of the altar bell will carry through the mountain air.

The Ethiopians also observe Christmas, but their principal celebration is in January, one corresponding to Epiphany. Their chief gift giving is to priests and the most important gift giver, they say, is Emperor Haile Selassie, who sends presents even to Coptic churches in the Italian colony of Eritrea.

BRITAIN, FRANCE BUILD DEFENSE AGAINST ITALY

War Chiefs of Both Nations Meet.

was proved conclusively in 1915 when the allies attempted, with complete failure, to force the Dardanelles.

There was a feeling in official circles that France would not be inclined to support Turkey's fortification request because it would necessarily involve treaty revision.

Laval also discussed Mediterranean aid plans with Nicolas Socrate Politis of Greece, and saw Vittorio Cerruti, the Italian ambassador. He was understood to have told Cerruti that he could not undertake to negotiate new peace terms.

Hope Rains Will Halt War.

In usually informed quarters a French hope that Ethiopian rains soon will halt Italy's war, obviating the necessity for league of nations oil sanctions, was disclosed.

Other sources disclosed that soviet Russia is seeking a 1,000,000,000 franc [about $66,000,000] loan in this country to finance soviet purchases from French factories.

Whether or not the proposed purchases involve war materials was not made known.

'SPOKESMAN' OF ITALY LOSES JOB AS PRESS AGENT

ROME, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The "official spokesman," often quoted as giving newspaper men their information in the ministry of press and propaganda, went on his Christmas vacation tonight.

He is not expected to return.

The "spokesman's" place will be taken by "authoritative sources" or some other phrase to indicate that information is well founded.

In other words, the Italian government has forbidden the use of the term "official spokesman" in press dispatches.

ITALY ATTACKED BY AUSTRIAN PAPER FOR PUNISHING A BISHOP

VIENNA, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The semi-official newspaper Weltblatt, heretofore reflecting the Austrian government's attitude of extreme friendliness toward Italy, vigorously attacked today the actions of Italian officials in the south Tyrol region of Italy.

The newspaper, the mouthpiece of the Catholic church in Austria, said the Italians had placed a military guard over Bishop Johannes Geisler of Brixen because, in a pastoral letter, he had advised priests not to use church organizations to collect scrap iron and perform other Fascist functions.

"Italy contends," said the Weltblatt, "that its war in Ethiopia is a battle to introduce culture and bring enlightment to barbarians. How can Italy reconcile this attitude with its action in placing restraint on a bishop who merely fulfills his duty of interrogation?"

Diplomatic quarters speculated, and other semi-official papers commented, on the likelihood of modification of Austria's official attitude toward Italy. Belief was expressed in some quarters that the appointment of Anthony Eden as British foreign secretary might result in a redefinition of Austro-Italian relations.

4 ITALIAN CAFES WRECKED BY MOB IN COLOMBIA

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 23.—Several hundred Colombians shouting "viva Ethiopia" wrecked four Italian cafés last night. They were subdued by police reserves before they succeeded in setting the cafés afire.

The trouble started when a customer and the proprietor of the Café Roma came to blows during a quarrel. Windows and electric signs were smashed by stones, furniture and fixtures were demolished and merchandise was carried away by the mob.

The police took several hours to restore order. They arrested several rioters. The large Italian colony of the city is expected to protest to the government.

ITALY WORRIED BY PLEDGES OF WAR AID TO BRITAIN

Rome Regards Eden as Menace to Peace.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Dec. 23. — After having thought things over for 24 hours the Italian press is inclined to take a less serious view of Capt. Anthony Eden's appointment as British foreign secretary than might have been expected.

Most newspapers take the view that even Eden's sanctionist zeal is likely to abate now that responsibility for shaping British foreign policy falls entirely on his shoulders. They also are of the opinion that his enthusiasm for the league of nations will cool as soon as he thoroughly realizes the intricacies and dangers of the situation. Well informed Italian quarters also express the opinion that judgment on Eden's appointment should be reserved until his intentions are revealed by his actions.

A Turn for the Worse.

These attempts to calm Italian public opinion, however, do not deceive any one. All Italians are quite aware that Eden's appointment is a severe blow to them and that the general situation in consequence has taken a decided turn for the worse. Nobody sees any possibility of a solution of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy by negotiation and the opinion is universal that Italy must now rely on the force of her arms alone to see her through.

The Italians are particularly disquieted by reports that Great Britain has approached other league members to inquire whether she can count on their support in the event an armed European conflict becomes inevitable. They are even more seriously disturbed by reports that more than one power, notably the members of the little entente [Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Czechoslovakia], Greece and Turkey have answered affirmatively.

The picture also is made more gloomy from the Italian point of view by the fact that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin has apparently thrown in his lot with the intransigent sanctionists. He is regarded here as a weak man who has always unresistingly followed what he conceived to be the opinion of the majority of his countrymen. This opinion seems justified by Baldwin's conduct in the Italo-Ethiopian war, for he has changed from severe application of the league covenant to an attempt to satisfy Premier Mussolini's demands, then back again to a policy of sanctions.

Aware of Danger to Peace.

Now, however, that the British people have unmistakably declared themselves in favor of making no concessions to Italy, no hope is seen that he will be very powerful as a moderating influence on Eden.

Every one realizes that with Eden at the head of the foreign office energetic prosecution of the campaign in East Africa cannot but result in the application by the league of more serious coercive measures. The Italians are aware that this in its turn will almost certainly mean a return of the dangerous international tension that brought Europe to the verge of war not so many weeks ago.

The Italians are again looking to France as the only power capable of removing the threat of war from Europe. It is believed that if France promises her support unreservedly to Britain for a policy of extreme sanctions then anything may happen and war will immediately be brought within the realm of possibility.

The Italians hope France will refuse to do so. The Italians do not believe Premier Laval will take any step likely to bring France into war with Italy. It is argued that both Britain and Italy are well armed and that these two countries are France's potential allies in the event of a conflict with Germany. France, the Italians suggest, may therefore be relied upon to do her best to prevent her two friends from coming to blows.

Ethiopia Celebrates Appointment.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

DESSYE, Ethiopia, Dec. 23.—Great satisfaction is felt at the military headquarters of Emperior Haile Selassie over the appointment of Anthony Eden as the British foreign secretary. It is taken as a sign that the league of nations' policy not only prevails in Great Britain but will be enforced elsewhere.

The appointment was celebrated this evening by a dinner for representatives of the press at Dessye, given by the emperor's secretary.

The recent Ethiopian victory near Dembeguina Pass, together with Italian inactivity on all fronts, has increased Ethiopian confidence. Already nearly half the dry season has passed and the Italian objectives are still far from attainment.

BRITISH DISCOVER U. S. AND FRANCE BOOSTED THEIR SALES TO ITALY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The British are making a check-up on how sanctions are working. They find the United States and France both sold more goods to Italy in November this year than in October or November of 1934. London papers today emphasized the American trade increase with Italy.

But France also, in spite of sanctions, exported more to Italy during November than in October and more than in November of last year, the British discovered to their annoyance. Last November, France according to figures published here, sent about $4,500,000 worth of goods to Italy, compared with $3,400,000 worth in October and $3,300,000 worth in November of 1934.

This year the rise in French exports to Italy was greater than to any other country. French imports of Italian goods in November were greater than last year. They amounted to more than $3,000,000, compared with $2,800,000 the previous year.

Italy Again Accuses Foe of Firing Dumdum Bullets

GENEVA, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The league of nations received another communication from Italy today alleging that dumdum cartridges were found in Ethiopian depots on the southern front. The Italian communication said the cartridges came from an English firm.

EGYPT PREPARES FOR ACTION ON LIBYAN BORDER

Orders 1,200 Troops to Extend Term of Duty.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 23.—Following the announcement that the Egyptian cabinet intends to keep 1,200 soldiers, who were due to be released from the army to go into the reserves, with the colors for six months longer, Cairo today buzzed with rumors of military events on the western desert frontier.

The conscript contingent, which was ordered to remain with the colors, was due for release after five years of service, after which a discharged Egyptian soldier is considered in the active reserve for five years more. No secret was made of the fact that this exceptional measure was a retort to the renewed Italian threat on Egypt's western frontier which was caused by Premier Mussolini's reported intention to send another division of troops to Libya.

Deny Border Crossed.

The first flurry of alarm was caused by a report that an Italian patrol yesterday crossed the Egyptian-Libyan border from Libya near the Siwa oasis and fired on Egyptians and that the fire was returned. Anxiety was increased by a further report that the whole civilian population was evacuated from Marsa Matruh, main Egyptian military base on the western desert, on the coast half way between Alexandria and the Libyan border.

Both rumors, THE TRIBUNE was informed on the best authority, are absolutely untrue, but it is true that the British and Egyptian officers and noncommissioned officers are sending their wives and families away from Marsa Matruh.

Closer to Britain.

The spread of rumors indicates the state of mind of Cairo where the worst developments in the Anglo-Italian tension are expected and where Egypt expects to become the cockpit in a war.

One result is that Egyptian leaders and the Egyptian press are urging a speedy conclusion of a treaty with Great Britain in order that Egypt will be able to take its place at Great Britain's side with the full dignity of an ally.

The argument that the Egyptians will fight eagerly if treated decently, or otherwise they will sulk, is being used to impress the British. Egypt's hopes were further raised by the appointment of Capt. Anthony Eden as British foreign secretary, on account of his reputation of liberalism.

Capt. Eden's Quick Rise to Foreign Chief a British Epic

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Young Capt. Robert Anthony Eden, who holds the world's attention today as Great Britain's new foreign secretary, has had a singularly rapid rise in the diplomatic field. At the comparatively youthful age of 38 he has been invested with responsibilities that may turn the present world crisis to widespread war or peace. He is the youngest foreign minister since the earl of Granville, at 36, held the post in 1851. Lord Rosebery was two months older than Eden when he first held the post in 1886.

Little was heard of the handsome, impeccably dressed Capt. Eden prior to the last couple of years, but in that short time he soared to prominence as a result of his brilliant handling of special assignments in his country's foreign affairs. This summer he became England's roving envoy on a 3,500 mile peace pilgrimage throughout continental Europe, an undertaking so strenuous it broke his health for several weeks.

Served in World War.

Eden was born June 12, 1897, the son of Sir William Eden, seventh baronet. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church college, Oxford, and received his B. A. degree and first class honors in 1922 for his study of oriental languages. The following year he married Beatrice Helen Beckett, daughter of Hon. Sir Gervase Beckett, first baronet. They have two sons.

His army title came from his captaincy of the King's Royal Rifle corps. He saw four years of service in the world war with his regiment, as a general staf officer, and as a brigade major—before his 21st birthday.

Eden entered parliament in 1923 at 26 and in 1924 and 1925 was parliamentary private secretary to the under secretary of state for home affairs, who was then Mr. G. Locker-Lampson. From 1926 to 1929 he was parliamentary private secretary to the secretary of state for foreign affairs, then Sir Austen Chamberlain. Later, as an undersecretary of foreign affairs, he represented Britain at the disarmament conference at Geneva.

On Jan. 1, 1934, Eden was raised to lord privy seal, succeeding Stanley Baldwin, who retained the title of lord president of the council. Eden's strenuous tour of European capitals early this summer was made under his title of lord privy seal. In June this year there was created for him the special ministry for league of nations affairs. His appointment to succeed the unsuccessful Sir Samuel Hoare as foreign secretary was announced by Prime Minister Baldwin on Sunday.

The youthful diplomatic ace has held strong convictions concerning Britain's foreign policies and has had the courage to speak his mind about them. His pleasing personality and disarming frankness won him the friendliness of nearly all his foreign confréres, except Mussolini, during his peace pilgrimage. At Rome the envoy was received and permitted to depart in an air of coldness.

Eden emphatically declared himself against a policy of isolation or one of separate and selective alliances for Great Britain. He pointed to the United States' inability to stay out of the world war as proof of the impotency of a policy of isolation. He declared that England always would be on the side of the collective system against any government or people who seek to break up peace.

Has Faith in League.

Capt. Eden's attitude has been that while he hopes for world peace via disarmament, his advice to his country is that its powder be kept dry and its armaments be inventoried.

While serving as England's minister for league of nations affairs the young Briton developed a great faith in the league's supposed ability to settle the world's international difficulties. He asserted last spring that peace and security only can be obtained by a collective system and the only practical form of such a system in existence today is the league of nations.

He is a polished debater and mediator. It is expected he will now curtail his travels and direct foreign affairs from London through Britain's embassies abroad.

DYING MAN ASKS WIFE TO PLAY AT CHURCH CANTATA

Uniontown, Pa., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Charles Henry Gerwig knew he was dying but he did not want to disrupt the Christmas cantata at the church where his wife is organist.

He whispered on his death bed:

"Please go through with it, Ethel."

Mrs. Ethel Roden Gerwig was at the organ last night as the choir of the Third Presbyterian church presented the beautifully solemn program.

Gerwig, himself an organist in another church, died after returning home from his own Christmas rehersal.

The wife replied to church officials who offered to cancel the cantata:

"It was his last request when he knew he was going. And I'll go through with it."

30 MINERS START HOME WITH GOLD; 13 ARE DROWNED

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The Christmas homecoming of 30 miners, bearing pokes of holiday gold from the British Guiana gold fields, ended in tragedy Sunday.

Word of the disaster reached Georgetown today from the 18 survivors, among them the captain of the little craft. They swam to shore, but lost most of their gold and were reported virtually destitute, awaiting transportation at an isolated village far up the river.

HORNER PLEADS FOR 12 MILLION IN RELIEF CRISIS

Asks Roosevelt to Aid State Unemployables.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—The relief crisis facing Illinois on Jan. 1 was outlined to President Roosevelt at the White House today by Gov. Henry Horner. At the end of a fifty minute conference Horner said the President had promised an immediate study of the Illinois situation.

During the conference Horner pleaded for 12 million dollars of federal funds to care for state employables who did not receive jobs under the 4 billion dollar Works Progress administration. His request contemplated an increase in the Illinois job quota from 200,000 to 265,000, or a flat grant of 12 million dollars for relief purposes.

Blames WPA Program.

Gov. Horner said he told the President that the failure of the WPA program to provide for as many persons as had been expected is responsible for the impending crisis. Government promises, he said, had indicated that only 65,000 families would be left to the care of the state.

"As a matter of fact the actual number of families left to the state is 130,000," the governor said. "To provide for these families we have only 2 million dollars from the 3 per cent state sales tax and a carryover of $800,000 from December relief funds.

"The total is insufficient. Relief needs for January alone will be about 5 million dollars. We also must have more funds to meet costs after Feb. 1. I believe our estimate of 12 million dollars is conservative.

"Illinois can't take care of the relief load before it. That was the burden of my plea during the entire conference. I could have talked in that vein all day, but the President has other appointments."

Omit Political Discussion.

Horner said the President listened with deep interest to his recital of the state's plight. He said Mr. Roosevelt expressed himself as appreciating the seriousness of the impending crisis and had said he would look into it at once. No definite answer was given on the 12 million dollar request, Gov. Horner said.

The governor said the conference was devoted exclusively to relief and did not involve any discussion of the Illinois political situation. He said he had no other appointments on the Illinois problem. He did not meet with WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins or the latter's midwestern director, Howard Hunter.

Departs for Chicago.

Asked if the President had discussed with him the appointment to the vacancy in the federal Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago, Horner said the appointment was not mentioned. Pressed on reports that he was being considered for the post, Horner said it had not been offered to him and added that he would not accept the appointment because he is a candidate for reëlection.

The governor left for Chicago at 4:30 in the afternoon. He said he was going to Chicago rather than to Springfield because he has a cold and will visit his physician in the morning.

BORAH AND KNOX HOLD A CONFAB IN WASHINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Two contenders for the Republican presidential nomination, Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] and Frank Knox of Chicago, talked together for an hour and a half today, but were silent when they parted. The confereace was held in the senator's office.

"I came here to wish Senator Borah a merry Christmas," explained Knox as he left the office. He said they talked policies rather than politics.

Borah said he and Knox had been friends for 20 years and that no especial significance should be attached to a friendly call.

The interview was similar to that between Borah and Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas, another Republican possibility, last week.

SUPREME COURT READY TO PASS ON GUFFEY COAL ACT

Date for Review Has Yet to Be Set.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Less than a month after the Guffey coal socialization act went into effect, and with its enforcement machinery still to be set up, the Supreme court today agreed to pass on the constitutionality of the law.

The court's action will provide a decision at an unprecedently early date and was interpreted in some quarters as indicating the court's cognizance of efforts to provide for speedy tests of any act's constitutionality.

The government and Kentucky soft coal producers who are contesting the act had asked a review of the legislation without waiting for the Court of Appeals to rule on decisions by federal District courts. The high court agreed to the elimination of action in the Appeals court to hasten a final ruling.

Believed to Set a Precedent.

In important cases, the Supreme court has permitted this "short cut" before, but lawyers could remember no act which was permitted a hearing in the high court only three weeks after it went into effect and before it actually was being enforced.

The court's final decision will hinge upon the date set for oral arguments. This date probably will be set Jan. 6 when the court meets before the holiday recess and when several decisions affecting New Deal legislation are expected to be handed down.

The Guffey act sets up machinery similar to the defunct NRA to regulate the soft coal industry. A prohibitory tax is imposed on all producers who do not agree to abide by government regulation.

Rush Wagner Law Decision.

The labor relations board asked the Philadelphia Circuit Court of Appeals today to help speed the Wagner labor disputes act to the Supreme court for a final test of its constitutionality.

To this end the board urged the Philadelphia court to hear argument in January on a case involving the Pennsylvania Greyhound lines so that a decision could be appealed to the highest tribunal in time for a final ruling before the summer recess.

At the same time the board announced it would appeal to another Circuit court from the decision of Federal District Judge Merrill E. Otis at Kansas City, who held Saturday that the act was invalid.

Test on "Lindbergh Law."

The court today set Jan. 13 for oral arguments in the first case before it, involving the Lindburgh kidnap law. The case involves the appeal of Arthur Gooch of Texas, who has been condemned to death for kidnaping two Texas officers.

The court will be asked to decide if holding an officer to avoid arrest is within the meaning of the phrase "held for ransom or reward or otherwise," and whether it is an offense under the act to kidnap and transport a person in interstate commerce for the purpose of avoiding arrest.

DRYMALSKI ASSUMES OFFICE AS MEMBER OF TAX APPEALS BOARD

Paul Drymalski, a school board trustee was inducted into office yesterday as a member of the county board of tax appeals.

Later in the day Mr. Drymalski submitted his resignation from the school board and Mayor Kelly immediately announced he would appoint Bernard Majewski to fill the vacancy. Mr. Majewski's position on the Chicago Exposition authority, of which he is a member, will be filled later, said the mayor. Mr. Majewski, who is 40 years old, is vice president and director of the Deep Rock Oil company. He lives at 5459 Cullom avenue.

Mr. Drymalski fills the position on the tax appeal board left vacant by the death of Fred Brummel on Dec. 4. Since Mr. Brummel's death, Emmett Whealan, the other member of the tax appeal board, had been unable to function as no rulings are valid without the concurrence of both members.

The induction ceremonies for Mr. Drymalski were held in County Judge Jarecki's chambers. Among those present were James B. McCahey, president of the school board, and Superior Judge Peter H. Schwaba. Mr. Drymalski said he intended to "go right down to my new office and get to work."

Mr. Drymalski is 58 years old and lives with his wife and three sons at 3650 North Harding avenue. He is president of the Polonia Coal company, treasurer of the Illinois Athletic club and a member of the executive committee of the Catholic charities. He was appointed a school board trustee in 1933.

Hearings on complaints to the 1934 real estate assessments will be resumed Thursday morning before the tax appeal board.

Prefers 150 Years Prison to Few Seconds in Chair

Kewanee, Ill., Dec. 23.—(AP)—It took Albert Ross, 26, two minutes today to decide that he would rather be sentenced to 150 years in prison than to death in the electric chair. Ross was given his choice of penalties by Judge W. R. Hunter after he entered a plea of guilty to the murder of William Ziems, 76 year old grocer, in a robbery Nov. 4.

85,000 WILL GET $2,500,000 WPA PAY FOR HOLIDAY

Cut Through Red Tape to Give Cash to Workers.

A Christmas pay roll of 85,000 checks totaling approximately $2,500,000 will be made out by tonight to enable Works Progress administration workers to celebrate the holiday, according to an announcement yesterday by Robert J. Myers, director of WPA finances for Illinois.

Cutting through red tape and substituting messenger service for the mails to save time, the pay roll and paymasters' departments have further speeded up by working evenings and Sunday. The goal set by Deputy Administrator Ralph H. Burke last week in accordance with orders from Washington was to make Christmas payments to workers whose pay roll periods ended last Thursday.

Result of the Speeding Up.

"Not only has this been done," Mr. Myers said, "but wherever possible we are getting checks into the hands of those whose pay roll periods ended Friday, Saturday, and today. Ordinarily checks are not distributed until a week after the pay roll periods close."

The checks are for half a month's pay and average about $30 each.

Meanwhile the Illinois Emergency Relief commission was undertaking to determine the effects of cash relief in Cook county during the last few weeks, in view of a proposal to replace commodity orders with cash relief throughout the state. Leo M. Lyons, Cook county relief administrator, instructed the supervisor of each relief station to furnish him with a report on the subject.

Ask Facts on Situation.

"We are asking data as to the number of families in the county who have requested to be returned to the disbursing order plan from the cash plan, together with the reasons for these requests," Mr. Lyons said. "Supervisors will also furnish figures on the number of families who have been returned to the disbursing order plan on the recommendation of case workers, with the reasons for transfer."

The study will include data on the number of complaints received from any source as to the misuse of cash relief, and the effect of cash relief on the purchase of milk.

Several members of the IERC said at a meeting last Friday that they had been informed of cases where the cash dole was being spent for liquor.

U. S. JUDGE BARS PWA LOAN FOR POWER PLANT

Greenville, S. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—United States District Judge H. H. Watkins today enjoined Greenwood county, S. C., and the PWA from construction of a publicly owned hydro-electric plant at Buzzard Roost on the Saluda river.

The petitioner was the Duke Power company, which contended the PWA contract to lend $2,800,000 to Greenwood county for the project was an unlawful governmental invasion of private business which would destroy the power company's vested interests.

It was the second time Judge Watkins had granted the injunction in what is regarded by the PWA as an important test of its right to lend money for publicly owned power plants.

Greenwood county and the PWA appealed the previous decision and the Circuit Court of Appeals remanded the case for rehearing because a new contract for the loan had been signed subsequent to Judge Watkins' decision.

WPA TO PUT 6,500 OUTHOUSES ON AN UP TO DATE BASIS

Specialists to Take Air Conditioning to Farm.

The Illinois Works Progress administration, according to an announcement yesterday, has launched a program in the name of social uplift, health, and made-work, to build 6,500 "air-conditioned outhouses" on farms in central and southern Illinois.

Funds amounting to $227,900 have been alloted to this project, all of which will be spent for labor and supervision, since the cost of materials is to be borne by the farmers.

"Some of the outstanding features of the approved outhouse," reads WPA's descriptive literature on the subject, "are a concrete floor, a properly ventilated pit, and ventilated building. The finished structure provides for a fly-tight, rodent-proof unit set over a five foot pit, free from surface drainage and practically odorless.

"It has been demonstrated that this method of sanitating outhouses of homes, schools, churches, and other places not served by sewers, is remarkably inexpensive and satisfactory to the property owner."

A Big Problem: Location.

Two WPA officials expressed, privately, some pessimism over the project yesterday.

"You see, there are official outhouse 'locators,' representatives of the state department of health which is sponsor of the project," said one of these officials. "The 'locators' decide where each outhouse is to be built on the basis of sanitation, not of convenience. If they have it built 300 feet away from the house—well, the owner must just make the best of it."

He said that 93 per cent of the outhouses were being built in southern Illinois because in that area infant mortality due to typhoid exceeds that elsewhere in the state.

"I've been connected with federal 'uplift projects' for two years," said the second WPA official. "I can tell you what will happen to many of these nice, white, outhouses with shingled roofs.

Vandalism Out In Back.

"One day a poor farmer will discover he needs some shingles to repair the roof of his house; he will go right out and take them off the outhouse. Later he'll find he's short on firewood; he'll take the door off the outhouse and burn it. 'Why not?' is the way he will figure—'my pappy and my grandpappy didn't have fancy trimmings and it didn't hurt 'em. Fact is they didn't even have any sort of an outhouse. Thousands of these people are just like that."

Outhouses previously have been built with federal funds, on a less ambitious scale, under the Civil Works administration and the Illinois Emergency Relief commission's work program.

LANDON'S YULE MESSAGE SEES 1936 AS CRISIS

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Alf M. Landon, Republican governor of Kansas often mentioned as a presidential possibility, today tersely summarized his conception of the political struggle of 1936.

"The 1936 election will be one of the most significant in history," he wrote in 47 words included in a Christmas greeting to the people of his state.

"It will be the test of whether the American people are willing to accept a vast centralization in government or whether they desire to continue the maintenance of democratic institutions with all their attending benefits."

Steal Professor's Christmas Boxes as He Buys More

TOWNSEND PLAN VIEWED AS DEAD FOR THIS SESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—No matter how much pressure is applied by advocates of the Townsend old age pension plan, there will be no vote on that program at the coming session of congress, House Majority Leader William B. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] asserted upon his return to the capital today.

The Townsendites, who want every person over 60 years of age to be paid $200 a month, have set up elaborate headquarters here and have been polling congressmen on their attitude toward their program. Thus far thei campaign has had disappointing results, their leaders admit. A number of senators and representatives have come out publicly with denunciations of the plan and the vast majority have signified their disapproval.

But the Townsend plan hasn't the least chance of being put to a vote, Bankhead said. One potent reason for this is that congressmen don't like to vote on a question which may lose them votes in an electoral year. Neither Democrats nor Republicans want to go on record as opposed to a program which claims so many thousand voters as its supporters.

Backers May Try Petition.

"It's my guess," the Alabaman drawled, "that the committee in charge of the question will not report it."

At headquarters of the Townsend organization here there were indications of an impending effort to get the issue to the floor by petition. Without the help of the majority leadership, this is practically the only way an issue my be brought up for debate and a vote. The petition must carry 218 signatures, which is a majority of the membership.

Otherwise Townsend plan legislation must have the approval of two committees dominated by the Democratic house organization before it reaches the floor. They are the ways and means committee and the rules committee.

Predicts Bonus Approval.

Bankhead predicted that a soldiers' bonus will be passed by the house soon after congress convenes and will be repassed if the President vetoes it.

Asked about Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell's [Rep., N. Y.] prediction that Republicans would gain 80 house seats next year, Bankhead contented himself with remarking: "I think definitly that the President will be reëlected."

Bankhead was absent from the last session because of illness. He said he felt fit to assume leadership at the coming session.

Pleads Not Guilty; Bond Request Refused.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Trial of Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld as the machine gun slayer of Walter M. Liggett, weekly newspaper publisher, was set for Jan. 20 following his arraignment on a first degree murder charge today.

Following Cann's plea of not guilty, his counsel lost a fight to have Cann released under bond pending the trial.

It was a packed courtroom before which the liquor firm sales manager, who had been held in jail since the night Liggett was killed, made his appearance. Among those present were many of his friends and associates in his liquor pursuits. He was brought in under close guard. Gone was much of his habitual suave, well groomed appearance.

Ready to Raise $200,000.

It had become known earlier in the day that whatever sum asked for bond, even as high as $200,000, would be raised.

Thomas McMeekin, Cann's attorney, pointed out that his client had voluntarily surrendered following the publisher's murder, and said that the statement he gave to police then, in which he accounted for almost every minute of his time the day and night of the killing, would "constitute the chief defense." He advised the court of Cann's two prior convictions, both for prohibition law violations, and asserted that Cann now was engaged in legitimate business.

McMeekin sought to cast doubt on the statements of two witnesses who have identified Cann as the gunman who poured five bullets into Liggett's back in the alley at the rear of his apartment.

The witnesses referred to are Liggett's widow and Wesley Andersch, salesman, who told police he was nearly run down by the death car a moment before the shooting and identified Cann as the man he saw seated in it with a machine gun in his lap.

Mrs. Liggett has told investigators and interviewers that she will "never forget" the face of the man who shot the publisher down as she watched stunned and helpless. The face was that of Cann, she has insisted from the first.

Bares Trouble in Probe.

In opposing McMeekin's petition, Assistant Attorney General Pike declared that if bail were granted difficulties of further investigation of the case would be "greatly increased."

"We do not hesitate to say," he told the court, "that difficulty has already been experienced in investigating facts, in conferring with persons who might be supposed to have some knowledge of the facts, and with persons who might become possible witnesses."

Judge Reed denied the plea without comment and Cann was quickly taken back to his jail cell.

Meanwhile today investigators were pushing their inquiry into circumstances leading up to and surrounding the shooting of the publisher, who for months had been energetically conducting a campaign against what he charged was an alliance of politics, rackets and crime in Minneapolis.

Police were relying on clues found on the bullets which caused Liggett's death in their search for a man indicated as the driver of the car from which the publisher was killed. A report that a machine gun was cached in an apartment house sent police in search for it. They would not reveal what they had found.

TWO INDICTED IN N. Y. SLAYING GIVE SELVES UP

Sent to "Murderers' Row" to Await Trial.

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—The last two of the four men accused of the murder of Samuel Druckman, trucking employé, surrendered today to District Attorney William X. Geoghan in Brooklyn.

The two, Fred Hull and Harry Luckman, appeared at Geoghan's office together and were recognized by a detective, who formally arrested them.

Two Are Fingerprinted.

Within a few minutes Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Ryan, four detectives, Joseph Solovei, attorney for the two men, and John G. Broady, assistant to Special Assistant Attorney General Hiram C. Todd, were in Mr. Geoghan's office.

Hull and Luckman were taken to Brooklyn police headquarters and fingerprinted.

They then were held without bail to Judge Algeron I. Noa in Kings County court and were sent to "murderers' row" in the county jail to await trial.

Harry Luckman's uncle, Meyer Luckman, and Meyer's cousin, Morris, who also were named in the indictment returned Nov. 26, had been arrested previously.

Campaign Revives Case.

Druckman was found strangled and beaten to death in the Luckman garage in Brooklyn last March 3. Hull and Harry and Meyer Luckman were arrested, but the grand jury found no indictment.

The case was revived by Joseph D. McGoldrich during his campaign for district attorney of Brooklyn, and Geoghan, after being reëlected, resubmitted the case to a new grand jury.

ALLOWS $193,000 CLAIM AGAINST CUSHING ESTATE

A claim of $193,000 against the estate of John F. Cushing, president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, representing the balance due on a $300,000 gift to the University of Notre Dame, was allowed yesterday by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. The claim was brought as a friendly action by the university and was not opposed by executors of Cushing's estate.

In 1931 Cushing announced the endowment for the construction of a school of engineering building on the Notre Dame campus at South Bend. The building, named in Cushing's honor, has already been erected. At the time of Cushing's death he had paid $107,000 on the gift.

Cushing was killed Oct. 8 in an airplane crash near Cheyenne, Wyo. Eleven other persons lost their lives in the accident. Cushing, who is survived by his widow and seven children, left an estate valued at $500,000. He lived at 900 Edgemere court, Evanston.

GERMANY TO FIRE JEWS IN CHARGE OF STATE CLINICS

Lists Persons Affected by Citizenship Laws.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 23.—Further application of the regulations laid down in the Nuremberg anti-Jewish laws was decreed today by the minister of the interior.

The decree defined to what extent Jewish officials and holders of public appointments are affected by the citizenship laws. The regulations also provide for "dignified and necessitous support" for such Jews. They also are granted facilities regarding the termination of leases.

Jewish doctors directing public hospitals will be dismissed from their posts March 31.

Must Prove Loyalty.

Under the new laws, citizenship will be granted only after careful examination of persons who have proved their loyalty to the Nazi reich, Dr. Stuckhart of the ministry of interior said in the publication German Law. Failure to fulfill the duties of a citizen—military service is specifically mentioned—will result in exclusion from citizenship. Whereas Germans hitherto obtained voting rights at the age of 20, citizenship in the future will be granted at a higher age. Dr. Stuckhart said:

"Citizenship will be awarded after a young German has had the opportunity to make good in honorary service of the nation—military service and the labor service—in the service of the party, of the state, or in professional activities."

Members of minorities in Germany or related races, such as Poles and Danes, may be granted citizenship if, without relinquishing their nationality, they have fulfilled such duties as military service.

Dr. Stuckhart stressed that a Jew can never be a citizen, can never vote for members of the reichstag, or be elected to it. Jews, he said, also are forbidden to hold honorary positions.

Governor Is Reinstated.

Gov. Erich Koch of East Prussia, who was suspended during the Nazi party investigations of charges brought against him, was reinstated today by order of Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia. An official communique said:

"An investigation revealed that Koch intervened prematurely in disciplinary proceedings, but that all other charges brought against him were unfounded."

The nature of the charges was not revealed. The communique declared that "irresponsible rumors were circulated about the governor."

The governor recently clashed with representatives of Minister of Agriculture Walter Darre and representatives of the Schutz Staffel [picked Hitler guards].

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Hard Shucking

December 23, 1935.

CHRISTMAS eve will find the corn pickers at the Tribune Yorkville farm with less than 60 acres of ears hanging on the stalk. The work of harvesting the heavy crop of corn has been slowed up since Thanksgiving by bad weather. Since then mechanical pickers have been left standing in the fields most of the time because the ground is too rough or muddy, or the husks and stalks are not in the proper condition for clean picking.

For the last month most of the picking has been done by hand which has greatly slackened the rate of picking. Seven men and five teams and wagons are kept going in what seems to be a never ending battle with the bangboards.

The farm manager made a survey of the last field yesterday and found the corn in excellent condition despite the exposure to unfavorable weather during the fall and winter. He says farmers who still have corn in the field in his locality have been fortunate by not having deep drifting snows to cover up the rows.

On the Wheaton farm, the finger stinging job of husking corn from shocked corn in an open field was completed just before the last cold snap. The stover will be fed to horses and sheep. The stalks without the ears will be scattered in the pasture where the horses can fuss with them, pick off the blades and eat some of the smaller parts of the stalks. The stover will be chopped up before it is fed to the sheep.

The ears husked from the shocked corn will be fed to dairy cows and to chickens, turkeys, muscovy ducks, swans, guineas, and geese on the farm.

Finding storage space for corn from this year's bumper crop has been a problem to many Kendall county farmers in the Fox river valley near the Tribune Experimental farm. Many have solved it by shelling their corn and getting rid of the cobs. The corn was well matured and dry enough to shell freely, so that many farmers in that section were able to shell their corn and put all of it under cover early to avoid damage from storage in open cribs.

One of the fifteen sheep included in the sulphur experiment at the Yorkville farm died recently. The test, which is being made to determine the effect of sulphur water on the growth of the wool, will be continued. Proper allowance will be made in comparing the fleeces produced by the sheep that are getting sulphur water and another group of fifteen is fed in the same way, but given ordinary water lacking sulphur.

Moving trees with about six tons of frozen earth attached to their roots is one of the midwinter jobs to be tackled soon. The Wheaton gardeners are waiting for the soil—about six tons on each tree—to freeze hard to the center before moving. Then the trees will be hauled on a low sled, drawn by a tractor, to their new locations. Eighteen good sized elms and a few poplars are to be moved by the frozen ball method this winter.

Austria Frees 200 Political Prisoners for Christmas

VIENNA, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Two hundred Austrian political prisoners received a Christmas present tonight—their freedom. In a Christmas message to the nation Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg announced the amnesty. He stressed the fact, however, that 125 Nazi rebels who stormed the chancellory in July, 1934, when Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was assassinated, are still held.

JAPANESE OUST U. S. IN PHILIPPINE COTTON MARKET

Also Rule Retail Trade and Hemp Production.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 20.—[By Mail.]—Whether the United States finally relinquishes the Philippines, as provided in the independence act, is of no great importance to America economically. For the last five years United States imports from the islands have averaged $90,913,000, while exports to them have averaged only $57,907,000.

In 1933 the islands were the ninth best customer of the United States but they dropped to eleventh place in 1934. This was accounted for in large measure by the loss of the cotton goods market to Japan, due to the combined operations of the AAA and Bankhead cotton acts, with restrictions on American production, the pegging of prices and the cotton processing tax.

The islands have taken 30 per cent of all cotton textiles manufactured in the United States for export, but, whereas 72 per cent of all cotton goods imported by the Philippines in 1932 were from the United States, only 40 per cent constituted the American share in 1934.

U. S. Down; Japan Up.

The American percentage declined to 23 per cent in September of this year, while Japan's percentage jumped to 74 per cent. Last year the American state department entered into a so called gentlemen's agreement whereby Japan was allotted a total of 45,000,000 square meters of cotton goods to ship to the Philippines, as compared with 43,000,000 shipped by the United States in 1934.

Already Japan has been accused of flouting the agreement, and the Philippine customs reports show that she exported 37,972,441 square meters to the islands during the first eight months of 1935. This would indicate a year's total of 57,000,000 square meters while the indicated total from the United States is only 36,000,000. square meters.

The Japanese have so entrenched themselves in the cotton textile trade that an American owner of a large department store in Manila handles no dry goods. Asked the reason for this, he unbuttoned his shirt to disclose a ribbed cotton undershirt, which would sell for 50 cents in the United States. He bought it, he said, in a Japanese store, for 10 centavos [5 cents].

Japs in Retail Field.

The economic infiltration of the Japanese in the Philippines has become more pronounced in retail trade since 1933, beginning with the Chinese boycott on Japanese goods. The latest authentic figures, for the end of 1933, show 56,355 Filipinos, 13,787 Chinese and 752 Japanese engaged in retail trade, but today there are almost that many Japanese retail stores in Manila alone. Even on the basis of the 1933 figures, the 752 Japanese stores handled a volume of business equal to the 56,355 Filipino stores.

The entry into retail trade represented the first expansion on the part of the Japanese outside of their hemp colony at Davao, in Mindanao province. Having gained a foothold there during the world war by purchasing land from Americans through Filipino "dummies," to comply with the land laws, they now number more than 16,000. They own or control 85 per cent of the Davao hemp production, which gives them a monopoly for the islands as a whole. Besides hemp, they have rich coconut, copper and lumber holdings.

Make Gesture to Oust Japs.

Recently the Filipino politicians have made a gesture of seeking to oust the Japanese from their land, contending that some 75,000 acres is illegally held. The Japanese, however, refused to get off, many of them having married Filipino women and raised families. A government agent served notice on 4,000 tenants, but the 50 constables in the province refused to do anything about it, for obvious reasons.

The American business men and industrialists in the islands are, as a class, violently opposed to independence. They fear their investments will be destroyed, not only by tariffs and trade restrictions which will preclude them from competing in the American market but by confiscatory taxes and crippling regulations.

The native tenants on the vast sugar and coconut estates owned by Americans are far better off than the farmers elsewhere on the islands. They live under a paternalistic system, with the estate providing schools, hospitals, transportation, markets, housing, etc., but it is a benevolent form of paternalism and the tenants appear to be contented.

"The ownership of big landed estates by corporations or absentee landlords has invariably caused discontent and unrest among the tenants or occupants of such estates. . . . Not only for the sake of these tenants, but also in the interest of peace, every effort should be made to acquire these haciendas at a fair and just price to be sold in small lots to the tenants."

The American investment in the islands totals about $250,000,000 and there are approximately 7,000 Americans here. There is no special provision for their protection in the new constitution, although it has a bill of rights and due process clause similiar to the American ones.

Gold Boom On.

The American business men feel that the United States should retain the islands and develop them industrially. At present there is a gold boom in progress, production having increased from 3,372,461 pesos in 1927 to 34,000,000 pesos [estimated] in 1935. These gold mines are in Luzon province, but experts believe that far richer deposits will be found in Mindanao, where a prospecting placer miner can make a living on almost any stream.

Besides gold, there is an oil boom in Tayabas, where some 30 wells are being drilled, and the islands are rich in chromite deposits, just coming into development.

MONGOLS SET UP OWN STATE; BACKED BY JAPS

See Renewed Pressure on Soviet Borders.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Dec. 23.—Prince Teh, Mongolian ruler, yesterday proclaimed the independence of the western part of Inner Mongolia and summoned thirty-three tribes to join him, according to press dispatches today from Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo.

The territory concerned covers a vast area, supports 2,000,000 pastoralists with their flocks and herds and is alleged to be rich in minerals.

Prince Teh's movement if successful, will extend autonomy into regions where the Japanese army feels there is need of energetic measures against sovietism. It coincides with the present major activities of the Kwantung army and has a practical connection with autonomy in North China and the renewal of pressure to open Outer Mongolia [under Russian influence] to Manchukuo's representatives. All these moves, though they occur in Chinese territory, are essentially concerned with soviet-Japanese rivalries.

Warn Manchukuans.

MOSCOW, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The government of Outer Mongolia, press dispatches from Ulan Bator [Urga] said today, has taken a firm stand in face of an alleged threat of a Japanese-Manchukuan invasion, wiring a peremptory demand to Manchukuo for an apology because of a border clash last week in which five Mongolian soldiers were killed.

The Mongolian government, which has strong and friendly relations with soviet Russia, warned that it imposed entire responsibility for such "raids" on "Manchukuo and the government of Japan, whose troops took a direct and active part in the raid."

Any apology, the protest said, must be accompanied by a promise that the raids will cease and by an indemnity for destruction of three frontier buildings allegedly burned by the raiders. Foreign observers expressed great interest in Mongolia's firm stand, notably because responsibility was placed jointly on the Japanese government and Manchukuo.

Mongolia also demanded the immediate return of eleven soldiers who, it declared, had been carried away as prisoners. The protest also called for the "severe" punishment of persons who organized the border raid which, the Mongolians contended, led to the clash.

Students Halt Rail Trafic.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 24 [Tuesday].—(AP)—After issuing a strongly worded manifesto urging a war on Japan, Chinese students took possession of Shanghai's huge railroad terminal through a coup early today. Numbering more than 1,000, the students demand free transportation to the capital at Nanking. There they propose to protest against the North China autonomy movement before authorities of the national government.

The great north station, scene of the fiercest fighting of the 1932 hostilities with Japan, swarmed with police. Although the officers were hurriedly called out, no effort had been made to eject the students forcibly. The students entered the trains yesterday afternoon, carrying supplies of food sufficient for several days.

A dispatch from Hankow said 6,000 students paraded there in a demonstration against Japan, disregarding a warning of Japanese consular officials against the gathering.

GERMANY'S AIR PROWESS LAUDED BY RICKENBACKER

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Col. Edward V. Rickenbacker, world war ace and now general manager of Eastern Air Lines, returned from Europe today with praise for German aviation.

"Germany is the outstanding European nation in military aviation," he said. "I think she appreciates, more than any other country, the value of the airplane in war."

He said the chief purpose of his trip was to discuss methods of cooperation among the world's air lines, especially in regard to projected trans-Atlantic service.

EDITH R. M'CORMICK ESTATE RENEWS ITS ROSENBACH CONTRACT

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell signed an order yesterday authorizing the Chicago Title and Trust company, as executor of the estate of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick, to renew a contract with Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach under which he is endeavoring to sell four valuable books belonging to the estate. The renewed contract will give Dr. Rosenbach, noted Philadelphia and New York bibliophile, until Jan. 30, 1937, to sell the volumes at specified reduced prices.

The books and the price reductions authorized are: "Night of the Swan," $30,000 to $10,000; "Histoire Heliodorie," $6,000 to $2,300; "Patissier Francois," $1,200 to $330, and a Byzantine manuscript of the Greek New Testament, containing paintings and miniatures of Christ and the saints, $14,000 to $9,000.

Attorneys for the trust company said Dr. Rosenbach had been unable to find purchasers for the books at the original prices. The court also entered an order approving a contract between the executor and Dr. Arthur Upham Pope of New York to find a market for several oriental and Persian rugs in the estate.

SPAIN, PORTUGAL DRAW PACT FOR DEFENSE IN WAR

Plan to Place Nations Under British Protection.

MADRID, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A Spanish-Portuguese pact placing the entire Iberian peninsula under British protection in event of war was reported in reliable circles tonight to be under consideration.

Boundary lines between Portugal and Spain would virtually be eliminated in the defense move, it was said.

Portugal, it was pointed out, already enjoys British protection to a large degree, but under present conditions Spain's position would admittedly be extremely vulnerable in the event of a Mediterranean clash.

Unable to Protect Coast.

The Spanish navy almost certainly would prove woefully inadequate to protect coastal frontiers, while it is questionable whether Spanish infantry forces could put up much resistance in the event of an invasion from either the west or the north.

The pact would involve some sort of understanding with Britain whereby Spain would extend to London "certain facilities," probably the use of Spanish ports in exchange for assurances of protection, should such protection be necessary.

These sources said the government believes Spain's geographical position would make her neutrality very difficult, if not impossible, to maintain unless some such agreement is reached.

Spain's understanding with London would not go so far as that existing between Britain and Portugal, but the government is understood to believe its mere existence would have great moral effect.

Spain now has under consideration a British request for information on how far this country would go toward aid of Britain in case of war resulting from sanctions. Spain, a league member, is applying sanctions. This matter was discussed by the cabinet today, but it was announced no decision has been reached.

Official circles would neither confirm nor deny that such a pact with Portugal is contemplated. It would provide for mutual defense should invasion threaten either side of the Spanish-Portuguese frontier.

Ports for British Use.

In return for some degree of British protection Spain would extend to England the use of her Mediterranean ports and the strategic Ballearic Islands as a base.

Strengthening of national defenses proceeded with the government's authorization of the immediate purchase of airplane supplies, pistols and rifle bullets. Bids were requested for a number of field radio stations.

Exchange difficulties, it was reported, are temporarily holding up the purchase of eight American bombing planes [Martins].

BRITAIN'S WORST FOG IN TEN YRS. STRANGLES LAND, SEA, AIR TRAFIC

LONDON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Fog, which the Automobile association said was the worst in ten years, strangled Britain's land, sea, and air trafic over an area of 200 miles, from London to Lancashire and Wales, to night. Frost and snow, too, helped paralyze last minute Christmas shopping and caused many accidents.

Six skaters drowned when the unusual sight of frozen ponds and lakes tempted thousands to try the ice. Weather experts forecast the coldest Christmas of the century.

London was completely blacked out by the fog. Many bus services were abandoned and home bound workers struggled in jammed subway trains. Thames, Mersey, and Clyde shipping was at a standstill. River mouths were choked with vessels waiting to dock. Even teetotalers suffered from "fuzzy tongue," the result of breathing not only fog but smoke and soot from a million chimneys.

HITS U. S. ENTRY BY JAP LECTURER ILL OF TRACHOMA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—A tart telegram protesting the admission of Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese Christian leader and pacifist, to this country was sent to President Roosevelt today by John B. Trevor, president of the American Coalition. Although purportedly suffering with trachoma, the lecturer will be permitted to enter by order of Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Trevor charged that the ruling, reported to have been decided at a cabinet meeting last week, was a "flagrant violation of spirit, intent, and letter of the immigration act of 1917." He declared that "no practical precautions can relieve travelers or users of public lavoratories generally from the peril of contagion."

"If this special ruling is not immediately rescinded the responsibility for all suffering and blindness resulting from the dissemination of trachoma by this alien propagandist must be assumed by the administration," Trevor asserted.

Miss Perkins had said Kagawa would be accompanied by a physician or a nurse.

A NATIONAL HUMILIATION.

The most famous of living Americans cannot live in America. That is the thought the news of the Lindberghs' flight will spread across the world. No battle lost could bring the American people so great a humiliation.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh have taken a course which no fair minded countryman and especially no parent will criticize. The situation which they could and should no longer tolerate involves not only an immediate danger to their son. That might be met by extreme measures of security. But what a boyhood for Jon!

The kidnaping menace has been and still is one of the most terrible manifestations of criminality in present day America. The tragedy which came upon the Lindberghs was followed by a nation-wide effort to repress the evil. Fresh laws were enacted. Police measures were bettered. Some effective prosecutions were achieved. Conditions, we are convinced, have been in some degree mitigated. The Lindbergh case was a sensational advertisment not only of the crime of kidnaping, but of a gross inefficiency of police service in the district of the crime and deplorable methods of judicial administration. The penalty imposed after trial and conviction has not yet overtaken the only culprit in hand. The effect of the whole proceeding could be only encouragement to the evildoer and the continuation of the terror from which the Lindberghs have been compelled to seek exile from their country, and which hangs over many homes.

Yet kidnaping is not the most difficult crime to reach and punish. It is a planned crime requiring preparation and the coöperation of several criminals. It requires not only the capture but the retention of a victim and dangerous communication with individuals whose money is to be extorted. Therefore THE TRIBUNE has insisted and it should be clear to the public that successful kidnaping is possible only because and where there is corruption. It is the ripe, the overripe, fruit of the alliance of crime and corrupt politics. Where kidnaping is not the direct result of corrupt complicity of officials it is neverthless the indirect result of conditions of inefficiency and irresponsibility created by the relations of the underworld with the processes of corrupt politics.

It is also the result of the general reputation of our administration of criminal justice for interminable delay and those technical complications which offer innumerable avenues of escape for the criminal able to command means of corrupt influence in cash or political service.

Swift and certain justice is the only safeguard from the kidnaping menace and for the whole menace of flagrant organized criminality in the United States. We do not ignore the underlying element of morale in the body social and politic, disrespect for law, propensity to violence, so alarmingly increased in recent years; the spreading of disintegrating notions of rights and wrongs, the weakening of religious and ethical standards and restraints. But the inefficiency of the administration of the laws is both an effect and a major cause of this situation, and at the heart of this inefficiency is the alliance of crime and corrupt politics.

Our shame before the world and before the tribunal of our own conscience has been brought home to us in the justifiable course adopted, we know with the utmost reluctance, by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh. They will hope and we all will hope their sacrifice of home ties will fix in the American people the determination to stamp out forever the causes which afflict us. More laws will not serve us. The only way out is through the restoration of the American morale, the revival of the sense of common responsibility for good government, the holding to strict accountability of public officials and the political personnel which controls them.

LIEUT. MAKE MILLS.

The retirement of Lieut. Make Mills, fixed under service rules for Jan. 1, will be regretted by every Chicagoan interested in the protection of the city from criminal violence, especially that wnich is fomented by incendiary radicals. As a long student of this form of disorder and of the persons who plan it or engage in it, Lieut. Mills is a virtually irreplaceable agent of the peace. He knows all the leaders of this ceaseless activity, the cranks, the racketeers who exploit discontent and misfortune, the agitators of class hatred and revolution through violence. He knows them and their ways and has worked for years to forestall and defeat them. He is one of the most valuable officers on the force and his retirement will be a serious loss to the public defense. With the gratitude for his faithful and efficient service which the community owes him there will be general regret that the city should be deprived of his aid and counsel in the important department of police he has directed so long and so well.

TRIFLING WITH HUMAN NEEDS.

Illinois and other states face a relief problem which they do not know how to handle. It has been created by the determination of the federal government to shift from the dole to work. All of the motives and purposes back of this determination probably are not known. Ostensibly, the decision was based on the idea that the morale of the nation would be helped if the employables were put to useful work, in which case the states themselves could be expected to take care of the remaining cases needing help.

In theory the employables constituted a class of citizens who would be removed from the rolls by recovery. Theirs was the emergency case. The others would not be affected by recovery and would remain a continuing responsibility of the various localities, as in normal times. The Works Progress administration undertook to make the shift and was unable to handle the job.

If there had been success within the frame of the plan it would have failed, for a variety of good reasons. Morale is not improved by putting people at make-believe work. Relief without this pretense is more honest. The very fact that the Public Works administration, as distinguished from Mr. Hopkins' works, could not take up the unemployed was proof that Hopkins should not have been allowed to try it. The public works of Mr. Ickes, whether defendable enterprises or extravagant follies, had to be planned and organized. They needed more than the blowing of a whistle and the setting up of a paymaster's shed. They couldn't employ many people quickly.

Mr. Hopkins had to pay his money out for child play, for the most part. He could not build elevated roads, eliminate grade crossings, build dams, even useless ones; postoffices, bridges, roads, or anything of the kind. He could not add to the nation's works, but he could destroy the relief organization by stopping the distribution of money to it. He hasn't taken away the need and he has taken away the funds.

The ability of the localities to handle the situation thus created has been extinguished. Everything that had been done was undertaken on the understanding that all relief resources were concentrated in Washington and all administration conducted there. Local organizations and administration were broken down, and Mr. Hopkins, who can be relied upon to do anything abruptly if it shouldn't be done at all, is unloading on shoulders unequal to the load.

People are justified in looking for ulterior motives behind Washington actions. It may be that the switch from relief to the synthetic work program has back of it a belief that citizens on a government pay roll not only interfere with private enterprise but are closer to the socialistic scheme of government than if they were on relief lists. There's nothing revolutionary about public aid to the indigent. Socialism advances as it takes over enterprises and puts people to work under its direction.

The New Deal will not deserve the luck if it avoids muddling into a tragic winter. It is playing politics with human needs.

HIGHWAY PARALYSIS.

In the various discussions bearing on the application of the Motor Carrier act, question No. 1 in the minds of highway truckers appears to be "Should a truck classification be developed, and if so, should it be related to the railroad classification?" Even the consideration of frozen rates that would be guided by railway charges would deprive the trucking industry of its only excuse for existence. The public does not need or want two forms of transportation paralleling each other and offering the same service, but differing only in that one runs on a private right of way while the other utilizes the public highway. We have too many competing railway routes as the matter now stands. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE repeatedly warned against this destruction of flexibility that seems inherent in burocratic domination of anything.

The railway method of assessing varied charges based on value, density, the different methods of packing, the nature of the commodity—raw material or finished article—was developed because of the impossibility of isolating the cost of moving a given shipment. In so far as they are concerned, any statement that the railways make or lose money in transporting an individual consignment is a mere exercise of the imagination. Trucking costs, however, can readily be allocated and the compensatory nature of a rate established. The public is entitled to any benefit that may flow from the cost plus profit rates made possible by this characteristic.

As predicted, motor regulation is proceeding to produce standard rates, which in turn will produce a standard truck, the prototype of the standard box car, and standard rules of practice in an industry the future of which so obviously must rely on specialized equipment that is virtually "built around" the trafic load it is intended to accommodate. This following of railway classifications and rates points directly toward a condition whereby the same type of motor vehicle will be furnished whether the load is bank vault doors or tennis balls.

MR. HOOVER'S ERROR.

[New York Sun.]

In his speech in St. Louis last night Mr. Hoover seemed too much on the bitter side. Apparently he was stung by the remark of President Roosevelt in the Atlanta speech that "the mechanics of civilization came to a dead stop on March 3, 1933." Mr. Hoover's view of it is that the hysteria among bank depositors in the closing days of his administration was brought on by fear of what his successor was going to do.

The fact is that most of the American people looked to Mr. Roosevelt with confidence in that period. He had been elected on as sane a platform as any Democratic national convention ever wrote. He had campaigned on the basis of that platform. He had solemnly promised economy. He had pledged himself to destroy the burocracy which had grown up at Washington. Denouncing Mr. Hoover's as the "greatest spending administration in peace time in all our history," Mr. Roosevelt declared for the reduction of taxes. He damned the farm board. He plumped for a sound currency.

No, it was not in the last days of President Hoover that the New Deal scared the country. It was a few weeks after Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House that he began to carry out the pledges, not of the Democratic party but of the Socialist party. That is what will be remembered in next year's battle—the unexplained betrayal of the country's trust.

THE VISION OF THE INNOCENTS.

(A Legend of Aucuneville.)

It was a night of stars and snows.
Silence brooded like a bird
With great white wings unfurled.
The windows of the little town
Bloomed out against the night
Like rows of golden flowers grown
From seeds of candlelight.
For every house was radiant
In honor of the Child
Who on a starlit eve was born
Of her, the undefiled.
The good folk still abroad at dark
Were hastening toward the glow
Of hearths whose crimson through the panes
Ruddied the crusted snow.
The village little seemed a place
Of signs and wonderments,
Yet Mary chose its simple folk
To be her Innocents.
So full their faith, so deep their peace
In Him, the Crucified,
She came and marked them for her own
That holy Christmastide.
It was a child upon the street
Who, looking upward, saw
The Vision first and stood transfixed
With marvel and with awe.
Then, wondering at the small boy's stare,
An old man raised his eyes
And saw the Queen of Heaven, come
To greet them from the skies.
And soon the revelation like
A blessed contagion spread
Till every villager could see
The Vision overhead.
The children and the mothers leaned
From casements to behold
The Virgin shining in the air,
Haloed with stars of gold.
Even the little dogs whined low,
Dazed by her diadem,
For Heaven's Queen did not disdain
To show herself to them.
She floated just above the roofs,
Her azure mantle rich
With many a golden broiderie
And many a silver stitch.
Encircled by a glowing frame
Of lighted tapers, she Was Loveliness and Holiness
Unveiled for men to see.
Within the briefest while each house
Was empty save for those
Too aged or too sick to go
And kneel down in the snows
Beneath her hands outstretched in love,
Yet unto every one,
Whether he came to her or no,
The grace of Mary's Son
Was amply given. All who ailed
In body or in soul
Became that night in Aucuneville
Miraculously whole.
No man could name the moment when
The shining one was gone,
But some there were who swore she stayed
Until the Christmas dawn.
And some there were who vowed she rose
Upon the midnight air
As though she luminously climbed
A topless crystal stair.
It matters not. The Vision stayed
Forever in each breast;
Forever those who saw her walked
Illumined ways and blest.
And though this happened long, long years
Ago, each Christmas eve
The good folk gather in the square,
Expectant to receive
The holy visitor once more
Into the breathless town.
And every innocent will tell
How surely she comes down!

ADELAIDE LOVE.

THE FAMOUS Sir Francis Drake case has been adjourned over the holidays. Some of the people who have poured out money to get their share of the estate will be considerably peeved that Sir Francis hasn't invited them to his castle in England to spend Christmas and New Year's. But maybe Sir Francis just forgot it. Great men are like that.

AND, SANTA CLAUS, old dear, don't forget that along with my other pretty presents you leave me a handsome corkscrew. Of course, I may have no use for it after I look in my stocking, but here's hoping, Santa, here's hoping.

But, lacking these, will you have and hold

So, silencing the fiddle, dear,

HABIT SPASMS OR TICS.

If an attractive young lady looking in your direction suddenly winks—without an accompanying smile—do not assume that a flirtation is in prospect. The wink or nod of the head may be quite involuntary and not intended for you at all.

There are many twitching or repeated jerking movements that are known as habit tics. They are not rare and are observed chiefly in childhood, although grownups are not immune. Girls are more often afflicted than boys and the usual age of onset is between 6 and 12 years. No organic basis has been found for the occurrence of the spasms.

The facial muscles are involved most frequently and include winking, drawing of the mouth to one side, contraction of the neck muscles, or turning of the head. A not uncommon type noted in adults is typified by shrugging of the shoulder. This is a tic that in many cases continues throughout life and constitutes a social as well as a business handicap.

Although they may imitate useful movements, habit spasms serve no helpful purpose. A group of individuals called "jumpers" also belong in this class. These persons jump, disrobe themselves, or perform some unusual act following a sudden command.

As a rule the twitchings are increased by excitement, by embarrassment, or sometimes by fear. Again, a serious effort toward control may make the patient conscious of the contractions and result in an actual increase in their number and force.

Curious little "tricks" of children are explained on the same basis, and Osler mentions a boy who would periodically place the middle finger of his right hand in his mouth and bite it.

There is apparently a psychic foundation for many of these outbreaks, although occasionally imitation is a factor. A highly impressionable child, on noticing another child making peculiar motions, may reproduce the action until finally it becomes a fixed habit. A facial expression characteristic of some emotion, as pain or joy, may be repeated so often that it will become a tic. Occurring usually in children who have a tendency to excess nervousness the condition is, as a rule, but temporary. In the more severe forms it is closely allied to hysteria and, in a few aggravated cases, activity of the muscles of the body produces irregular and violent jerkings with which may be associated an explosive, inarticulate cry or a word may be uttered over and over again.

During sleep tics usually disappear and restlessness at night must not be confused with habit spasms. No matter how violent the contractions may be they never result in physical damage or pain to the patient or destruction of surrounding objects.

These habits are not difficult to recognize as the periodical repetition of the same movement that CAN be controled identifies the condition. Great care must be taken, however, in distinguishing these habit affairs from chorea or St. Vitus dance. This latter disease may present a serious problem, requiring the most careful management. In chorea the motions are irregular, utterly uncontrolable, and do not show the habit pattern.

With most children tics will disappear after a while or, as we may say, they are outgrown, although some cases require much training—teaching the child self-control.

All sources of irritation which might serve to prolong the habit should be removed and, in a few cases, psychiatric management may be needed. The confidence of the patient must be gained and an effort made to work out the basic cause of the neurosis. Fears and obsessions on the part of the child should be sought for and allayed if found. A change of environment is often beneficial. Life should be made as healthful and as restful as possible, mentally and physically. Graded outdoor exercises and some amusement should be prescribed. Massage is useful as it helps to relax the affected muscles and thus control the tic.

PORK CHOPS.

R. M. writes: Is it possible to eat a pork chop each day for 30 consecutive days? If it takes 20 to 24 hours to digest pork, I think it is impossible to do so.

REPLY.

Approximately four hours must elapse before the stomach can complete its part of the digestive process. Much depends on how rapidly the stomach empties. In some persons the stomach fails to empty completely under six hours. Food mixed with gastric juice is poured into the intestine gradually.

Eating a pork chop a day for 30 days will do no harm if your diet is well balanced, but I imagine that after a week or so the appetite for this form of food would flag.

Your query reminds one of the shepherd who was compelled to rely on his herd for meat. He varied the diet by naming the meat on successive days: ram, lamb, sheep, or mutton.

FROM A GIRL SCOUT.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Are you feeding the birds these cold winter mornings? Now that the ground is all covered with snow and ice the little birds are suffering from hunger and exposure, and are dying off by the score. Doesn't that sound sad when a few morsels of bread or a piece of suet thrown out daily would provide enough food to keep their small feathered bodies warm and alive?

Scientists tell us that if it were not for the birds insect pests would make life unendurable. Seed eating birds do a greater service in curbing the fertility of weeds. All the books on birds tell us that winter is the best time to begin cultivating their acquaintance. Hunger drives them to us and makes them trust us when at other times they might be inclined to be shy. The saucy little sparrows are putting up a brave fight these cold days and the least we can do is throw out our daily scraps from the table. Who can refuse sufferers so close at hand? A GIRL SCOUT.

ON BEHALF OF THE NEW DEAL.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—For many months I have read these and other columns, and have noticed, more with pity then censure, the various diatribes on our President and his attempts to restore a measure of material security to the forgotten average man.

It has become very apparent, however, that the time has come to take up the cudgel in his defense, or rather in his behalf.

How can an intelligent editorial writer set up a cry of "regimentation"? Has Mr. Roosevelt made any attempt to utilize the full powers of his office by declaring that, due to the existing emergency [and 1933 represented a very real emergency], congress was adjourned, the action of the courts suspended, and that the country be placed under martial law? On the contrary every law, wnether constitutional or not, was passed by the house and the senate.

To put it as shortly as we can, every law was passed by our joint representatives in both houses of congress, our courts continued to function, and bankers and great corporations [always the first to cry "governmental interference"] were given the aid they required to get out of the doldrums.

Then, and then only, after the crisis was passed did the complaints begin.

So we pass to the question that almost naturally arises: Why are we not [the common pee-pul] reminded occasionally of the pitiful state of business and public confidence in those dark days of 1932-'33? Is it lest we feel our faith revived and courage restored?

Let any other political party in power in the future strive as diligently for the welfare of the country as a whole and our future is assured.

IT WOULD, INDEED.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Industry is requested to take care of the unemployed. It would be interesting to learn the number of farm hands in the north and south who are now out of employment because of AAA. M. NORDEN.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—The company by which I am employed is located northwest in a street that has never been paved. Directly in front of our building is a vacant lot which has become a general dumping ground. In addition to the refuse there is a considerable growth of weeds. At the present time there are thirty PWA men actually fooling around in that mess. They have made no attempt to remove the rubbish or pull up the weeds; when not standing around doing nothing they are turning over the dirt or moving a piece of iron from one location to another.

What arouses my wrath is this: Our street has never been paved; it is really a prize and would serve as a roller coaster in any amusement park. I only wish some of the PWA officials would be made to ride over it continuously for one day at the rate of twenty miles an hour—or say, only ten—and see the results on their anatomy and car. Sidewalks were laid at one time, but these have become covered in a good many places by the dirt from the street. Whenever it rains it is quite impossible to gain entrance to our front office without the aid of a rowboat, and the holes in the street become miniature lakes. This is no exaggeration. Just come over and see us some time.

Why dig up the lot? If the street cannot be paved these thirty men could take a hand in leveling it and thus earn their wages honestly. I'm not blaming the men, for I know this unnecessary work must be just as distasteful to them as to those bearing the burden of their salaries, but those whose duty it is to see that as much good as possible is to be obtained from the funds dispersed deserve a good trouncing if this is the best they can do. M. B. T.

SLOGAN.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—They have made it possible for my five children, my wife and me to enjoy that much talked of American high standard of living by taking us from the relief rolls where we were budgeted at $87.57 and giving me a job on WPA at $55 per month. So I will suggest a slogan for the Raw Deal campaign: "Two families in every garage; an old shoe in every pot." G. J.

MORALE.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—Why all this concern about the morale of the poor man who accepts the cash dole, and at the same time overlook the morale of the farmer who accepts the cash payment for idleness? Do you suppose the amount of the payment makes the difference—the $15 to $30 for the poor man as against many times as much given to the farmer in payment for his vote? A.

FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—I dare say that more than half of our fatal accidents and moronical murders are absolutely unnecessary and could be prevented if our good modern people would only see the sensibility of sane living, even as of yore.

By sane living I mean modest and common sense behavior for men as well as for the weaker sex. First of all our men folks must go back to the old days of sheer chivalry and gentlemanliness. The women, on the other hand, I believe, are grossly fooling themselves if they think that they are just as safe as men when it comes to going out all alone. It is my belief that no sane woman or girl ought to even dare go out alone at night; all wise women ought to go out with a man escort whom she knows well. Either that or she should go along with other girls or women. Then we might not have so many unsolved mysteries. THE CRITIC.

VALIDITY OF DEED.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a piece of property in Chicago with my son. The deed is made out in joint ownership. He is married and has given me a quitclaim deed signed by himself and wife, but has not put it on record to avoid probate proceedings in case of my death. Is it legal to put it on record at any time? In case of his death would his wife come into his share of the property? C. C. H.

A deed is not valid unless validly delivered during the lifetime of the grantor. Delay on this point invites litigation.

2. The ordinary course is to send it to the recorder at the county seat with the proper fee, which depends on the length of the instrument. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CLOSING ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What is the legal time of closing an estate in which no will was made, but an administrator appointed? Estate is in cash and no real estate or claims are involved. T. B.

Ordinarily the estate should be closed shortly after the expiration of the year allowed for filing claims.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Prof. Otto Schmidt, the distinguished Russian scientist, stood in front of a map of the Arctic circle at the soviet embassy, Kensington. He talked about the scientific exploration and practical work of which he has been in charge within the circle on behalf of the soviet government. He has 30,000 workers directly under him.

In April, 1934, Prof. Schmidt was the last of 104 persons rescued by Russian airmen from an ice floe upon which the party had camped for two months, after their ship, the Cheliuskin, had been crushed in the Bering strait. He is on his first visit to England.

The soviet first five year plan included the exploration of the arctic. The exploration began in 1929. Today, Prof. Schmidt declared, 600,000 Russians are settled there, in addition to 150,000 natives.

He declared that it was hoped to double this population in the next few years. At the present time machinery for the mines and other industries is more needed than men.

Prof. Schmidt regards the climate as the healthiest in the world, although there are mosquitoes in the more southern regions. There are towns with 15,000 inhabitants. These communities have schools and movie theaters.

Up to last year the soviet government had expended one thousand million rubles on the development of the new country. Nearly 150 airplanes are in use in the area.

Full development of the great mineral resources is now possible, Prof. Schmidt said. Inside the circle there are coal, nickel and zinc mines. Workers, too, have started to drill for oil.

The destruction of the Cheliuskin had not hindered further exploration and the final conquest of the arctic, Prof. Schmidt said. This year ordinary commercial vessels, assisted by ice breakers, made the journey between Europe and Vladivostok through the northeast passage.

There is a possibility of immediate and immense economic development in the north of Siberia and improvement in the cultural conditions of the national minorities living there, the scientist said. The new sea route, he declared, made it possible for the great Siberian rivers to be used for the export of timber and other Siberian products.

SCIENCE TO EYE THE FUTURE IN MANY MEETINGS

Universities Here Will Send Professors.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The annual report which scientists make to their colleagues, with some effort to peer over fences and see where the world of science is leading the human race, will occupy the minds of university men in Chicago and elsewhere during the holidays. While the students are away the professors will get together in various cities in their association groups to exchange ideas on the most fascinating of all subjects—their specialties in research.

Twenty different departments of the University of Chicago will send more than one hundred professors to participate in the conferences. Northwestern university also will send its quota.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, an organization which embraces practically every branch of learning, will hold its meeting at Washington university, St. Louis, from Dec. 30 to Jan. 3. This is the mecca of most groups of scientists and the platform for the leading men in each branch to expound the latest discoveries and experiments.

Dr. Compton to Speak.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton and Dr. W. D. Harkins of the University of Chicago are to have important places on the physics and chemical programs. Dr. Compton is to summarize all recent developments in cosmic rays, in which he has spent years of study. Dr. Harkins is to tell of the latest developments in splitting the atom to get at the underlying energies in protons and neutrons.

Dr. Henry Gordon Gale, head of the University of Chicago physics department, will tell of the latest development in the diffraction grating, an accurate method of obtaining a light spectrum through gratings in which more than 15,000 lines are ruled to an inch. It was this instrument, the interferometer, invented by the late Dr. Albert Michelson, which led to experiments on which the relativity theory is based.

Several Northwestern university professors will read papers at the meeting. They include R. A. Fisher, Lester Bockstahler, C. L. Turner, Orlando Park, J. William Buchanan, and W. W. Wantland.

Prof. Herskovitz to Preside.

Prof. Melville J. Herskovitz of Northwestern will preside at sessions of the anthropology section. Prof. Ferris Laune of the Northwestern sociology department, who is also sociologist at the Joliet penitentiary, will give a report on prison parole.

The Association of American Geographers will meet in St. Louis Dec. 29 to Jan. 1. Dr. Charles C. Colby of the University of Chicago is president of this association. Prof. William H. Haas of Northwestern university will read a paper on peasant life in Puerto Rico.

The American Physiological society, the Genetic Society of America, the American Society of Naturalists and other organizations will also meet in St. Louis at this time.

New Deal to Be Reviewed.

The American Economic society will meet in New York, Dec. 26-28. Dr. Harry A. Millis, chairman of the department of economics at the University of Chicago and past president of the association, will review "Effects of New Deal Legislation on Industrial Relations." Prof. Jacob Viner, also of the University of Chicago, former assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, will speak on "Recent Governmental Policies and the Banking Situation." Prof. Frederick Diebler, secretary of the association, will head a delegation from Northwestern's economic department.

The Geological Society of America will meet in New York Dec. 26-28; the Modern Language association in Cincinnati, Dec. 30 to Jan. 1; the American Society of Law Schools in New Orleans, Dec. 27-30; the American Historical association in Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 27-30; the American Society of Zoölogists at Princeton, N. J., Dec. 30-Jan. 1, and the American Sociological society in New York, Dec. 27-30.

At this latter meeting Prof. Arthur Todd of Northwestern will give a paper on the "Chicago Recreational Survey."

45 INSTITUTIONS TO SHARE $98,850 WIEBOLDT FUND

Foundation Announces New Appropriations.

Appropriations amounting to $98,850 were announced yesterday by the Wieboldt Foundation in aid of 45 Chicago and Cook county charitable and welfare activities and institutions. This covers contributions by the foundation for the year beginning Nov. 1, 1935, and the amount is said to exceed the net income of the foundation for 1935.

William A. Wieboldt, founder and general director of the foundation, in commenting on the amount of the appropriations, said it had a double significance.

"Our studies of current conditions in Chicago indicate that the need is great for such assistance as we are able to give. There is a large carryover of distress from the more acute phases of the economic depression just behind us.

Predicts Business Improvement.

"On the other hand growing business volumes in many lines and present economic trends generally indicate that the income of the foundation should improve materially next year. Its investments are for the most part composed of Chicago properties and Chicago securities.

"All signs convince me that Chicago business and property values are entering upon a period of substantial and sound improvement."

The Wieboldt foundation was organized in the midst of the short depression of 1921 by a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Wieboldt amounting to $4,490,000, and in the fifteen years of its existence it has appropriated $2,691,097 for the benefit of charitable and welfare institutions. The latest audit disclosed assets of $4,122,349.

Mr. Wieboldt came to Chicago at the age of 14 from Germany and started on a small scale as a merchant. His business grew into the present chain of Wieboldt department stores. He retired from active business in 1921.

Beneficiaries in Many Groups.

The beneficiaries of the Wieboldt foundation are in numerous groups, including medical research and education, educational and vocational, relief and family welfare, as well as boys' and girls' organizations and homes and homes for old people.

Among those on the list are the Infant Welfare society, Visiting Nurse association, Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind, Juvenile Protective association, Chicago Crime commission, five Y. M. C. A. establishments and one Y. W. C. A., the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Evanston, the Catholic charities, German Society of Chicago, Jewish Social Service bureau, Community Fund and United Charities

FIND BODIES OF TWO BELIEVED VICTIMS OF MAD HITCH-HIKER

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—The bodies of L. A. Simpson, Piedmont farmer, and his son, Warren, 14, victims of Chester Comer, slain hitchhiker-killer, were believed found today. Col. Charles W. Daley, superintendent of the state crime bureau, said two bodies found near Sapulpa were believed to be those of the Simpsons.

The farmer and his son have been missing since they gave Comer a ride about a month ago. Comer is known to have killed three persons and is held responsible for the disappearance of other persons.

Comer died in a hospital here after mumbling he "did away" with the Simpsons and Ray Evans, Shawnee lawyer and civic leader. Evans' body was found near Lindsay. The bodies of Comer's first and second wives were found and it is believed he killed them.

RIOTS GRIP CITIES OF VENEZUELA IN WAR FOR CONTROL

Many Reported Killed in Street Fighting.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Rioting and bloodshed is underway in half a dozen Venezuelan cities in a struggle for the "rocking chair throne" of the dead dictator, Gen. Juan Vicente Gomez, said unofficial reports today.

A report which reached here by airplane said a virtual state of war was in existence. Provisional President Eleazar Lopez Contreras, who succeeded Gomez when the president died last Tuesday, is fighting desperately to hold his office.

Two Theaters Burned.

Revolutionaries burned two theaters in Caracas, which were owned by a friend of the late dictator, and also destroyed the office of the newspaper El Neuvo Diario. Property damage was estimated at $200,000.

Many followers of Gen. Eustoquio Gomez, cousin of the late dictator, who was shot to death Saturday, were reported to have "died of wounds." Gomez was among the leading aspirants for the office of his kinsman, only to follow him in death.

Rioting was reported underway in the cities of Valencia, Merida, Cumana and elsewhere, as well as in Caracas, the capital. The government was sending troops to various points in an effort to crush disturbances.

Claims to Be in Control.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The government in an official statement tonight said it was in absolute control of the political situation here and in all states of the republic. Shops, which closed Saturday because of disorders, reopened for business today.

Officials said they expected complete calm to be restored when congress meets Thursday to elect a president to fill the unexpired term of Gen. Juan Vicente Gomez, dictator for twenty-seven years who died last week.

Gen. Eleazar Lopez Contreras, who is serving as provisional president, probably will be chosen president, political circles believe. He was minister of war before Gomez' death.

Spike O'Donnell May Pass Christmas in Police Cell

Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, former south side beer baron, faced the prospect of spending Christmas in a detective bureau cell as the result of his arrest yesterday at Clark and Randolph streets by Sergts. Lawrence Sauser and Joseph Gorman. Arrested with him was James C. Byrnes, 42 years old, 4541 Malden street. O'Donnell asserted he was a "respectable business man" now engaged in the coal business at 2424 West 39th street. Both men were held as suspicious characters.

IT COSTS but little more in 1935 than it did in 1932 to operate the average apartment building in Chicago. Of the 3 major expense items, fuel and decorating have advanced somewhat while janitor service costs less. The total of all other expenses remains almost unchanged.

Over against the slight increase in operating expense, we have:

—an increase in apartment occupancy of 23%

—an increase in unit rents

—a gain in gross rent by elimination of concessions

—an unprecedented potential demand for housing.

The inevitable result of this combination of factors must be higher prices for residential property.

IOWA GAMBLING JURY TO SPEND YULE LOCKED UP

State's Tactics Prolong Conspiracy Trial.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Jurors sitting in the gambling conspiracy trial of Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor of Iowa today resigned themselves to a Christmas in seclusion as Prosecutor H. M. Havner prolonged the state's final argument.

Havner finished for the state at 5 p. m., after eight hours of explaining the 1,052 exhibits introduced in the gambling conspiracy trial. Throughout his argument the prosecutor stressed the fact that O'Connor failed to take the stand and deny charges made against him by state witnesses.

Cites Proof of Knowledge.

"Attorney General O'Connor knew of slot machine violations in several Iowa counties, and did nothing about it," Havner said. "We know he was aware of conditions in Lee county because of letters written to the attorney general's office and to Gov. Herring. This evidence refutes the contention of the attorney general that he had offered his help in fighting the slot machine menace."

Havner challenged the attempts made by O'Connor's attorneys to discredit the testimony given by Convict Bert Rollinger.

Scores Agent's Activity.

"Why was State Agent C. W. McNaughton so active when Rollinger wrote Clyde Mayer he would blow the lid off?" the prosecutor demanded. "Why should a state agent write to an inmate of a prison when there was no danger of him getting away?"

O'Connor's attorney has yet to summarize his case before the jury begins deliberation. The defense arguments will begin tomorrow morning.

M. C. A., and 5 per cent each to the School Children's Aid society and the Northwestern university settlement.

PATRICK DALTON, A CHICAGOAN FOR 102 YEARS, IS DEAD

Patrick Henry Dalton, believed to have been the oldest native born resident of Chicago, died yesterday at the County hospital a few hours after he was taken there from his home at 434 South Claremont avenue. He would have been 103 years old next St. Patrick's day.

Until his health began failing a few weeks ago Mr. Dalton was active in mind and body. He adhered religiously to his formula for a long life: "Eat sparingly, drink plenty of water, arise early [4 a. m.], and take a long walk before breakfast."

PATRICK H. DALTON.

Mr. Dalton was born here in 1833, the same year Chicago was incorporated as a village. He asserted that he had never set foot outside the territory which is now known as the west side. His longest trip, said Dalton, was to Silverleaf Grove on Ogden avenue.

Dalton remembered Chicago when most of the residents had small farms and fruit trees lined the roads, which often were muddy. His mother traded with the Indians, he related, and Abraham Lincoln was often a visitor at his father's house. The river at Madison street in the early days was crossed first by a scow and later a ferry, Dalton recalled, and west of Damen avenue was a wilderness. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Bender, with whom he lived.

KANE CO. PIONEER TO BE BURIED ON 97TH BIRTHDAY

Funeral services will be held for Freeman Woodman, civil war veteran and Kane county farmer, this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the community church at Elburn, near Elgin, on his 97th birthday. Mr. Woodman died Sunday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Stanley Merrick, 128 North Porter street, Elgin.

Born Dec. 24, 1838, at Woodstock, N. H., Mr. Woodman was brought to Kane county as a child of 10. He lived there ever since, except for a time when he engaged in the dairy business in Evanston.

Mr. Woodman enlisted in company C of the 52d Illinois volunteer infantry and served as color bearer throughout the four years of the civil war. He was wounded at the battle of Shiloh and in the battle of Lookout mountain.

He kept a diary for 73 years, including the war period. For 64 years he had been a member of the G. A. R. Mr. Woodman began reading THE TRIBUNE before the war and continued to do so until a few days before his death.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Merrick and Mrs. Edith Bliss, a son, Myron J. Woodman, 9 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren.

11:00—W-G-N—Paulist Choristers in "Midnight Mass," from Church of the Apostle, New York City.

Midnight—WGES—Midnight to morning program, with mass from Our Lady of Sorrows church at 4 p. m.

Several sponsors are specifically avoiding the Yule note, taking the view that there will be too much holiday music on the air anyway. The WBBM Musical Clock will not touch on the Christmas theme tomorrow.

Helen Hayes will depart from her serial, "The Good Penny," to preview a scene from her new play, "Victoria Regina," at 8:30 over WENR tonight. And Sigmund Romberg will present a tabloid version of his new operetta, "May Wine," on his Studio Party broadcast at 9 over WMAQ-NBC tonight.

Christmas Eve Another Dance Night to Debs

Two Coming Out Parties on Calendar.

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHRISTMAS EVE may mean a variety of things: Trimming a Christmas tree and arranging toys that Santa Claus is bringing to good little boys and girls, delivering Good Fellow baskets to less fortunate ones, actually having one's Christmas celebration—tree, dinner, and the exchanging of gifts among one's family—or serenading strangers and friends by the singing of carols; but, to the debutantes and the young men who dance attendance upon them, the night before Christmas is very much like every other night during these heetic last ten days of December, a time for dancing.

The only difference between tonight and every other night is that there are no dinner parties planned for the debutantes tonight, and all of them will dine en famille before going to the Casino, where Miss Adele Proxmire will be making her debut at a supper-dance.

Miss Proxmire, at home from Sarah Lawrence college for the vacation, will receive with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Proxmire of Lake Forest. Most of the guests will be young people, but Dr. and Mrs. Proxmire have invited a few of their most intimate friends. The Proxmire family is spending the holiday season in town at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, going out to their Lake Forest home just for the week-end.

Two other young women will make their formal bows to society today, Miss Barbara Soper and her cousin, Miss Joan Sutter. They will be introduced at a luncheon their mothers, Mrs. James P. Soper of Lake Forest and Mrs. Alvar R. Sutter of Winnetka, are giving at the Indian Hill club. Another cousin, Miss Elizabeth Ann Sheldon, is making her debut on New Year's day at a tea at the home of her parents, the James M. Sheldons, in Glencoe.

Ball Is Climax to Day of Parties.

Yesterday was a very busy day for the debutantes, reaching a climax with a brilliant ball given at the Blackstone by the junior Edward L. Ryersons and the John Paul Wellings for their daughters, Miss Nancy Ryerson and Miss Harriet Welling, and for Nancy's cousin, Miss Joan Ryerson.

Three other young women were introduced to society yesterday also, Miss Patricia Forsyth Kelly, Miss Madalon Search, and Miss Ann Lynch. Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur Kelly presented their daughter at a tea-dance at the Arts club; and Miss Lynch, daughter of V. Reges Lynch, and Miss Search, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gist Search, bowed at a luncheon at the Racquet club.

Many of the guests at the Ryerson-Welling party came on from the Princeton Triangle show at the Auditorium, including members of the Triangle club themselves. Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Welling, and the Misses Ryerson and Miss Welling received before a metal screen at the entrance to the Crystal ballroom. Mrs. Ryerson, Mrs. Welling, and Miss Nancy Ryerson all chose white gowns, but a note of color was introduced into the line by the brocade gowns of Miss Welling and Miss Joan Ryerson, that of the former being pink and the latter green.

Miss Kelly Receives with Her Mother.

The Arts club was unusually gay for Miss Kelly's debut. The debutante, gowned in aquamarine taffeta, received with her mother, who was wearing American Beauty bagheera in the lounge. The bud's dress was made in Victorian style with a tight bodice, huge leg o' mutton sleeves, and a full skirt. She carried a round bouquet of cerise carnations that matched in color her satin slippers. Mrs. Kelly, whose dress was draped effectively and smartly, wore white orchids.

Not only in Chicago and its suburbs, but all over Christendom carol singing is a part of the celebration of Christmas and this evening there will be many groups of carolers strolling in the streets singing beautiful old carols.

Winnetkans are especially fond of carol singing and always on Christmas eve villagers, young and old, gather at 5 o'clock around a great lighted tree on the village green to sing. This year the Woman's club is going to hold open house and serve hot chocolate after the singing. Mrs. Willoughby Walling is in charge of the open house.

Another group of Winnetkans that will a-caroling go this evening is composed of alumni of the North Shore Country Day school. They will meet for a little practice first at the school and then they will start on a tour of the village, stopping at various places including Mrs. Walter A. Strong's, the Ayres Boals', and the Ralph H. Hobart's, all of which are among the households that annually are hospitable to the carolers.

Among the carolers in this group will be "Frannie" Moore, accompanist, who has returned from his studies at Cambridge with his bride, the former Laura Bartlett, to spend the Christmas vacation with their parents, the Philip W. Moores and the Edmund B. Bartletts; Miss Eleanor Cheney and her fiancé, Robert Graves; Miss Marjorie Truesdale, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bridges, the junior Ayres Boals, and the Misses Marjorie and Harriett Street, and their sister, Mrs. Thomas H. Knorr and her husband.

Tomorrow evening members of the Colony club at the University of Chicago will go caroling after enjoying a buffet supper at Mrs. Ernst Freund's. Tonight the club carolers will sing at several south side hospitals.

Good Morning!

Remember "The Charm School"—old time "silent" with Lila Lee and Wallace Reid? Well, "Collegiate" is it—with words and music.

The piece is a lively and at times amusing number, detailing the adventures of a young man who inherits a school for girls. . . .

He's a haphazard chap who's spent the greater part of his time scattering sunshine in taverns and in jails. For, when "in his cups," as they say at the W. C. T. U., he has an engaging smile and is given to song. He also likes to sock policemen—which is usually the reason why he awakens so many mornings with the shadows of bars athwart his ruddy countenance.

He has a pair of boon companions, known to the initiate as "Scoop" Oakland and "Sour Puss," who faithfully bail him out and do their single and double best to keep him out of serious difficulty.

Jerry is told that all his defunct auntie [knowing the lad no doubt!] had willed him is the aforementioned fashionable school for young ladies, and "Scoops" and "Sour Puss" accompany the heir to the spot where reside the bodies of his charges to be, and where he discovers his auntie's one time secretary, Miss Hay, already holding the fort. . . . A plain girl, Miss Hay, who blossoms out as the action proceeds. . . .

After various flounderings our young man gets assembled. He labors under the quaint idea that it's more important for a girl to be the sort a man likes to take out than to be versed in Greek and the higher mathematics.

SO—Jerry collects a faculty, wise in the arts of de luxe frivolity, and sets out to invest his pupils with charm. [His mouse of a secretary, in the meanwhile, madly adoring him. Ever see a mad mouse?]

All of which permits the film to offer some interesting dancing, singing, and musical comedy high jinks of various sorts.

Joe Penner, as a victim of amnesia is here, there, and everywhere—without his duck. And for the first time in my life I found him really funny at times.

Ned Sparks as "Scoops," and Lynne Overman, looking disturbingly like President Roosevelt grown thin and younger, turn out some snappy comedy bits. Jack Oakie is lovable and comical as Heir Craig, and Betty Jane Cooper does some perfectly elegant tap dancing. Frances Langford is gentle and capable as Miss Hay.

See you tomorrow!

SEASONAL note. A manicurist in the Palmer House Terminal Barber shop is named Miss Santa.

A RESTAURANT and tavern on Randolph street, not far from the market, has only a vocal bill of fare. By this we mean that when a customer enters Barney, the proprietor, calls out in a train caller's voice, "Yes, sir, Senator, we got Irish stew, Hungarian goulash, and steak and onions." The spot is a favorite gathering place for market men, politicians, and policemen. The other day three newspaper men were sitting in the restaurant when a meek looking little man entered. He was so startled by Barney's greeting that he stopped dead in his tracks for a moment, then turned and fled.

SPEAKING of politicians brings to mind that somebody wrote in the other day to say that, after reading about the poetic effusions of Ald. John J. Coughlin, he wanted to point out that Ald. Frank Keenan's literary tastes are very different. He keeps Keats and Shelley on his desk and reads from them for a little while every day. His secretary told our letter writer about it.

WE tender Merry Christmas certainly, to the teacher in a Chicago school who was telling her class of the service animals give to humans. She dwelt on the St. Bernard dog of the Alps, and recited an incident in which a St. Bernard went with some mountain climbers to the rescue of an unfortunate climber who had slipped and fallen into a crevasse.

"Down, deep into the crevasse the dog went unhesitatingly," she said, "until, suddenly coming to a dark, dangerous spot with hardly any foothold, what do you think they found?"

She waited breathlessly for an answer, and little Philomine, who was jumping up and down waving her hand, cried, "I know. Fi' cent!"

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"The Old Maid," which provides the American Theater society's subscribers with the first play of their series, is a work that carries an aura of early American manners and emotions. It has a flutter of the muted heart-breaks that were in fashion from 1834 to 1860, and its characters come from the old, ornate aristocracy of New York City which dressed itself according to the rich and elaborate fashions of Godey's Lady's Book. It comes to the stage as an echo not only of the life of a century ago but also of the theater of a less rowdy and satiric period, and probably these elements, setting it off in clear relief from the Broadway of today, contributed to its winning the Pulitzer prize of last year.

In its acting and staging this production is an affair of much distinction. Judith Anderson and Helen Menken, actresses of vivid personalities and impressive careers, lead the cast as co-stars, playing a pair of cousins whose lives become oddly entangled in the aftermath of an illicit love affair. They give notable performances in contrasting veins—Miss Anderson as the calculating woman of the world, Miss Menken as the tremulous, romantic heroine who unluckily bore an illegitimate child to her cousin's ex-lover.

The play was derived by Zoë Akins, a writer of some prowess in theatric emotions, from Edith Wharton's novel of the same title, published in 1924. Thus its background has literary distinction. Mrs. Wharton is adept in dealing with the more fancy aspects of the American scene in period atmosphere, and here she has told an effective story which Miss Akins has arranged for the stage like a good craftsman. The work has none of the clumsy and arbitrary aspects of a dramatization; but nevertheless it does not advance very far outside of its class. The fact that it had its origin in a novel is, I feel, fairly evident.

The central situation has a flavor of novelty in spite of the standardization of the theme of illegitimacy in drama. In this case the girl with the concealed baby is the one whom the audience does not suspect until she comes to the point of confession in the second act climax. Up to that time she has seemed the untouched flower, the ideal virgin of the innocent 1830s [this is Miss Menken's rôle], while her cousin who marches off to the altar in the prolog in love with a man who is not waiting for her there [this is Miss Anderson] is the young person with a knowing eye and a guilty look.

The confession made by the unmarried mother, now ready to be married, to the cousin whose jilted sweetheart she had comforted, is the heart of the play. This forms an admirable scene in which Edith Wharton's great skill for exploring the psychology of high-bred feminine types is revealed. Miss Anderson's motive in her brutal, deceptive method of solving Miss Menken's painful problem—how to keep her fatherless child and yet marry another man—is clearly shown to be jealousy, concealing itself behind the manners and logic of a "lady."

The costumes are a handsome parade of pre-civil war styles; and the stage setting for the second and third acts is a brilliant lesson in early American interior decoration. Margaret Dale as a grande dame of fashion and George Nash as a kindly family doctor are prominent in the excellent cast which supports the stars.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Frivolous, maybe, but completely satisfying to every woman because it satisfies her instinct for luxuries, is dusting powder to be used after the bath. Two new ones, in either gardenia or lavender fragrance, make charming, inexpensive gifts.

WE are always on the side of the not-terribly-sensible gift, especially if its recipient is a woman who is always sensible, whether from choice or, like most of us, from stern necessity. Frivolous people are always smart enough to wangle plenty of frivolous things, but you can take it from us that many a woman you always think of as being uninterested in gay things would get a great thrill out of some small, feminine, even silly, gift.

We are always reminded of the little, elderly, care ridden woman we know whose relatives and friends invariably decided cautiously on woolly slippers or, better yet, a small check. What she'd love best in the world is something utterly giddy, something for the frivolous, feminine moments people have forgotten she might ever have. Bath powder, for instance, would thrill her unbelievably, in spite of the fact that it wouldn't contribute a blessed thing toward the rent or keeping body and soul together. She's got to be harassed and sensible 364 days a year; on Christmas day she likes gifts for the spirit.

There may be some one like her on your list. If there is, pop down instantly for something gay. Make it dusting powder if you like—and we know of two new, inexpensive ones that are beautiful. One has the cool, gardenia, too; the other is lavender, which is always a safe choice for women of all tastes and all ages. The powder is as feathery as any woman could wish, the puffs nice and fat. There is even great charm about the round, shiny boxes, orchid for the lavender scent, a pale, silvery green for the gardenia.

If you want something personal, something inexpensive and something with the sort of charm that appeals to every woman who breathes, these dusting powders are a most happy inspiration. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Candy Tops Christmas Shopping

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Don't forget the Christmas candy! You've no doubt collected stockings by the dozens, invested in handkerchiefs in a similar lavish manner, stalked the toy shops and departments and departed with all the newest 1935 Christmas models; you've swished around and bought lingerie, negligees, belts, bags, and jewelry, but you can still go to town in the candy shops.

If you want to recapture some of the thrills of your childhood, find the old fashioned candy shop that boasts a lot of old time favorites; all the candied fruit, the marzipan vegetables, all the old stick candy, the fat candy cushions that are stuffed with luscious cherry insides and then covered with a thin layer of crackly hard goodness. The curlicues to trim the tree, violet or rose petals, shining silver seedlike candies, and the boxed mixtures in tin cans, without which no Christmas was ever successfully complete. Maple candy, molasses candy, cinnamon and fruit drops or lozenges, good old lollipops that will last a good half a day if you don't cheat and start chewing; nougats, and absolutely perfect caramels, with or without nuts.

This is the shop where you'll find those old fashioned melting squares masquerading under the name of opera creams; where you'll locate every flavored stick candy you ever haggled over when you spent your childhood pennies and nickels. Horehound drops, sticks, and all the nice black licorice drops, squares and chunks also can be bought and chewed while you wait for your change, if they tempt you too much.

Here's the shop where you'll find candy canes, huge outsize affairs to the wee little numbers to hang on the tree. And bonbons in gala array in every tint and every spice and flavor. Gumdrops, jelly beans, sugar candies and the fat, small and large round chocolate covered mints, pastel colored almonds, and all the crackling good nut candy you've been dreaming about for months.

After grabbing your candy rations via the package route it's a real thrill to assemble them the old fashioned way, and what better way to wish a Merry Christmas to one and all?

Wedding Told.

Monmouth, Ill., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Murphy, daughter of Circuit Judge and Mrs. L. E. Murphy of Monmouth, to Henry Buck, son of Clarence Buck, former state senator. The couple was married at Palmyra, Mo., Nov. 21.

MUSIC NOTES

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra is coming here. Eugene Ormondy and his men are booked into the Civic Opera house on Jan. 22. Rudolph Ganz appears as soloist in the Second Liszt Concerto, and the orchestral parts of the program run from Bach and Haydn to contemporary music. Sonzogno, an Italian not yet thirty, is represented by a tango. Eugene Zador's suite from "The Medicine Man" will receive its first Chicago performance. Zador is a Hungarian.

There is considerable interest in this country in Trudi Schoop and her comic ballet which dance in New York starting this Friday. Chicago will see her in two performances, matinée and evening, on Jan. 19. It seems the troupe has made quite a stir abroad by its original technique, which puts the emphasis not on the fantastic nor the ideally beautiful but on the everyday preoccupations of normal living.

Trudi Schoop has been compared to Charlie Chaplin for her ability to translate into terms of her own art some of the poignancy and smallness and laughter of humdrum human life.

Chicago will hear the double keyboard piano on Jan. 12 when Winifred Christie plays at the Civic theater. It is claimed that the two manual arrangement permits greater freedom in polyphonic work than the conventional one.

Lake Forest Party.

Lake Forest academy will hold its annual Christmas party for underprivileged boys tomorrow. Following a turkey dinner the boys will rally around a Christmas tree and will receive gifts of warm clothing.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse Siwash. She was taking an early morning's ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, helps her friend, Inspector Piper, investigate. They suspect murder. Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells, manager. Maude Thwaite denied to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's half-sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Violet was divorced from Don Gregg, and had had him put in alimony jail. Thomas, who with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Don Gregg had been released from alimony jail on a fake writ before his wife's death, though he has an alibi and is not held. The autopsy of Dr. Bloom, medical examiner, reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a BB bullet which hit her throat. An expert tells Miss Withers that the "murder" pipe's owner has false teeth. She buys apples with which she hopes to find who among the suspects has false teeth. Piper and Miss Withers call at the Gregg home. Pat Gregg hints there may be a second murder after the big race on Saturday at Beaulah Park. Abe Thomas admits it was he who got Don out of jail. Latigo Wells is fired from Thwaites'. The day of the race arrives. Miss Withers and Piper and all the suspects attend.

INSTALMENT XXXVIII.

THE LONG SHOT WINS.

The crowd was swept by a great groan from the thousands who had put their money on the favorite.

"Just a minute!" came the announcement. "Ladies and gentlemen, Head Wind is having a fit of temperament and will be started from outside the gate!"

Suddenly there was a great gasp from the crowd. After a split second there came the faint sound of the starting bell. . . .

"They're off!"

"And Head Wind is ahead!" cried Miss Withers happily. It was true. The big sorrel was coming down past the grand stand at least two lengths ahead of the field. "Come on, Head Wind!" cried the school teacher. "Come on. . . ." She noticed men turned to look at her.

"Quiet, Hildegarde!" ordered the inspector. He spoke to her politely, wearily. "It doesn't count, even if Head Wind stays ahead all the way around. Because he forgot to bring his jocky along."

Miss Withers peered along the fence toward the starting gate, where a small man in bright maroon silks was sadly picking himself up from the track. At the sound of the starting bell the favorite had taken a notion into his head to begin the race on two legs instead of the usual four.

Wallaby came on. He passed Verminator. He passed Easter Bunny.

The announcer's voice rang out in the loud speakers. "A mishap, ladies and gentlemen. . . . Head Wind has unseated his rider and is disqualified—now the horses are at the quarter and it's Good News, Santa Claus, and Tom-Tom. . . ."

From somewhere in the mob behind her Miss Withers heard a shrill "Yippeeeeeee!" that could have come only from the throat of Latigo Wells.

"On the back stretch it's Good News, Santa Claus, and Prince Penguin . . . with Easter Bunny closing ground fast along the rail. . . . Now it's Good News, Santa Claus, and Easter Bunny. . . ."

"Come on, Easter Bunny!" Miss Withers shrieked.

"They're at the half!" cried the announcer. "It's Good News, Easter Bunny, and Santa—NO! It's Verminator in third place, by a neck. . . ."

"Come on, Verminator!" Miss Withers cried. The inspector looked at her. "Hildegarde! Make up your mind!"

The announcer's voice was higher now, tense and breathless. "At the far turn it's Easter Bunny and Verminator, then Good News, Toy Wagon, Wallaby, and Tom-Tom . . . the rest trailing . . . Wallaby and Toy Wagon are fighting it out at the rail position——"

"Wallaby's coming through on the rail!" the announcer said. "He's coming up fast—now it's Easter Bunny and Verminator, with Wallaby forcing out Good News for third—Good News is dropping back—Toy Wagon is fighting Verminator for fourth. . . ."

Miss Withers impolitely snatched the glasses from the inspector. In a little clump along the rail she saw four horses so close together that their riders could have shaken hands.

"At the three-quarters it's Easter Bunny, Verminator, and Wallaby, with Toy Wagon close behind. . . . Verminator's rider is calling on him. . . ."

The little jocky had ridden Verminator to triumph in six major handicaps, and loved him like a brother. "This is it!" he sobbed into the ears of his plunging mount. "This is the big race, boy. Try . . . anyway——!"

Verminator plunged forward, wobbled, and two horses passed him. "It's Easter Bunny, Wallaby, and Toy Wagon—No! Wallaby is coming through on the outside. . . ."

The roar from the crowd was one great wordless gasp. Miss Withers tried to call out, "Come on, Wallaby!" but her voice was only a dismal croak.

Wallaby came on. He passed Verminator. He passed Easter Bunny, whose jocky called on her for one last grand effort and who was already giving everything she had.

"Wallaby!" thundered the announcer, "Wallaby wins! Then Easter Bunny and Toy Wagon . . . this is not official until you see the red flag. . . ."

The horses galloped on around the first turn, wheeled, and came back. Wallaby wore a flowered horseshoe wreath. Verminator limped off the track, his jocky walking beside him, crying unashamed. "He ran the last furlong on his fetlocks!" the boy sobbed. "I couldn't use the whip!" Wallaby's rider dismounted and did a little Irish jig on the track.

The inspector glared at her. "Hildegarde, what horse were you rooting for?"

"Why—the one in front!"

"But which one did you bet on? Didn't you want your horse to win?"

She nodded weakly. "Oscar—Oscar, I got so many good tips on this race that I—I couldn't resist. . . . She opened her handbag and showed him. "I bought a ticket on each horse—to win!"

For a moment Miss Withers thought that her old friend was going to faint. "Hildegarde," he exploded as soon as his powers of speech returned, "you ought to be in a museum, under glass. You'll never get rich that way." Then he remembered something. "Say, that Wallaby horse was a long shot, wasn't he? What odds did you get?"

She produced the ticket. "The man said fifty to one," she explained. "Does that mean I get my money back?"

The inspector shook his head wearily. "I bet the favorite on form and he doesn't even get in the money—and you bet every horse in the race and a 50 to 1 shot comes in! Hildegarde, you can collect $400 for your $8 ticket!"

She nodded brightly. "Even with the other cheaper tickets I bought I'm more than $360 ahead, Oscar. You know, this beats teaching school!"

She led the way toward the bookmaker's station. "Really, my conscience bothers me about this," she said as she accepted the fat roll of bills, noting that the frog-faced bookmaker eyed her with a new respect. "Gambling is against my principles—and besides, think of all the people we know who wanted and needed to win so badly! Why should I guess right and they so wrongly?"

"None of 'em bet on Wallaby, then?" Piper asked.

She shook her head. "Only one person concerned in this investigation had a hunch on Wallaby," she said. "That was Violet Feverel, and she couldn't be here to play her hunch."

Two Coming Out Parties on Calendar.

a grand whirl, since the debutante had twenty-four assistants to help her do the honors, and several young men acted as ushers and introduced the visitors to all of the feminine guests.

Miss Search and Miss Lynch received with the former's mother in a small room adjoining the ladies' dining room at the Racquet club. The tables were arranged in a horseshoe and decorated with orange and brown flowers to harmonize with the room.

Miss Search wore a reddish-brown crêpe dress; her mother wore black and green, and Miss Lynch wore black and red. All three had corsages of white orchids.

Luncheon Today for 3 Debutantes.

Mrs. Orville J. Taylor is giving a luncheon at the Casino today for Miss Shirley and Miss Loraine Logan, the Stuart Logans' debutante daughters, and for Miss Valeria Harris, debutante daughter of the Hayden B. Harrises.

Mrs. Joseph E. Magnus will be a dinner hostess next Monday night at her home in Hill road, Winnetka, for four of the season's debutantes, the Misses Rosemary Kemper, Evelyn Shuman, Frances Price, and Katherine Bulger.

Onwentsia to Have Holiday Horse Show.

There is to be a holiday party for horse lovers in the Onwentsia Riding arena on Saturday of this week. The children's events will start at 2 o'clock with a grand march—mounted, of course—and those for adults are scheduled to commence two hours later. The children will be in costume and they will enjoy refreshments at the time their elders start their events.

The Onwentsia is to be opened for New Year's eve, when there will be a gala dinner-dance. Dinner will be served at 9 and breakfast at 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress and their large family will be at home on New Year's afternoon, according to their custom, at Fenbrook, the Fentresses' hospitable home on Green Bay road in Hubbard Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett have sent out cards for their annual New Year's day eggnog party, which they always give at noon in their Burton place home.

Miss Mary Sylvia West of 35 East Division street will be at home on New Year's day from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Lingle-Bruce Wedding a Week from Saturday.

Comparatively few friends of the Bowman Lingle family will be able to accept the invitations to the wedding of their son, Kendall Ide Lingle, and Miss Mary Bruce of Charleston, W. Va., a week from next Saturday, because the wedding will be in Charleston. Mr. Lingle, his parents, several relatives and ushers will be going south, however, within the next ten days.

Miss Bruce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Bruce of Charleston, has asked her fiancé's cousin, Miss Elizabeth Lingle of Evanston, to attend her as a bridesmaid, and Mr. Lingle has invited Chalkley Jay Hambleton Jr. to serve as best man. Mr. Hambleton and Peter Fortune, who will be among the ushers, are leaving on Thursday of next week for Charleston. The bridegroom-to-be and his mother are leaving on Thursday of this week, for there is a round of parties scheduled for the bride-to-be and Mr. Lingle which begins on Friday.

Mr. Lingle is leaving on New Year's day, and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. William Ide Lingle, and two aunts, Miss Helen Kendall and Mrs. James C. Ames, will go south at about that time. Because train connections are so complicated, the Bruces are planning to charter a bus or to send cars to bring their out-of-town guests from Columbus to Charleston.

Miss Rosemary Mevi of New York will be Miss Bruce's other bridesmaid, and Miss Rebecca Dickinson of Charleston will be maid of honor. Mrs. William Chilton will be matron of honor. Duncan Bruce Jr. will be among Mr. Lingle's groomsmen. Others include Thomas Raglan, Tucker McFall, and William Chilton of Charleston, and Otis T. Wingo of Washington, D. C.

Truax-Tippey Nuptials Tonight.

At a simple ceremony this evening in the drawing room of Egandale, the Highland Park home of her grandmother, Mrs. William C. Egan, Miss Ellen Truax will be married to Marvin E. Tippey of Chicago. Miss Truax will wear traveling clothes and will be unattended.

The Rev. C. H. Keller, rector of Trinity Episcopal church of Highland Park, will perform the ceremony in the presence of members of the family, and there will be no reception afterward.

Mr. Tippey and his bride will make their home in an apartment on the north side. Miss Truax is the daughter of Mrs. Sewell Truax of Highland Park.

Mrs. George Lytton announces the marriage of her daughter, Rosemary Kimball, to Lieut. Charles Sutton Sheppard, British royal navy, on Saturday, Dec. 21, at Brownton Oratory, London.

Miss Harriet Tilden has decided that Feb. 1 will be the date for her marriage to Robert Edwin English. The wedding will be in the evening at the Winnetka residence of Miss Tilden's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Averill Tilden.

Miss Ruth Tilden, who now is at home for the holidays, will return again from Sarah Lawrence college to be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Walter N. Stuckslager, will be the matron of honor.

Mr. English's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William R. English of Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Sims are being congratulated upon the birth of their second son, to be named David Knowles Sims, on Sunday at the Michael Reese hospital. Tiny David's brother is three and one-half year old Frank McNair Sims.

Mrs. Lawrence Williams arrives at home today from a flying trip to England just in time to spend Christmas with her family in Lake Forest. She spent two weeks in London with her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Cuthbert Ross Cuthbert.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, who returned recently from a four months' European trip, is to be in Chicago such a short time that she is being kept very busy seeing her friends, all of whom want to have a visit with her before she leaves to join Senator Lewis in Washington. His work has piled up so because of his long absence—it was twice as long as intended because of his serious illness—that he will not be able to come to Chicago for Christmas, Mrs. Lewis will spend the holiday with friends and will join her husband in time for President and Mrs. Roosevelt's dinner party on the night of Jan. 2 at the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Mordock of Winnetka have as their house guests over the holidays Mrs. Mancel T. Clark and her son, Mancel T. Clark Jr., former Winnetkans now living in Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Clark, who is studying at the Yale architectural school, will be an usher at the wedding of Miss Louise Parsons and Francis Rew Stanon on Jan. 4 at St. Chrysostom's church.

Big Sisters Give Christmas Dinners to School Groups

The Big Sisters gave a Christmas party for 300 children yesterday at St. Dominic's school. There was a turkey dinner and afterward Santa Claus presented every child with a Christmas stocking. This coming Sunday the organization will entertain the girls who hold its scholarships at a turkey dinner at the home of Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president. Purses, handkerchiefs, and other gifts are being distributed to the Convent of the Good Shepherd on the north side, to the Illinois Technical school on the south side, to the Frances Juvenile home, and to the Mary A and Mary B clubs.

Four Aces Victors as Thousands Attend Finals at Garden

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The Four Aces, holders of the Vanderbilt cup team-of-four championship, tonight emerged victors by a 2,810 point margin in their Madison Square Garden 300 hand contract bridge match against a French team.

About 1,000 persons saw fifty-two sandwich men enact in the Garden's large arena the final hands of the play which promoters termed a world championship international match.

The players were on another floor, invisible to the audience. Applause greeted adroit plays.

BY MARY MEADE.

Holiday food, like shining holiday spirits, glowing lights, and bursting packages reflects the gayety of the season. Today we want to add our final best wishes for a joyous Christmas in the form of some last minute suggestions for that holiday touch.

Starting with the poinsettia cut cherries on the top of the fruit cocktail or chilled grapefruit, tomorrow's dinner can be fairly singing with good cheer—and without upsetting the already crowded kitchen schedule or causing any post-holiday indigestion.

The salad may be a simply prepared, an ever-so-lovely Christmas bell, or an easily simulated holly wreath. The first is merely two pink tinted pear halves, joined together with a layer of cream cheese and sliced flat across the large ends so that the bell will stand upright in a cup of lettuce. Pipings of cream cheese down the sides disguise the division, and a bright cherry tops the whole. Mayonnaise or a fruit dressing is served separately.

A Christmas wreath salad is quickly made from rings of canned pineapple. Halved grapes are laid atop these in a neat ring, each half slightly overlapping its successor. A red bow is easily formed from thinly sliced canned pimiento, and the entire salad is effective on a bed of dark water cress or curly endive.

For garnishing the plum pudding, if such there is to be, again we choose cherry poinsettias. These are made by making five or six cuts in each, through the pitted end, up to within an eighth of an inch of the round end, and pressing the flowers, thus formed, flat on waxed paper. Sprinkled with granulated sugar, these may be prepared today.

If you're baking a layer cake this morning for tomorrow's festivities, how about turning it into a Christmas tree? Two square layers, put together with your favorite filling, may be so cut by following these simple directions: Cut off one point of the cake so as to make a flat base for the tree about three inches across. From each of the new corners thus formed, cut straight up into the cake with two parallel strokes, making these two cuts two inches long. From either side, cut over to the adjoining side point of the original cake—and presto! you've achieved a neat little tree of the same blocky shape the kindergarteners make. Cover the top and sides of the tree with a boiled frosting [tinted green if you like], festoon the tree with tiny silver or colored candy shot, and outline the edges with small colored candles to be lighted at serving time.

According to CULBERTSON

COUP AND CONTRE-COUP.

It is a mistake to think that defensive play is essentially different from the management of the dummy. Granting the partnership feature, which involves many conventions, or signals, there is no play which, at double-dummy, would not be equally applicable to offense and defense. As a matter of fact, a defender's problem is simply to visualize the declarer's proper play and then, by adroit maneuvering, to throw as many obstacles in his path as possible.

The declarer in today's hand was well on his way toward victory, with an ingenious type of throw-in play, when the East player, who could visualize as well as the declarer could see, stepped in and upset the apple cart.

South, dealer.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 spade | Pass | 2 spades | Pass |
| 4 spades [final bid] | | | |

West opened the fourth best diamond, dummy played low, and South won with the ace. South cashed the king of diamonds and then led a low trump to North's jack. A third round of diamonds was ruffed by South and another trump led to the king. Now the jack of diamonds was played, and declarer waited expectantly for East to discard. But that player had been doing some thinking meanwhile. The declarer apparently was stripping the hand of diamonds, but it couldn't be a complete elimination plan, because he, East, held as many trumps as the dummy. But West, on the second trump lead, had played the ten, clearly indicating no more. Then the elimination plan was operative against West if he were forced to lead. Once recognized, the problem was easy to solve. East simply trumped the diamond jack, and West was saved the embarrassment of leading to the next trick.

Obviously, had East failed to trump at this point, declarer would simply have tossed a losing club on the diamond jack and West, thrown on lead, would have had the sorry choice of leading another diamond, allowing a ruff and discard, or leading up to South's club king, or creating a double finesse position against the queen and jack by leading a heart.

The declarer's plan was good enough to succeed against most defenders, I am bound to say.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Playing against a four spade contract, my partner led the king of diamonds. I held the Q 9 6 4 2 of diamonds, and to show the queen, signaled with the nine. Was this correct? I was much criticized.

Answer: Contrary to general belief, a signal in following suit does not show the possession of certain cards. It is used only to convey one of two messages: "Come on," or "Shift to another suit." This method of "steering the defense" usually is much more important than the placing of a certain card.

Child Is Merely Naive in Making 'Selfish' Gifts

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"You must be just about 'done in,'" said one mother to another who had been doing a difficult but necessary professional job. "What you need is to go home and get into a warm bath with a handful of those restful pine bath salts dumped in."

"Bath salts!" laughed the second mother. "That used to be one of the luxuries I longed for which my economical soul would never let me buy. But on my last birthday Betsy presented me with a jar, satin bow round its neck and all. So I may be able to follow your prescription—that is, if there are any salts left. Betsy adores them—I suppose one does at 16."

Betsy's mother stopped a minute, than went on.

"At Christmas time," she said, "Betsy gave me a bottle of the most exclusive and expensive nail polish on the market—me, who usually picks one up at a five and ten on the wing! And every once in a while she'll say, 'Mother would you mind if I tried your special nail polish?' The funny thing is that she's an unselfish darling and I'm sure she's utterly unconscious when she gives me what she thinks is the perfect present."

"I'm sure she is," said the first mother. "I remember the Christmas that Joey gave me a big, clumsy, horn handled pocket knife for my pencil tray on that little French desk of mine. They don't realize they're giving you their own heart's desire. At best it's hard for them to imagine what you would like."

Whatever the children give you for Christmas, take it in the spirit in which it is given. Unless they go into friendly conspiracy with some member of the family about what would be nice to give you, or unless you let fall one of those helpful hints, don't be surprised at anything you may find lovingly wrapped and with your name on, on Christmas morning.

"Gifts the Children Can Make," a leaflet of directions for birthday as well as Christmas giving, may be obtained by sending to us a stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you want the double sized gift leaflet, send double postage.

Triangle Club Offers Satire on U. S. Today

'What a Relief' Enjoyed by Large Audience.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

It needed no especial loyalty to Old Nassau to find entertainment in the show presented last night by the Princeton Triangle club before a large audience in the Auditorium theater. "What a Relief" lived up to its name by taking many a sly dig at the current scheme of things in these United States while ostensibly describing the affairs, heart and otherwise, of the immortals on Olympus.

Jupiter, played by W. H. Smith, president of the club, provoked much mirth through his efforts to remain president of the gods by getting rid of the surplus of 4 billion 800 million in his treasury. His answer to an aid as to what certain statues outside his palace were: "O, they're relief workers," was one of the hit lines of the show, and he delivered it with a toss of head and a wide smile uncannily familiar to newsreel audiences.

Juno, living up to her classic reputation for badgering her august spouse, copped the spotlight at his press conferences by her unofficial statements in most disastrous fashion.

Robert McPherson Wood of Highland Park, who starred in "Stags at Bay" last year, was the chief rival for Venus' hand in this year's show. His song, "I Shan't Love You Any More," sung with Apollo and Venus, brought down the house with its amusing allusions to everything from Greta Garbo to baseball.

The Edwin M. Ashcrafts III. and their daughter, Miss Virginia Ashcraft, were there to applaud their house guest, Ralph Whittaker, who as the dreamy Narcissus was galvanized to life by the attentions of a Diana.

Alfred M. Osgood and Charles I. Pierce were in the chorus of statuesque maidens. Leap frog and six foot plunges from walls were only a few of the antics of these athletic maidens.

The De Forest Hulburds brought a group of young friends of their daughter, Miss Marie Louise Hulburd, who were their guests at dinner. Another group came as guests of Mrs. Douglas Stuart.

Cranberry Motif Achieves Holiday Spirit in Quilt

BY NANCY CABOT.

Today is an especially good day to present this old quilt block, "Cranberry Patch," because it proves to be a gentle reminder of that commodity essential to the complete success of that big Christmas dinner in process of preparation. "Cranberry Patch" is one of the most unusual and beautiful of all the old quilt blocks. Pieced in two shades of red print, solid red, and white it proves itself to be one of the outstanding examples of distinction and individuality.

Brunette Has Beauty 'Breaks,' Says Raquel Torres of Movies

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In an interview with a brunette the other day the question arose as to whether, if we were given our lives to live over again, we really would ask for a change in coloring. Whether the blonde, say, would ask to be made a brunette and vice versa. Whether a short woman really would demand to be tall or a tall one ask to appear the next time a miniature edition of herself?

Raquel Torres is the brunette with whom I was talking when the subject arose. Raquel wouldn't ask for any change. She thinks being a brunette has a great many advantages. She is one, with the blackest hair you ever saw, and deep, dark eyes. Also, she's tiny, 5 feet 2½ inches with high heels, the heels at least two inches high. And she likes being small and cuddly. If you're a brunette, you can wear all the vivid colors your heart is set upon, says Raquel. And her heart is set upon them, the brightest greens included.

You can wear black and you can wear white, yellow, ruby red, and vermilions—every color under the sun, in fact. Your hair doesn't have to be taken to the beauty parlor every week to get the bleach touched up, or the natural blonde locks brightened. You can wear the deep tan makeup and it isn't known whether it's your own olive skin or not. You can take liberties with makeup sometimes denied other women. In fact, Raquel, speaking for brunettes, thinks they're a pretty lucky group all around. She wouldn't ask to change her size or coloring. But if she had to change by some ruling over which she'd have no command, she'd go red.

BOILERMAKERS' SPEED BRINGS 54-40 VICTORY

Players Tangle in 1st Irish Defeat.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 23. — The Hoosiers have a name for it—fire department basketball. That's what they say down here in Indiana when a basketball team runs wild and the devil takes the hindmost. Tonight on the gymnasium floor of Lafayette's Jefferson High school before 4,500 partisan fans Purdue's sharpshooters ended Notre Dame's string of victories, 54 to 40, with an exhibition of speed and basket tossing the like of which few in this crowd ever had seen or thought they would see.

Fifty-four forty or fight once was a mighty political slogan. Tonight it was 54-40 and fight. Both teams gave clear evidence that they had parked their Yuletide spirit at the door. Indeed, this personal enthusiasm was the only reason for watching the closing minutes of the battle, for after five minutes of the second half it was evident that the Boilermakers were headed for their fourth victory of the current campaign and the Irish were destined to lose their first engagement in eight contests.

Peters Clips Malaska.

The extra legal sidelights were climaxed with Marty Peters' perfect clipping play on Pat Malaska, after which Peters retired to the bench at Coach Keogan's request. But the other lads carried on. Bob Kessler and Frank Wade exchanged punches coming off the floor for a held ball. These playful gestures were accepted as such by both men, however, and the officials, who already had whistled for 32 fouls, 21 of them on Notre Dame, did not deign to call attention to the left leads.

One week ago tonight Notre Dame smashed Northwestern's defenses with a speed attack which swept the defenders aside as a cyclone whirls through the countryside. But speed, however, is relative, and tonight the Boilermakers, who are by Coach Ward Lambert's admission the fastest squad he ever has coached, made the Irish boys seem as if they were tied to the floor.

Turns Loose Sophomores.

For the first time this year Coach Lambert shoved in his three sophomore stars — John Sines, Jewell Young, and Pat Malaska. Sines and Young played together here for Jefferson High school. Malaska, a short, tightly strung youngster from Crawfordsville, Ind., wo bobs his head in time with his driving legs as he dribbles, fitted in with these forwards like a glove fits the hand. He shot accurate passes to them, came in to take returns, and in brief, carried the attack on his shoulders.

Notre Dame didn't yield without a furious struggle. Twice in the first half the Irish were in front and only faded toward the end of the first half to trail at the intermission, 29 to 22. John Ford, substitute guard; John Moir, forward, and Paul Nowak, center, led Notre Dame's attack, Moir, in particular, matched the sharp reverses and the fast dribbling of Purdue's sophomores. But Moir and Nowak both were excused on four personal fouls before the end of this wild scramble, and with their departure, the bottom fell out of the Irish plans for victory.

Notre Dame Gets Early Lead.

Notre Dame led 5 to 1 in the first two minutes on Meyer's field goal and free throws by this lad and Nowak. Then Purdue rallied to take an 8 to 5 lead, which Kessler made 12 to 7 with two one hand goals. Nowak's set shot from the corner accounted for Notre Dame's increase in that same brief period of time.

This Boilermaker lead was maintained up to the time Purdue led 19 to 13. Here Notre Dame spurted. Nowak, Moir, and Nowak once again went under for goals with Purdue men out of position. Then Ireland added another for Notre Dame and the Irish were back in front, 21 to 19. This was signal for a new spurt by the Boilermakers.

Sines' free throw on Nowak's foul and Malaska's long goal gave Purdue a 22 to 21 edge in the argument. Ireland landed a free throw after Jim Seward's free throw and Purdue raced in for three field goals in the final minutes to lead 29 to 22 at the intermission.

Purdue Gets Scare.

Notre Dame threw a scare in the Boilermakers at the beginning of the second half. Ford, Nowak, and Moir counted in comparison to Malaska's field goal and the Irish trailed, 31 to 28. This was the best the invaders could do.

Glenn Downey returned to the game and he was instrumental in running up a Purdue lead of 44 to 28. This furious play smashed Notre Dame's hope for victory. It practically accomplished the final margin of the Boilermaker triumph.

Writers Asked to Name Ten for Baseball's Hall of Fame

Henry P. Edwards, secretary of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, yesterday asked baseball writers of the country to select ten stars of the last 36 seasons whose names are to be emblazoned on the list of the game's all time greats which is to become a part of the baseball museum and hall of fame now being established at Cooperstown, N. Y., cradle of baseball.

In launching the poll Mr. Edwards has listed the names of 33 nominees, the roll being headed by Christy Mathewson, old New York Giant hero, and closing with Al Simmons, outfielder whom the Chicago White Sox recently sold to the world champion Detroit Tigers. Voters have been asked to check off the names of the ten they think were greatest. No provision is made for writing in the names of other nominees, such as Cracker Schalk, who holds more catching records than any other performer, or Gabby Hartnett, who also is omitted from the scroll of eligibles. It is said, however, that the names of favorites may be written in without penalty.

Mr. Edwards Sizes 'Em Up.

To help the experts do their expert-ing Mr. Edwards has appended comments on the several nominees, comment which is first hand appraisal. Mr. Edwards is one of the really old time experts, who was born not so very far from Cooperstown, though he never went to school with Abner Doubleday, founder of the game.

Mr. Edwards' ballot and comment follows:

Pitchers.

Grover Alexander, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis Nationals — Had everything; famed for his large number of shutout games; hero of 1926 world series.

Cy Young, Cleveland and St. Louis Nationals, Boston and Cleveland Americans—Only pitcher to win more than 500 major league games.

Ed Walsh, Chicago White Sox—Greatest spitball pitcher.

Mordecai Brown, St. Louis and Chicago Nationals.

Catchers.

Roger Bresnahan, Baltimore Americans, New York Giants—Great all around player.

Gordon Cochrane, Philadelphia Athletics, Detroit—Listed on practically all all-star teams.

First Baseman.

Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees—Great long hitter and capable fielder. Most durable player in history of baseball, having played 1,653 consecutive games.

Second Basemen.

Napoleon Lajoie, Philadelphia Athletics, Cleveland—Most graceful fielder and terrific hitter. Starred for twenty years.

Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis, New York, Boston, and Chicago Nationals—Greatest batsman in National league since 1900 if not for all time.

John Evers, Chicago, Boston N. L.—Brainy, capable. Really a star.

John [Honus] Wagner, Pittsburgh—Only one Wagner.

Third Basemen.

James Collins, Boston N. L. and A. L.—Class of third basemen in A. L.

Jacobs Charges $6,500 to Experience.

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—About $6,500 poorer in the pocketbook, but incalculably richer in experience, Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting club returned today from Havana with the announcement that the proposed Joe Louis-Isadore Castanaga heavyweight bout is definitly off.

The fight, originally scheduled for Sunday afternoon, then postponed, according to Jacobs' announcement from Havana, until Feb. 2, has been abandoned, the Twentieth Century promoter said, because of the existing political situation in Cuba. No attempt will be made to stage the bout in Detroit in February, Jacobs said. He added an attempt will be made to obtain another opponent for Louis in Detroit, but said he could not announce definite plans in this direction until he confers with Julian Black and John Roxborough, the managers of Louis, in Chicago.

Next Fight in Chicago.

Louis is to fight Charley Retzlaff, Minnesota giant, in Chicago on Jan. 17. The proposed Detroit bout will be arranged as the last for the Detroit Bomber before he tackles Max Schmeling at the Yankee stadium in June, according to Jacobs' present plans.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, who accompanied Promoter Jacobs on the jaunt to Havana, approved the cancellation of the Louis- Gastanaga bout.

"After my own experience in Havana I don't think it would be safe to risk taking Louis there for a fight, and that's why I am calling off the Gastanaga battle," said Mike Jacobs. "A welcome committee of machine gunners met our party when we stepped off the plane. It was explained they were assigned to meet me with this artillery display just to convince me everything was all right in Havana. It was a novel way of showing me everything was calm and peaceful, wasn't it?

Hurray, He's Suspended!

"That decided me. Right then and there the fight was off. I recall thinking that whoever gave Black and Roxborough the information on which they announced Louis' withdrawal from the bout while I was en route to Havana had the real dope. But their announced withdrawal placed me in an embarrassing situation, because I was heading for a meeting with the civil and boxing authorities there. I was told they would suspend Louis and his managers, and I agreed to that, assuring the gathering of officials the fight would be postponed until Feb. 2. Then they suspended me. That was just what I wanted. I could not promote a fight there if I was under suspension.

"They told me I would be suspend-

AFTER THE BALL! WHO'LL GET IT?

Ball bounces from backboard and a pair of Wisconsin players vie with two from De Paul for possession of it in last night's battle at the Chicago Stadium which was won by De Paul, 27 to 22. Wisconsin was the third of three Big Ten co-champions taken on by De Paul this year, the Blue Demons having lost to Purdue and Illinois by two point margins. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Silver Skates Finals Will Be on 6 Lap Track

An eight lap to the mile track will be used for the preliminary Silver Skates races on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 11. Qualifying trials will be held in three age classes, the boys' midget, juvenile, and junior races. Then, on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 12, when preliminaries in the other four derbies and the seven championship events are held, a six lap to the mile track will be surveyed at Garfield park lagoon.

If the men's senior championship is decided at two miles and on a 12 lap to the mile track, for example, the advantage of the pole position because of the frequent turns is obvious.

Entries close at midnight Jan. 5 and must be in the mail prior to that time. No boy or girl may enter this year's derbies after Jan. 5.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WAKE MAIL BOX

DEAR WAKE: Athletic subsidization usually is thought of in selfish terms. Colleges are looking at it from the dollars and cents side instead of the educational side. Subsidizing athletes is educationally unsound. Let me illustrate:

The athlete comes to school and gets a "free ride"—tuition, room and board, and a liberal amount of spending money. He is literally pushed through in the matter of grades. The man is an athlete. Athletics bring money to the institution.

But what of the athlete's future? He becomes acclimated to his surroundings. He assimilates the habit of scholastically doing nothing and monetarily receiving everything, for which he gives nothing—at least, nothing constructive.

How difficult will it be for him when he gets out into the world, unqualified from lack of proper study and hampered by the bad habit he has assumed? He still expects his "free ride." He still expects to do nothing and get paid for it in return.

U. of I. Student.

A few days ago we accepted a short story from ——— at DePauw university. For his work in poking a typewriter Mr. ——— will be paid. This will not in any way make him ineligible for intercollegiate debating or athletics, nor will it be considered unsportsmanlike for him to compete scholastically with other students who have not sold to national magazines.

Had he been an athlete and picked up a little money playing hocky or baseball outside of school he would immediately have been classed as a big, bad professional unfit to associate with nice boys. Which, as Gertrude Stein would say, makes it well fish.

Ted Leitzell, Co-editor
"Real America."

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those DePaul boys, who in two defeats had become a little apprehensive about the Stadium as their home base, last night decided the big red hall on Madison street is a wonderful basketball habitat. They felt that way after they had turned in a 27 to 22 victory over the heretofore undefeated Wisconsin Badgers.

When the De Pauls moved into the Stadium several weeks ago they were boasting a record of 36 victories in 37 starts and a string of 14 triumphs in a row Then Purdue and Illinois, co-champions of the Big Ten, pinned back their ears in a couple of close contests and woe was abroad on the north side. All of which was adjusted last night when the Chicago outfit came from behind to squelch the able fellows from Madison, who share the title with the Illini and Boilermakers.

All Without Cheering, Too.

The night's leading scorer, Fred Wegner, was on the losers. He made five field goals, but started a bit too late. After making the first basket of the evening he waited till the second half for further functioning and four in a row at that time weren't enough to overtake the Demons, who had gone ahead 17 to 12 at the half.

The Badgers weren't in arrears from the first basket until near the close of the first half when De Paul got hot. The Badgers early lead never exceeded four points, however, this margin being effected by a count of 8 to 4 on DeMarks' third successive goal, after Wegner had launched the tabulating business.

The lads started cautiously and it was several minutes before Wegner made his opening score with a long looping shot. Kenez tied the count at 2 all shortly afterward, then DeMark netted two of his series of three in a row. Adams followed with a basket for De Paul and DeMark clicked with his No. 3.

Wendt registered a goal from under the basket for a 6 to 8 count, still in Wisconsin's favor.

Ah! They Make One.

At this juncture Adams convinced the customers there was no rule against successful free throws. Ray dropped a free one in after his team had failed in five similar efforts and Wisconsin had failed on three chances. This made the count Wisconsin, 8; De Paul, 7.

Yost scord a goal shortly after to give De Paul the edge for the first time, 9 to 8, but the Badgers snatched the lead almost instantly when Jones sank one.

There was an immediate see-saw, though, and Phillips put the northsiders ahead, 11 to 10, and Powell came up with one from under the basket for an 11 to 12 Wisconsin advantage. At this point DePaul stepped on it and successive goals by Phillips, Campion, and Yost put DePaul on top, 17 to 12, at the half.

Badgers Creep Up.

Phillips and Adams fattened the count to 22 to 14, before Wegner started sizzling, though Wegner had made two points while De Paul was making five in the early phase of the second half.

Starting with that 22 to 14 ratio, Wegner added three more baskets while De Paul had to be contented with a successful free throw by Adams. This made it 23 to 20 for De Paul and the gap shrank further when Stege made the count 23 to 22.

The 23 to 22 score prevailed for quite a spell. Then, with seconds to go Knez and Yost dropped in two goals in rapid succession for the ball game.

SANTA CLAUS HAS SPECIAL WISHES FOR SPORTSMEN

And Here Is Confidential List in Advance.

BY BOB BECKER.

When Santa Claus starts out tonight to distribute gifts he will keep in mind millions of sportsmen in the United States, so there will be guns, fishing rods and all kinds of outdoor equipment in his pack for the boys who like the outdoors.

But in addition to these gifts, Santa has a lot of good wishes for outdoorsmen. The old boy has given us a confidential release on these so that they can be published today, Christmas eve. After adding a few Christmas wishes of our own, the list is as follows:

For duck hunters . . . From Santa and this department the wish is that in 1936 the waterfowl of America will have another good breeding season, so that the duck and goose population will get well above the recent danger level. With another good nesting season next spring, the wish of the sportsman for a longer season can be fulfilled. And, while we are wishing for this and that at the Christmas season, sportsmen might well wish for support of the federal wardens to enforce the laws against potshooters, duck trappers and vendors of ducks.

More Than Wishing Is Required.

With millions of dollars being tossed around by the government for all sorts of wild spending projects, Christmas finds the federal wardens lacking funds to carry on their work to protect America's waterfowl resources. [It's going to take more than Christmas wishing by sportsmen to secure adequate funds for this much needed work, however.]

For upland game hunters . . . That they will have better pheasant, rabbit, and quail hunting during 1936 by starting on a system of growing game in the wild state, rather than expecting miracles through the obsolete system of turning out thousands of birds on land that can't support wild birds. If the wild game authorities could join in this wish for upland game hunters they would add:

"Let's make 1936 the year to start on the program of intelligent game management, so that farm lands will produce game birds and animals as a secondary crop."

Give Birds a Chance.

For farmers and landowners . . . The Christmas wish is that they will realize the value of song and game birds on their lands as fighting aids against insect and weed pests. And, instead of cutting down all hedges, and cleaning out every field corner so there isn't any cover for birds, that they will leave the birds sufficient vegetation for their nests and sources of food.

Those of us who live in the city are willing to pay for hunting privileges, so producing a game bird crop can mean an income to landowners during the hunting season.

For the Illinois department of conservation . . . That during 1936 you will be able to get that law passed making it possible for an owner or lessee of land to raise game birds and have the fun of hunting them because this system automatically helps stock the country all around a shooting preserve, inasmuch as some birds naturally leave preserves and fly where they please. Thus, the preserve system achieves two objectives with every hunter benefiting.

ed until Louis fought there. That was all right, too, because I was informed they planned a welcome reception for Louis in which he would be escorted, front and rear, by cars loaded with Cubans armed to the teeth. Wouldn't that be a fine reception for a fighter on the way to the heavyweight title? I told my Cuban friends that Louis had gone stale through overwork, and that the Feb. 2 date probably would find him in fine fettle. Then I grabbed my hat and ran for home."

Tells Staf to Clear Out.

Promoter Jacobs admitted fabricating the tale of Louis' poor physical condition as the easiest way out of a threatening situation. He added that before leaving he had advised his staf in Havana, George Smith, in charge of the box office there, and Walter St. Denis, publicity purveyor, to make tracks for home as soon as they could.

THOMPSON LEADS NATIONAL HOCKY LEAGUE SCORERS

Piles Up 15 Points on 9 Goals, 6 Assists.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 23.—[Special.]—With heavier scoring in evidence on all fronts, the race for individual leadership in the National Hocky league tightened last week, according to official statistics issued today from the offices of President Frank Calder.

Buzz Boll of the Toronto Maple Leafs, who, with Ralph [Cooney] Weiland of Boston, made the biggest gain of the week, each getting four points, forged into a third place tie in the Canadian division, where only two points separate the first five men. In the American division there are only four points between the first seven.

Thompson Leads League.

Paul Thompson, Chicago left wing, still holds league leadership on points with nine goals and six assists, while in the Canadian division Charlie Conacher of Toronto is the leader with 12 points, only one ahead of his left wing mate, Harvey [Busher] Jackson.

All five leaders in Canadian sections are members of the Leaf scoring machine, with Metz, Thoms and Boll in a triple tie for third. Each has 11 points. Metz leads the section in goals with nine.

Rangers Come Up.

More teams are represented in the fight for individual supremacy in the American division. The New York Rangers, back in winning stride, are in the picture, with Cecil Dillon and the veteran center, Frank Boucher, in a second place tie, each with 12 points.

HAWKS GO TO DETROIT

The Blackhawks team will hang up their stockings in Detroit on Christmas eve, and every member has asked Santa Claus for a new pair of skates. A game with the Detroit Red Wings tomorrow night at the Olympia takes the Hawks out of town over the holiday.

The Hawks left for Detroit last night, will practice today, play on Christmas night, and remain in Detroit for more practice on Thursday and Friday, returning to Chicago Friday evening. The next home game at the Stadium will be against the New York Rangers on Sunday night.

The Rangers will stop at Toronto on their way west for a game on Saturday night with the Maple Leafs, and if they are beaten there and should lose again the following night in Chicago, the Hawks will have a chance to climb over the Rangers in the standing and vault back into second place in the American division.

Hawks in Good Shape.

The Hawks came out of their 3 to 2 overtime defeat at the hands of the New York Americans Sunday night without a scratch, and are in better physical condition than at any time this season. Manager Loughlin plans one change in the lineup for the Christmas night game in Detroit. Marty Burke and Alex Levinsky will pair as one defense combination and Art Coulter will team with Art Welbe, a variation from the defense assignment that has been used to date.

Old Fashioned Christmas Tree.

Remember 'way back when, on Christmas,
We had aways a real tree
Without new fangled trimmings,
But trimmed as it should be?
We hung oranges and apples a-plenty,
and strings of popcorn, too.
O, I tell you, the night before Christmas
We all had much to do!
We made ropes of bright red cranberries
And draped them with utmost care;
We placed canes of peppermint candy
Where'er the tree looked bare.
There were yards and yards of tinsel
And ornaments from the country store,
And when the tree was finished
There was never room for more.
The last and loveliest trimmings,
Their passing I'll always regret,
Were the beautiful bright colored candles—
I wish we were using them yet.

Please, Santa Claus, bring me a hungry goat.
Great comfort will it give me bye and bye
To witness sliding down his eager throat

As well, one favor more would I invoke:
Be guided by its perfume to the spot,
Then fetch the box—I fear goats do not smoke.

HARTNETT LEADS CATCHERS THIRD STRAIGHT YEAR

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—If Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, adheres to his intention of retiring from active competition next year, it will be with the knowledge that for two straight years he has been the National league's No. 1 fielding first baseman.

Official records, released today, reveal that Terry finished his second year at the top with an average of .996 as the veterans gained an edge over the newcomers.

Schumacher Leads Hurlers.

Charles [Gabby] Hartnett, the Chicago Cubs vetern catcher who was voted the league's most valuable player, went Terry one better, however. He was crowned the league's ranking receiver for the third straight year with an average of .984 for 110 games. It was the 11th year in which Hartnett had caught in 100 or more games.

Considering 100 games as a minimum for a competitor for first place, the other leaders in the various positions were:

Second base, Billy Herman, Chicago, .964. Third base, John Vergez, Philadelphia, .953; shortstop, Bill Jurges, Chicago, .964; outfield, Mel Ott, New York, .990, and pitcher, Hal Schumacher, New York, 1.000. A total of 18 pitchers had perfect fielding records, but Schumacher handled 103 chances, more than twice as many as his nearest rival, Guy Bush, of Pittsburgh.

Waner Sets Record.

During the year one team record and three individual marks were tied while Lloyd Waner, of Pittsburgh, established a new record in making nine putouts in each game of a double-header.

The record-equalling feats were made by the Phillies in completing six double plays in one game; by Jim Collins, St. Louis, in handling only one chance at first base in a complete game; by John C. [Blondy] Ryan in participating in five double plays out of the six the Phillies made and by Lou Chiozza and in handling eleven assists at second base for the same team.

MILLNER, IRISH END, REVEALS SECRET MARRIAGE

Salem, Mass., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The secret marriage of Wayne Millner, Notre Dame football star, to Ann Marie Perry of Peabody, Mass., became known tonight when the couple celebrated their first anniversary a few days ahead of time.

"We were married last Dec. 29 at St. Thomas church in Peabody by Father Stephen Demoura, and since this is my first visit home since September, we have decided to celebrate our first anniversary tonight," Millner told friends.

The couple, who have an infant daughter, Lilian Beatrice, reside here with Millner's parents. The bride is the daughter of Emmanuel and Rose Perry of Peabody. She is 23 and Millner a year older.

Mrs. Millner, who regards football as a "very rough" sport, saw her husband play in only one game, the 1934 Notre Dame-Army contest.

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Firmness in low priced railroad issues and an improved demand for government loans attracted principal interest on the bond market today. Transfers of $13,343,000 par value, compared with $11,312,000 last Friday.

The good showing in rails was attributed in most quarters to the action of Jesse Jones, RFC head, in offering to absorb a maturing issue of $8,000,000 Illinois central notes on a 4 per cent basis as against 6½ per cent now paid.

Illinois Central Bonds Rise.

Illinois Central 4¾s advanced 2½ points and several other of the road's bonds were up nearly that much. Other firm spots included Nickel Plate 4½s, up 1¼, and Atlantic Coast Line 4½s, Great Northern 4½s, and Pere Marquette 5s, up 1 point each.

United States government loans were turned over at the liveliest pace in several weeks, sals aggregating slightly more than $2,000,000 against only $670,000 last Friday. The majority of active issues ended with gains of 1-32d to 4-32ds.

Oil Issues Make Gains.

A gain of 1 to 2 points in bonds of Pan-American Petroleum and Richfield Oil and a 1 point climb in Utility Power and Light 5s were highlights elsewhere in the domestic division. Walworth bonds again rose sharply, with the 6s of 1945 up 5½ points on a light turnover.

The newest twist in international developments affecting Italy was the cause of further unsettlement in Italian bonds, several of which lost 1 to nearly 3 points. Other foreign issues were quiet.

Oklahoma Railway.

Investors' Guide: Several times you have given me valuable information. Will you advise me what you think of Oklahoma Railway 5s, due 1941?—P. C. E.

Answer: Oklahoma Railway company operates an electric railway system and supplemental bus lines in Oklahoma City and some interurban service. It has keenly felt the competition of the private automobile. Even in former times, however, fixed charges were not covered by any too large a margin.

Some improvement, but not much, has been evidenced recently. In the first seven months of 1935 the company reported an operating loss of $31,000, against $57,000 in the first seven months of 1934.

The company lost $117,000 before fixed charges in 1934, $189,000 in 1933, and $100,000 in 1932. In 1931 it earned 58 per cent of fixed charges.

Poor record of earnings makes the bonds just a speculation. Some improvement can be expected with increasing business activity, but unusually great strides would have to be made before the position of the bonds could be termed satisfactory.

Allied Products.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly favor me with your knowledge of Allied Products?—E. K. M.

Answer: Allied Products corporation, Hillsdale and Detroit, Mich., and Newark, N. J., manufactures cold forged parts, die sets, cap screws, and similar products, mainly for the automobile trade.

The company suspended dividends on its class A stock in 1931 because of unsatisfactory earnings. In 1935 the company again was in the black, but large accumulations on the class A made the prospect of clearing them remote. A recapitalization plan was therefore effected.

This gave each holder of the old $3.50 class A stock $2 cash and 1½ shares of new class A stock, convertible share for share into common and entitled to dividends of $1.75 a share per year.

There are now outstanding 64,200 shares of new class A and 75,000 common shares. An initial dividend on the new class A stock of 43¾ cents was paid Dec. 20, 1935.

Net income for the first eight months o[illegible] was $121,000. Class A dividend requirements are now $112,350 a year. Net income in 1934 was $95,000, against losses of $26,000, $174,000, $65,000, and $139,000 for the four preceding years.

On April 30, 1935, current assets were $1,358,000, and current liabilities were $104,000.

1935 EARNINGS OF CONTINENTAL BANK SHOW GAIN

Expect Net Between 12 and 13 Million.

Earnings of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, one of the nation's biggest banks, are expected to be between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000 for 1935, it was learned yesterday.

W. J. CUMMINGS.

This would represent an improvement of between 10 and 20 per cent from last year, when net of $11,024,533 was reported from operations, and a rise of more than 75 per cent from the low of $7,130,864 of 1933. After preferred dividends, earnings would equal between $13.50 and $15 a share on the 750,000 common shares outstanding, compared with $11.77 a share for 1934.

Contributing to the better common stock earnings was the reduction from 4 to 3½ per cent early in the year of the divdend rate on the $50,000,000 preferred stock.

RFC Holds Preferred Stock.

All of the preferred stock except $333 taken by a lone common stockholder was sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation in December, 1933. At that time the par value of the common stock was cut from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000—each share being cut from $100 to $33⅓ par.

Despite the increasing difficulty in obtaining a fair return on money with interest rates continuing downward, the Continental's earnings are reported to have followed rather closely its rise in deposits, which recently crossed the billion dollar mark.

The estimate represents earnings from 1935 operations, allowing for current losses and recoveries but not for recoveries or further write-downs of assets held prior to this year. It is understood further losses applicable to other years may not show on the income statement to be issued Jan. 1. Any write-offs, it is said, probably will be largely offset by recoveries on other assets previously written down.

Big Write-Offs in Recent Years.

During 1932 the bank wrote off $45,416,368. In 1933 this charge amounted to $60,522,037. Last year, the Continental wrote off $10,986,776, but realized a profit of $3,915,315 to leave a balance of $3,953,073 from earnings. Dividends on the preferred took $2,197,490 and $1,000,000 was transferred to surplus. At the annual meeting last January, Chairman Walter J. Cummings said all items classed as a loss by the controler of the currency and the clearing house examiner had been written off.

"Whether any more of these assets acquired prior to Jan. 1, 1934, will develop into losses is something I cannot foretell," Cummings added. "Against the possibility of further charge-offs we have sizeable recoveries in prospect and the demonstrated earning power of the bank."

Shifts Government Securities.

It also was learned the bank gradually has been shifting its large holdings of government securities. Although total holdings have continued to mount, because of difficulty in finding other investments for expanding deposits, much of the long-term paper has been converted into shorter maturities.

This move tends to reduce the bank's yield on its investments. This is taken in most quarters to mean that any further substantial improvement in earnings must depend on improvement in money rates and demand for loans, a situation common to most of the banks of the country. To meet this condition, Chicago banks will cut interest rates on savings from 2 to 1½ per cent on Jan. 1 to reduce the outward flow of money.

FIGHT WALLACE'S RULE OF LIVE STOCK CHARGES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Secretary Henry Wallace's power to fix handling rates for the Chicago stockyards was challenged and defended in two appeals filed today with the Supreme court. Most of the commission firms and individuals handling live stock at Chicago filed an appeal from a three judge federal District court ruling which upheld Wallace's orders lowering rates in 1934.

Government attorneys filed a simultaneous appeal from a ruling by the same court Dec. 3 that Wallace could not ignore a request to increase rates effective Nov. 1. Both actions resulted from the packers and stockyards act of 1921 which authorized the secretary of agriculture to fix service fees and rates at live stock market centers.

Tobacco Crop Is Worth $237,479,000 on Farms

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—An AAA report today estimated farm income from the 1935 tobacco crop at $249,351,000, including $11,872,000 in benefit payments. Actual farm value of $237,479,000 compared with $107,776,000 for the 1932 crop.

Try to Guess Illinoisian of Record Income

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Who was the fortunate resident of Illinois to have an income of more than $5,000,000 in 1933? This question presented a "mystery" yesterday which stirred bankers and members of the financial district to much theorizing.

The fact that someone had such a huge income, the largest to be reported in the United States for 1933, was disclosed by the bureau of internal revenue at Washington, which keeps names a closely guarded secret.

Knowledge that some Illinoisan, very likely a Chicagoan, came into possession of sufficient money in 1933 to keep several packs of wolves from the door was disclosed on March 17, 1934, when Miss Elizabeth Eckert, chief clerk in the office of former Mayor Carter H. Harrison, now collector of internal revenue here, announced an individual income tax bill of $1,583,633.

Income Exceeds Estimate.

At that time it was estimated the income of this taxpayer was in excess of $3,000,000. In the year and three quarters that have intervened the only additional information on this case has been the disclosure that the income actually was more than $5,000,000.

Leading bankers and financial leaders said yesterday they were unable to hazard an accurate guess. Therefore, the answer to the question is locked in the minds of a few internal revenue department officials, who might be penalized under the income tax law for revealing it.

Generally, it was conceded that the man, or woman, who got this amount must have sold some security holding, company or valuable possession, held for considerable time, because it was held improbable that any one could have had such a large actual income in 1933, when business was not operating at a high level.

Seller of Oil Concern?

For example, it was pointed out that some one might have sold out a large petroleum holding bought at a low figure and liquidated in the millions.

Then a number of bankers recalled the sharp upturn in the stock and commodity markets in the middle of 1933, when it might have been possible for someone to have amassed a huge sum. Several Chicagoans were known to have been large operators in the stock and commodity markets during that year. Opposed to this it was argued that such speculators undoubtedly took losses, as well as profits, which have worked against the amassing of a larger than $5,000,000 net income.

A well-informed man in La Salle street hazarded the guess that the person with the big income might have been a leading individual in the advertising world who is interested in many varied business undertakings.

Still Other Guesses.

Another guess was that the individual may have been a man about whom little is known generally in Chicago but who is reputed to have a "fabulously" large income, particularly from railroad equipment patents.

Further information released by the bureau of internal revenue yesterday disclosed that in 1933 the second largest Illinois income was between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, while there were two between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

The second largest income in 1933 for the whole country was one of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 reported from New York and the third largest was one between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 reported from Massachusetts.

Brazil Coffee Destruction Largest Since February

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Destruction of coffee in Brazil in the first half of December was 123,000 bags, the largest volume since February, comparing with 61,000 bags in the second half of November and with 27,000 bags in the first half of last month, the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange reports. Since June, 1931, when the coffee burning program began, 35,673,000 bags have been destroyed.

SILVER SINKS FURTHER; LOSS OF U. S. GROWS

Treasury Officials Silent on Policy.

Silver dropped a cent an ounce to 50¾ cents yesterday in the New York market, the lowest price at which it has been quoted since Oct. 8, 1934. The decline of a cent an ounce meant a further shrinkage of $7,610,000 in the value of the silver acquired by the United States treasury in the last two years. In the last two weeks the New York market has declined 14⅝ cents an ounce.

In the London market no price was posted until after Handy & Harmon, New York bullion brokers, had announced the 50¾ cent quotation. After that the London market opened at 21 5-16 pence, equivalent to 47.32 cents an ounce in American funds. The London price was 93-100ths of a cent below last week's closing quotation in that market.

Selling Orders Prorated.

It was again necessary to prorate the selling orders in London because of the scarcity of buyers. This practice has been followed since the United States treasury abandoned its heavy purchasing in London several days ago. It was estimated approximately 10 per cent of the metal offers in London yesterday were taken. This was slightly more than the estimated 8 per cent of the offerings actually taken last Friday, the last trading day.

Treasury officials had nothing to say yesterday about their market activities. It was presumed the government is sticking to its policy of making its purchases in scattered markets rather than concentrating in London.

Treasury Silent on Policy.

The treasury policy, however, is far from clear. The size of the current daily purchases is not known nor will officials give any clew as to future market operations.

London and New York brokers believe that despite the sharp decline that has occurred in the market, silver still is too high to bring in any substantial private speculative buying. It will require some time, brokers believe, before future trading in the metal can be restored to a normal basis.

The silver futures market in Montreal was steady yesterday. Closing quotations on the principal futures were a half cent to 1.20 cents above Saturday's quotations. The January future closed at 46.25 cents an ounce.

FARMERS SEEK U. S. CORN LOANS AS PRICE FALLS

Prevailing relatively low prices for cash corn at leading terminal markets is resulting in many Illinois farmers making application for government loans on cribbed grain. It is estimated about 300,000 bushels of cash corn in Champaign county have been pledged as collateral for government loans of 45 cents per bushel, while in McLean county about 400,000 bushels are estimated to have been sealed.

In some instances downstate bankers are reported to be lending on corn without forcing the farmer to have the cribs officially sealed. Four counties in Iowa were reported late last week to have pledged 425,000 bushels of corn for government loans.

Gen. Household Utilities Trustees Named by Court

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday appointed William C. Grunow and Charles H. Albers permanent trustees of General Household Utilities, Inc., which is seeking to reorganize under section 77B of the bankruptcy laws. Albers and Grunow have been temporary trustees since Nov. 25. Bonds of $50,000 each were continued.

Cotton Belt's Plan Fought by Bondholders

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A federal hearing today to appoint trustees in bankruptcy to manage the St. Louis Southwestern [Cotton Belt] railway turned into a hearing to determine whether the company had acted "in good faith" in its petition for reorganization.

Federal Judge Charles B. Davies postponed appointment of trustees and heard witnesses on the railroad's ability to meet its maturing obligations after three bondholders asked dismissal of the petition to reorganize under the amended bankruptcy act. More will testify tomorrow. The petition for reorganization was filed here Dec. 12.

Blame Southern Pacific.

The bondholders, headed by Walter E. Meyer, New York, former Cotton Belt director and chairman of a stockholders' protective committee, alleged the Southern Pacific company in an attempt to bankrupt the railroad "deliberately caused the Cotton Belt to show poor earnings and deliberately failed to influence trafic to the Cotton Belt."

The Southern Pacific holds 87.37 per cent of the Cotton Belt stock. Meyer said the stockholders' committee represented three-fourths of the 41,633 shares not held by the Southern Pacific.

Allegations by the bondholders that the Cotton Belt had sufficient resources to meet interest obligations on loans totaling $29,458,992 were challenged at the hearing by two officials, President Daniel Upthegrove and F. H. Millard, controler.

Two Officials Testify.

Upthegrove testified that withdrawal of financial support by the Southern Pacific forced the Cotton Belt to file its petition for reorganization. Millard estimated at the end of 1935 the Cotton Belt would have $578,000 cash on hand but that if it paid all its interest on securities and loans it would have a deficit of $818,000.

Asked to explain this deficit in the face of a deficit estimate of only $128,000 made by road officials to the interstate commerce commission last May, Millard said the earlier estimate was "merely guess." He explained increased labor costs and other unforeseen factors had offset a 38 per cent increase in car loadings and a 48 per cent rise in revenues.

RAILS REPORT PROFIT, TRAFIC GAINS OVER '34

The Southern Pacific's November net operating income was $2,719,220, compared with $3,510,697 in October and $1,638,546 in November of last year.

In the first eleven months of 1935 the road's net operating income totaled $18,228,004, against $15,305,366 in the corresponding months of 1934, and gross revenues were $149,399,102, compared with $137,446,546 in the 1934 period.

While freight trafic last week gained over last year, it showed a seasonal decline from the preceding week. Totals were:

| | —Week ended— Dec. 21. | Dec. 14. | Year ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| North Western | 21,907 | 23,538 | 21,540 |
| Milwaukee | 24,495 | 25,684 | 23,305 |
| Baltimore and Ohio | 38,050 | 49,888 | 37,595 |

Formula for Fixing Basic Coal Prices Is Prepared

A formula for setting basic price schedules for the state was drawn up yesterday by members of the Illinois bituminous coal producers' board, formed to administer the Guffey coal act. J. R. Henderson, executive secretary of the board, declared minimum coal prices agreed on will be submitted Friday to the national bituminous coal producers' control board at Washington, where a public hearing will be conducted.

Banks and Markets Close Tomorrow

All banks and commodity and security exchanges in this country and Europe will be closed tomorrow. In some foreign countries a double holiday will be observed. London banks and exchanges will be closed tomorrow and Thursday. Winnipeg grain market also will close those days. Banks and exchanges in the United States will resume business Thursday morning.

U. S. RIGHT TO PAY OFF LIBERTY 3½S BEFORE MATURITY QUESTIONED

Toledo, O., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Attorney Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati filed a petition in federal court today questioning the right of the federal government to call for redemption, prior to their maturity, 3½ per cent gold Liberty bonds issued in 1917.

The suit, filed in behalf of Frank Collins of Toledo, contends the government has no right to call the bonds prior to 1947, the date of maturity, except by payment in gold of the valuation before the gold reserve act of 1934.

Under this act, it was pointed out in the petition, the President has reduced the gold content of the dollar. The suit admits the bonds contain a provision they may be redeemed at the government's pleasure on or after June 15, 1932, in gold coin.

Collins presented a $1,000 bond to the federal reserve bank in Cleveland on Dec. 16, asking payment for the bond in gold dollars of the content and fineness at the time the bonds were issued. He refused, he said, to accept payment in legal tender, and demanded interest of $17.50 in gold. He said the bank refused to pay interest on the ground that the bonds had been called.

The suit contends that a joint resolution adopted by congress in June, 1933, nullifying gold payment provisions of government bonds is unconstitutional on the ground congress exceeded its power.

DECREE CLEARS HALSEY-STUART OF MAIL FRAUD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Action of the federal district court for eastern Wisconsin in quashing mail fraud indictments against Halsey, Stuart and company was permitted to stand today by the Supreme court. It dismissed the appeal because of lack of jurisdiction. The unanimous opinion was read by Chief Justice Hughes. In taking its action, the lower court held the government had failed to disclose a scheme to defraud. Previously, government attorneys had said it probably was too late to seek new indictments because the time was limited by law.

The indictments charged misuse of the mails in the sale of $2,500,000 bonds of the Wardman Realty and Construction company of this city. It operated a number of large apartments and hotels here. The government contended the securities firm knew the Wardman interests were in an unstable financial condition, and said the Wardman company collapsed with more than $18,000,000 bonded indebtedness.

Award Contracts to Build Two Postal Stations Here

Contracts were awarded yesterday by the treasury department for construction of two new Chicago postal substations, according to dispatches from Washington. The Henke Construction company, 609 North Wells street, was given the contract to build the Stock Yards station at a cost of $224,745. The Morgan Park station will be built by Maurice L. Bein, 134 North La Salle street, at a cost of $91,490.

Bank Loans Expand and Deposits Fall

A sharp bulge in loans and investments, accompanied by a falling off in deposits, was reported yesterday for member banks of the federal reserve system in 101 leading cities during the week ended Dec. 18 in which the government's financing operations took place.

The banks of the 99 cities outside of Chicago and New York were shown to have been heavy participants in purchase of the new government issues. They accounted for 292 million dollars, or 65 per cent, of the total expansion of 449 millions in loans and investments. Of the 427 million dollar increase in government holdings, the 99 cities accounted for 248 millions, or 58 per cent of the jump.

New York Banks Invest More.

New York banks added 136 millions in government securities and showed a rise of 110 millions in loans and investments. Largest other changes were a 13 million dollar rise in collateral loans and a drop of 23 millions in holdings of securities other than governments. Banks of the 99 cities showed a 24 million dollar expansion in the latter item.

Chicago banks expanded loans and investments by 47 millions, adding 43 millions to government security holdings. Commercial loans expanded 7 millions, compared with 4 million in the 99 cities and a shrinkage of 5 millions in New York.

The 237 million dollar drop in net deposits resulted from a 162 million dollar decline in New York and a shrinkage of 80 millions in the 99 cities, while Chicago showed a 5 million dollar expansion. Demand deposits were down 86 millions in the 99 cities, 153 millions in New York, and 10 millions in Chicago.

Total Deposits Decline.

Total deposits, including government and interbank balance dropped only 109 millions, being up 36 millions in Chicago and 68 millions in the ninety-nine cities, but 213 millions lower in New York.

Government deposits increased 169 millions in the ninety-nine centers, 44 millions in New York, and 40 millions in Chicago for a total rise of 253 millions. Interbank balances decline 95 millions in New York, also 9 millions in Chicago and 21 millions in the other cities for an aggregate decline of 125 millions.

HOLIDAY BRINGS BIG SETBACK IN STEEL OUTPUT

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—A setback of 5.1 points, or 9.3 per cent, in steel mill operations is scheduled for this week, due to the holiday slack, it was indicated today. The American Iron and Steel institute estimated steel ingot production at 49.5 per cent of capacity for the week, against a level of 54.6 per cent last week and 55.4 per cent a month ago.

Usually mill schedules are curtailed somewhat during the year-end holiday weeks, although at this time last year operations were stepped up slightly to a level of 35.2 per cent of capacity.

Cargill Wheat Dispute Ends; Big Grain Co-op Gets Profit

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Warehouse receipts on 1,900,000 bushels of wheat in the Cargill-Illinois Warehouse corporation elevator in South Chicago have been bought in by a nominee of that concern, it was learned last night. The transaction ends the dispute between the elevator company and the Farmers National Grain corporation over the quality of the grain that was offered for delivery on the receipts.

The settlement was understood to have resulted in a substantial profit to Farmers National and others who had accepted the receipts on deliveries under the December future contract on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Farmers National had accepted Cargill receipts on approximately 1,000,000 bushels. The coöperative was reported to have made a profit of around $50,000 on the deal.

Daniel F. Rice, one of the largest operators on the Board of Trade, made a similar settlement with the Cargill interests. Rice and his associates were understood to have taken the receipts on a large amount of wheat in the Cargill warehouse.

William C. Engel, vice president and general manager of Farmers National, said the settlement was "entirely satisfactory" to his firm.

"At the request of the Cargill company," he said, "we have sold to their nominee all of our warehouse receipts for No. 2 red wheat in the Northwest elevator at a price entirely satisfactory to us. Cargill further has agreed that the wheat will not be retendered on December contracts."

The settlement was made, Engel said, independently of the Board of Trade.

The dispute between Cargill and Farmers National started last week when the coöp refused to accept 400,000 bushels of wheat loaded out of the Cargill elevator. The wheat was rejected on the grounds that it did not grade according to the specifications called for by the rules of the Board of Trade.

Owens-Illinois Bonus Totals Half Million; Others Declared

The Owens-Illinois Glass company headed the list of companies announcing Christmas bonuses to employés yesterday with a distribution of approximately $500,000. Other additions to the Christmas stocking came from industry, brokerage houses, and closed banks.

From Madison came announcement that depositors in 72 closed Wisconsin banks have received returns of $1,500,000 this month, largely on accounts frozen since the 1933 moratorium. The liquidation division of the state banking commission said "dividends" have been authorized everywhere possible during December.

13,000 Glass Workers Gain.

The Toledo announcement of Owens-Illinois said that every person in every branch of the business was included in the bonus distribution, which included more than 13,000 employés of its main plant and four subsidiaries.

A Christmas greeting and a check for $5 were mailed by Vincent Bendix and the Bendix Aviation corporation to each of their 4,500 employés in South Bend.

Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., announced from its offices at Kearney, N. J., that a distribution, based on rate of pay and length of service is being made to all employés earning $2,000 or less per year. Approximately 2,700 will be included—about 700 more than a year ago because of additions to the pay roll.

From New York came word that 316 employés of Sachs Quality Furniture company will receive $22,000 in profit sharing checks—about 10 per cent more than a year ago.

"Substantial Christmas bonuses" were announced by Hartol Products company.

Other Bonuses Voted.

The New York Stock exchange firm of Strauss, Phillips & Co. is paying a bonus of from 1 to 10 weeks' salary. In addition, salaries have been raised and life insurance policies have been distributed to employés at company expense.

Although many houses, both in Chicago and New York, were keeping bonus actions to themselves, it was definitly established that more distributions are being made this year than since 1928 and 1929, with the cash involved the largest since 1930.

Several thousand dollars was being distributed to 200 Homer Furnace company employés at Coldwater, Mich., and the Nokomis [Ill.] State bank has mailed checks for another 5 per cent to raise returns to 65 per cent since closing.

Join Bethlehem Steel Units in One Subsidiary

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Consolidation of three wholly-owned operating subsidiaries of the Bethlehem Steel corporation was announced today by Eugene G. Grace, president of the corporation. The three subsidiaries are the McClintock-Marshall, Pacific Coast Steel, and Kalman Steel corporations.

The change, effective Jan. 1, will result in transfer of all business heretofore conducted by these subsidiaries to another operating subsidiary, the Bethlehem Steel company, which is wholly owned by the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Two Firms Acquired in 1930.

The McClintock-Marshall corporation, fabricator of structural steel, was acquired by Bethlehem Steel in October, 1930, for 240,000 shares of Bethlehem common stock and other considerations totaling $20,200,000 additional. The Pacific Coast Steel corporation was acquired in 1930.

The announcement issued by Grace said the consolidation was motivated by a desire to simplify the corporate structure and expedite the conduct of the business. It was assumed in Wall street that another factor was the revenue act of 1935, which imposes a tax on intercorporate dividends and which permits transfers of certain subsidiary assets to the controling company without tax after Jan. 1.

New Setup Is Explained.

"The fabrication and erection work of Bethlehem," the statement said, "was formerly handled under the McClintock-Marshall name, the west coast business has been conducted in the name of the Pacific Coast Steel corporation, and Kalman has handled reinforcing bars, steel sheet piling and certain light steel products for building and road construction."

The Bethlehem Steel company will have general offices at Bethlehem, Pa., and Pacific coast general offices in San Francisco.

The Bethlehem Steel corporation's action parallels that taken recently by United States Steel corporation, which merged its two principal operating subsidiaries, Illinois Steel and Carnegie Steel, into a new company, the Carnegie-Illinois company.

ILLINOIS STORES REPORT RETAIL SALES RISE 23%

An increase of 23 per cent in retail sales by 726 independent stores in Illinois during November over last year was reported yesterday by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce, based upon preliminary estimates. After adjustments for two less working days in November than in October, November sales showed an increase of 10 per cent over the preceding month.

Every kind of business represented, except women's specialty shops, showed increases for November over 1934. The largest gains were those of 112 per cent for the motor vehicle dealers, reflecting the early introduction of new models; a 30 per cent increase reported by the lumber and building material dealers, and 24 per cent by the men's and boys' clothing stores.

Without any adjustment, the largest increase from October to November was reported by the motor vehicle dealers, sales gaining 29 per cent. Losses reported by nine lines of trade from the preceding month were mostly seasonal and included a drop of 20 per cent in retail furniture sales and 15 per cent in hardware.

WISCONSIN STORES GAIN.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Retail sales of independent stores in Wisconsin were shown by a commerce department report today to have increased 21 per cent in dollar volume during November, compared with the same month of 1934.

CHINESE DOLLAR BREAK FEATURES MONEY MARKET

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—A break in the Hongkong dollar to the lowest level of the year, due to the uncertainty over the outlook for silver, featured an otherwise quiet foreign exchange market today.

The Chinese unit dropped 37½ points to close at 32 cents. Shanghai dollars were not affected by the silver situation, closing unchanged at 29¾ cents.

French francs opened unchanged at 6.58⅝ cents but closed ⅛ point higher at 6.58¾ cents. This reduced the value of the American dollar against francs to $1.0070 from $1.0072 on Saturday.

The pound sterling was off ⅜ cent to $4.92¾, while the guilder rose 4 points to 67.76 cents and the Swiss franc gained 4 points to 32.45 cents.

No engagements of gold for shipment from Paris to New York were reported. Engagements of $2,815,000 elsewhere were made, however. Of this amount $2,390,000 was taken in Canada, $290,000 in Ecuador, and $135,000 in India.

Am. Telephone Gets Delay in Teletypewriter Case

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The communications commission today rejected an application of the American Telephone and Telegraph company to postpone until Jan. 1, 1937, the effective date of a $30 minimum monthly charge for teletypewriter service. The commission granted postponement to next April 1, however, to enable the company to file a schedule of teletypwriter rates in conformity with the order. At a hearing recently, the company contended that imposition of the minimum charge would hamper it in efforts to meet telegraph competition.

BANKER LEADER ASKS U. S. QUIT LOAN BUSINESS

Seeks to Take Over Agencies' Activity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—A plea that the federal government step out of the lending business "whatever soundly possible" was laid before President Roosevelt today by Robert V. Fleming, president of the American Bankers' association and president of the Riggs National bank of Washington.

R. V. FLEMING. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Following his White House visit, Fleming announced that the proposal will be discussed at four regional conferences of bankers to be held in the coming year. President Roosevelt declined to comment on the plan later in the day, saying that the business of the bankers' association was of a private nature.

Lending to be Urged.

"At these conferences," Fleming explained, "I will urge that the bankers of the country explore the possibilities of the banks taking over some of the lending functions of the emergency agencies of the federal government.

"The whole situation with respect to loans being made by emergency agencies will be studied carefully to see where the banks of the country can step in and make those loans."

Fleming also said that the regulations to be imposed under the banking act of 1935 by the federal reserve board would enter into the discussions at the regional conferences. He expressed the opinion that there was no need of additional legislation on banking of a major character.

The first conference will be held at Philadelphia Jan. 23 and 24. Another will be held in the south, probably at Memphis, one at St. Louis or Chicago for the midwest, and one at Portland, Ore.

Types of lending that should be transferred from the federal government to private institutions were not specified by Fleming. The outstanding loans by governmental agencies under the impetus of New Deal fiscal policies have reached a total of $8,317,766,579, latest treasury figures showed.

AMERICAN CAN WILL PAY EXTRA DIVIDEND OF $1

The American Can company yesterday entered the ranks of companies declaring extra dividends by voting $1 a share on the common stock, payable Feb. 15. In November, last year, the same amount was declared. The company has been paying $4 annually since 1930, also voting an extra of $1 in 1931.

The Central Republic company, former investment affiliate of Central Republic Trust company of Chicago, declared an initial dividend of 12½ cents a share on the capital stock. In December, 1933, the trust agreement by which the capital stock was trusteed for the benefit of Central Republic Trust stockholders was terminated and the stock distributed among the stockholders.

An accumulation dividend of $1 was voted by Altorfer Brothers company, Peoria, Ill., on the preference stock.

AIRLINE, MOTOR SHARES STRONG; OTHERS UNEVEN

Chrysler Climbs Another Two Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 23.—The holiday influence settled down on Wall street late today, halting an early advance in stock prices and giving the list a highly irregular appearance at the close. Pre-holiday trading was quiet and orderly, with Chrysler, aviation issues, and a number of miscellaneous issues distributing the most cheer.

Chrysler especially was a source of despair to the short interests, as it mounted over 2 points to reach its best price since the halcyon days of 1929 and stubbornly refused to give way in the face of the late offerings that came into the list. One reason advanced for this issue's stellar performance was the belief a split-up would soon be forthcoming.

Airplane Issues Strong.

Last week's strength in airplane issues carried over to the new week. As was the case last week, the main buying was in the shares of companies which have received or will receive contracts for government construction. Douglas and Boeing, at 45¼ and 16½, reached new highs before being effected by profit taking which cut down their gains.

Wright Aero also was well liked, equaling its high mark and showing a profit of $1 at the close. Sperry was strong in the equipment division, making a new high of 14½.

Decisions handed down by the Supreme court were of little interest to traders, with the exception of the ruling in the Radio case. Radio issues moved down sharply on the news the company would have to go to trial with another company over patents and licenses. Radio preferred B was off almost 5 points at one time, but came back slowly in late dealings to finish with a loss of 2⅝ points.

American Can Climbs.

American Can was well treated in the blue chip division, climbing almost 3 points. Eastman Kodak and Westinghouse, however, finished in reverse.

Some miscellaneous issues to register better than ordinary gains were Coca Cola, with a spurt of 4¼ points; Fairbanks-Morse, up 2%; Union Bag and Paper gained 3½, and Austin-Nichols prior A, which reaped a profit of $2.75.

Railroad shares were under pressure with the eastern lines suffering most from the prospects of a reduction in passenger fares. Delaware and Hudson lost over a point, while New York Central and Pennsylvania declined fractions. Norfolk and Western was especially weak, sinking 3½ points.

Silver shares were heavy, but the farm implement section acted in the true holiday spirit, with Deere leading the advance on a gain of 3¾ points. Case and Oliver farm equipment were also strong.

Utilities were irregular. Oil shares were strong, with Tidewater making a new high of 14½. Silvers weakened.

AURORA UTILITY HOLDING CONCERN WILL LIQUIDATE

Aurora, Ill., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Stockholders of Western United corporation, public utility holding company, voted at a special meeting today to dissolve the corporation and liquidate its assets.

Approval was given under a plan by which preferred stockholders in the holding company would be given one share of stock in the Western United Gas and Electric corporation, operating firm, for each two surrendered in the holding company.

Western United serves a district including Aurora, Elgin, Joliet, and La Grange.

R. JOSEPH RICH BUYS WINNETKA HOME OF DR. GAY

HOLC Reports 212 Pct. Building Gain.

BY AL CHASE.

One of the north shore's outstanding pieces of riparian properties changed hands yesterday when R. Joseph Rich, vice president of the Simoniz company of Chicago, purchased the residence of Dr. Robert Gay at 985 Sheridan road, Winnetka, for an undisclosed consideration. There were 10 revenue stamps on the deed, indicating $10,000 paid for the equity, but it is known that the buyer also paid off a large mortgage. The property was priced at $250,000 in 1931.

The 21 room residence, of brick and frame construction, occupies a tract of nearly three acres at the top of Hubbard Woods hill. It fronts 241.9 feet on Sheridan road, extending back 500 feet through woods over rolling terrain to a wooded bluff and shallow sandy beach.

Plans Remodeling.

Mr. Rich, who lives at 147 Dempster street, Evanston, will take possession of the property on Feb. 1. He has commissioned Mayo & Mayo to make architectural studies for an extensive remodeling and modernization of the thirty year old house, which probably will include an air conditioning system.

Title was conveyed to Mr. Rich by the wife of Dr. Gay, Bessie H. Gay. Mrs. C. H. Zeiss of the Winnetka office of Fuller & Pickard was broker for all parties. Clarence E. Drayer of North Shore Realty was sales consul to the seller.

2,092 Houses Built.

A 212 per cent increase in the number of houses built in the Chicago Federal Home Loan bank district, comprising Illinois and Wisconsin, during the first nine months of 1935, as compared with the same period last year, is reported by A. R. Gardner, president of the regional bank. This year's nine month total is 2,092 homes, as compared with 670 last year.

Gardner said the bulk of building is in the suburbs of Chicago and Milwaukee, especially in communities of from 10,000 to 25,000 population. Only 9.85 per cent of the city dwellers in the two states live in the thirty-four suburbs and other towns in this population range, but 696 of the new homes, a third of the total for the period, were erected in such centers.

The progress made in suburban building can be traced in substantial measure to the availability of home owner credit in the savings, building and loan associations which are members of the Chicago bank, Gardner said.

PRICES OF MEAT RISE, BOOSTING ALL LIVE STOCK

The pre-holiday letup in live stock receipts, which had been expected this week, coupled with a substantial rally in wholesale meat prices, sent markets at the stock yards into an uneven but sharp rise yesterday. The recovery in meat prices was the sharpest in some time.

Fresh pork loins led the rise, the various distributing points showing advances ranging from 50 cents to $3 per hundred pounds compared with the close of last week. Pork prices were unevenly 50 cents lower to $2 higher than early last week.

Top loins in the Chicago area rose $1 to $20.50, the highest in twelve days. Packers sold beef steady to $1 higher than at the close of last week. Lamb meat brought steady to 50 cents more.

The sensational advance in the lamb market was the feature of the live stock trade. Prices rose 35 to 55 cents. Both lambs and yearling stock established new 5½ year highs, the former soaring to $11.90, compared with $11.35 at the close of last week.

Hogs advanced 15 to 30 cents over Saturday and sold steady to 15 cents higher than on last Friday. Selected 160 to 190 pound averages reached $12.05, processing tax included.

Upturns in the cattle market were not as sharp as in other live stock, but practically all classes showed considerable advance compared with early last week.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The following figures on hog prices include $3.25 per cwt collected for the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are for 100 lbs of live animal:

GREAT NORTHERN'S PROPOSED 4S QUOTED 102¾ BID, 103½ ASKED

New York, Dec. 23.—[Special.]—Over the counter trading on a when issued basis was inaugurated today in the ten year 4 per cent convertible bonds of the Great Northern Railway company and the "rights" to subscribe to those obligations. Quotations in both instances were substantially below the valuations established on the proposed 5s and "rights" early last week.

The new 4s, which would be underwritten by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, were quoted today at 102¾ bid, 103½ asked, while the "rights" were given a value of 1¼-1⅝. The 5s, in similar prior-to-market trading last week, were quoted at 108-108½ and the "rights" at 3¼-3½.

The Great Northern, confronted with the maturity of $100,000,000 of bonds on July 1 next, had reached a tentative agreement with private banking interests whereby the latter would underwrite a refunding issue of 5s.

ODLUM PREDICTS RISE IN DURABLE GOODS INDUSTRY

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Floyd B. Odlum, president of the Atlas corporation, the nation's largest investment company, predicted today an increase in activity of the durable goods industries and a greater demand for new funds during 1936.

"There should be a better demand during 1936 in the capital goods market and more new financing for capital requirements as distinct from refunding operations, which have occupied the foremost place in financing during 1935," said Odlum. "It seems that the improvement in business conditions should continue its upward trend in 1936.

"How far this expected normal course will be affected by elections in this country or the uncertainty created by conditions abroad, of course, cannot be foretold. The European and far eastern situations as they deal with war possibilities and artificial upsets in and barriers to international trade must be taken seriously into account.

"The dislocations in international exchange rates, the ability of certain countries to stay on a gold exchange basis, or of others to go into such basis, all will have their effect in creating uncertainty and temporary setbacks. But, by and large, it is likely that the economic trend in the United States ought to be upward."

HOG PRODUCTION IS INCREASED IN ALL PARTS OF U. S.

The government pig crop report, issued yesterday, indicated a substantial increase in hog production in all parts of the United States, with the largest increases in the areas most effected by the drouth of 1934 and the AAA's pig killing campaign of 1933.

The report showed a total increase of 31 per cent in the fall pig crop of 1935 over that of 1934, a decrease of 5 per cent in the combined spring and fall crop of 1935 compared with the two crops of 1934, and a prospective increase of 24 per cent in the number of sows to farrow in the spring of 1936 over the small farrowings in the spring of 1935.

The number of pigs saved in the fall season of 1935 [June 1 to Dec. 1] for the entire country is estimated at 20,272,000 head, a gain of 4,750,000 pigs over the number saved in the fall of 1934, but a decrease of 27 per cent from the five year average, 1929-'33.

More than 85 per cent of the increase in the fall pig crop was reported by farmers in the corn belt states that made the greatest reductions under the AAA, and these states also report the greatest increases in numbers of sows to be bred for spring farrowing.

New York Exchange Seat Nets $135,000, Unchanged

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Arrangements have been made for sale of a New York Stock exchange membership for $135,000, unchanged from the previous transaction.

BUTTER FIRM TO HIGHER; EGGS REACH NEW LOWS

Pre-holiday dullness prevailed in the butter market on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, futures closing unchanged to ¼ cent higher, with December at 32½ cents per pound. The four leading markets withdrew 116,000 pounds more butter from cold storage than for the corresponding day last year.

Liquidation developed in eggs with the prices dropping ¾ to 1 cent to a new low for the season, December finishing at 17⅞ cents per dozen. Short covering checked the decline. Sales of butter were 74 cars and eggs 186 cars. Prices:

WHEAT DELIVERY QUARREL LIFTS DECEMBER PRICE

Quality Issue Leads to Short Covering.

Interest in grain markets yesterday was extremely light and centered largely in the December delivery of wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade. Uneasiness created by the controversy as to the quality of the soft red winter wheat which had been delivered on future contracts early in the month brought in short covering, which lifted the price nearly 2 cents over Saturday's finish to $1.04¾ per bushel, the highest level since Oct. 16.

On the advance brokers who frequently act for houses regarded as the leading holders of December contracts sold that option and bought the May delivery, thus easing the tension to some extent, but toward the last the December-May spread widened out again to 4¾ cents premium for December wheat, the greatest difference so far.

Wheat Prices Close Irregular.

At the close December wheat here was 1¼ cents higher; May, ⅝ cent lower, and July, ⅞ cent lower. Buying of May wheat against sales of the July option, based on the large winter wheat acreage seeded for the crop of 1936, was responsible for the widening of the discount of the new crop month under the May delivery.

Pre-holiday dullness prevailed in the foreign demand for overseas wheats and no sales of Canadian grain were indicated, although messages from Winnipeg asserted there was a good demand for No. 3 northern and under from cash interests, including some for shipment at the opening of lake navigation next spring. Winnipeg futures were fractionally lower, as were Kansas City prices, while the Minneapolis market showed little change.

Liverpool Prices Higher.

Small world's shipments and decreasing supplies of wheat on ocean passage brought in buying of futures at Liverpool, where prices were ⅝ to 1¼ cents per bushel higher at the close.

Closing prices on principal May futures here, with comparisons, follow:

| | Yesterday. | Saturday. | Week ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat | $ .99⅝ | $ .99⅝ | $ .97⅛ |
| Corn | .59¾ | .60 | .59⅝ |
| Oats | .28 | .28 | .27¼ |
| Rye | .52⅛ | .52⅝ | .51⅞ |

Corn and other grains fluctuated within narrow limits and closed fractionally lower. The forecast for a cold wave over the corn belt failed to have any effect on the market, as country offerings were small and scattered reports from Illinois and Iowa indicated farmers were more disposed to pledge their grain in cribs as collateral for government loans.

LARD STEADY TO HIGHER; AGGREGATE TRADING LIGHT

Strength in hogs brought in scattered buying of lard futures yesterday, but the aggregate trade was light. Prices held within narrow limits, closing unchanged to 2½ cents higher.

Cash lard closed at $11.90, loose $11.25, leaf $11.50, and clear bellies at $18 per 100 pounds. Deliveries of lard on December contracts were 50,000 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:
